Ford reviews CIA report; schedules news conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford expects to finish reading the Rockefeller Commission's report on the Central Intelligence Agency over the weekend and make a decision this week on releasing it, his chief spokesman said Saturday.

"I assume the report will be made public," Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters in an apparent effort to ease speculation that the administration had switched plans on disclosing the contents.

Ford, meanwhile, scheduled a news conference Monday at 7:30 p.m., EDT, in which the Rockefeller report was sure to be a major topic of questioning.

The news conference will be broadcast live on national radio and television by all the major networks and Nessen said that weather permitting it would be held outdoors in the White House Rose Garden.

Considerable controversy had been raised over the CIA probe report, which Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller delivered to the President Friday. The commission staff had indicated to the news media that it would be made public probably this weekend.

But, at a news briefing Friday, Nessen told reporters Ford would have to read the 300-page report and then make the decision on whether it would be made public.

He said firmly, "As far as the White House is concerned, the question of releasing the report always has depended upon the President first having an opportunity to read it."

But Saturday morning Nessen told reporters that he had said from the beginning when the eight-member blue ribbon investigating panel had been set up last January that he assumed the report would be made public and he added, "I haven't heard anything said that would change that assumption."

Asked if he assumed it would be made public, Nessen said, "I certainly do." But he pointed out, "This is my assumption. It is the President's decision."

Nessen said that difficulties with the news media Friday "stemmed from the fact that some people prematurely announced a decision which the President has not yet made."

Rockefeller's office had alerted the press to expect release of the report this weekend and there were plans for the Government Printing Office to publish some 3,000 copies. Rockefeller had told reporters the report probably would be released Sunday.

Governors appeal to Ford for federal railroad aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eleven governors appealed to President Ford Saturday for massive federal aid to revitalize the nation's ailing railroads. Most also opposed plans for abandonment of unprofitable branch lines.

Gov. William Milliken, of Michigan, a Republican, said they found Ford "open minded" and willing to consider their views and recommendations in developing a railroad program that must be sent to Congress by July 26.

Milliken, who briefed reporters inside the White House, said there was no support among the governors for government takeover of the entire national railroad system. He said he urged more time for the states to work out a plan for abandonment of unprofitable branch lines and suggested a two-year moratorium and federal-state matching funds over a 10-year period while some solution is worked out.

Transportation Secretary William Coleman, who joined in the 90-minute session, said "we are attempting to develop a program which the government will support and will solve the problem."

He said the President had instructed him to continue to talk with the governors to help come up with such a program.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, a Democrat, said "the governors pretty much agreed that the U.S. Railway Association plan is not going to work." This was a reference to a quasi-government agency that was set up to work out a plan for presentation to Congress on reorganizing the national railroad system, particularly the bankrupt or financially disabled lines in the Midwest and New England areas.

Shapp said that only Gov. Otis R. Bowen of Indiana, a Republican, supported the plan that calls for the substantial abandonment of unprofitable lines.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso, D-Conn., said: "We felt that the subsidies would have to be substantial, otherwise they would be cosmetic," referring to the request for massive federal aid.

Coleman said that "public ownership of roadbeds was not in the public interest," and that he also believed it to be the President's position.

Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey, a Democrat, said he thought the nation would probably move to public ownership of rail trackage. He said that would "put rails on the same basis as truckers and their other competitors."

Lucey pointed out that airport facilities and highways already are publicly owned.

Coleman joined Milliken in briefing reporters inside the White House, while the other governors talked with reporters outside after the meeting.

President Ford has submitted legislation to Congress calling for $2 billion in loans to help rebuild the nation's railroads and calling for sharply reduced government regulations over the rails. Considerable congressional and public discussion is expected in the next month as the program is hammered out.

Helicopter escapee captured

LESLIE, Mich. (AP) — Dale Otto Remling, the hog thief and rubber check artist who flew from the yard of Southern Michigan Prison to freedom in a hijacked helicopter, was captured Saturday in a bar.

The arresting officer said Remling grinned and surrendered without incident.

Remling, 46, had been free about 30 hours when a plainclothes state trooper picked him up in a bar in Leslie, about 13 miles north of Jackson where the dramatic aerial escape began Friday morning.

Remling told reporters his penchant for escape stems from a dislike of prisons. "I think cages are for something other than people. You talk about problems with people, the prison system breeds it into you."

The man who hijacked a charter helicopter at knifepoint to begin the aerial breakout still is sought by police. He was identified by State Police as 20-year-old Morris Colosky of Weberville.

Three women have been arrested as accomplices in the breakout, and a fourth is being sought.

Remling hopped aboard the pirated chopper Friday morning after the hijacker directed pilot Richard Jackson to set down next to the license plate plant in the world's largest walled prison.

Remling's freedom was shortlived, however. After police heard there was a stranger in Leslie, about half-a-dozen plainclothes officers went into the town to search for Remling.

Trooper William Flower from the Lansing State Police post said he saw Remling coming out of a grocery store and followed him into Huffie's Bar.

"He turned and took two steps, I stopped him but he got into the crowd. I pulled my gun on him, told him to raise his hands and shook him down," said Flower.

"He just grinned."

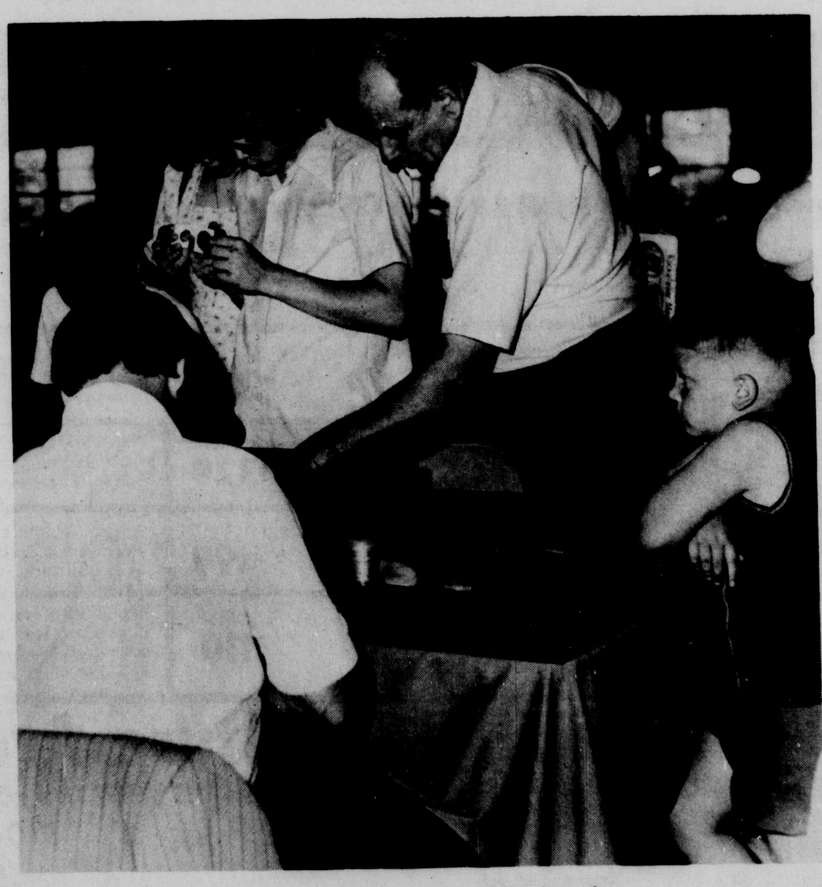

He said Remling talked very casually about horses and didn't mention the escape, which followed closely the plot of a new movie, "Breakout," which recently had played in the city of Jackson.

Said Remling, "There was no use for me to shed tears. He had the cannon on me, I didn't have it on him."

Flower said "by the looks of him, he probably spent the night in the bushes. He was scratched in the face."

Police said Remling gave a statement describing the helicopter escape, but he did not name any other person.

Meanwhile, State Police said Donald Hill of Fowlerville, who was picked up Friday, "had been absolved of any responsibility in the escape." He was picked up just hours after the breakout, and officers said then he was believed to be the hijacker.

Coin collectors' deal

Ernest Cox, Marshall, (center right), is shown purchasing coins from Lester Huntsinger, Tulsa, Okla., (in foreground) Saturday afternoon at the Central Missouri Coin Club's 17th annual coin and hobby show at Convention Hall in Liberty Park. About 30 dealers from various states are buying, selling and trading coins, stamps, artificats, bottles, curios and other collective items. There is no admission charge to the show, which continues through Sunday.

Agencies wage war on possible Haiti famine

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — International relief agencies are working round-the-clock to head off a potentially devastating famine affecting almost one-tenth the population of this impoverished black republic.

The disaster relief effort directed at half a million Haitian peasants in the northern part of the country is spearheaded by American-sponsored agencies such as CARE, USAID, the Haitian-American Community Help Organization, Catholic Relief Services and World Church Service.

In addition to their food-forwork and student food aid programs, they are putting together a long-range $2 million emergency commitment.

The largest number of people affected by the lack of rainfall—it hasn't rained in a year in some places—is in the northwest peninsula jutting out into the Caribbean only a few miles from Cuba.

"When it doesn't rain, there is no food," said a village official in the Departement du Nord'Ouest. "Nothing grows. Many people now have nothing to eat but mangoes."

Although the northwest is the hardest hit, the drought conditions, with some exceptions, exist all the way across the northern tier of this country of 5 million.

Villagers say there have been some deaths, but governmment officials in Port au Prince refuse to comment on such reports.

Some livestock has died, and the few burros, chickens and pigs owned by some of the natives are in a bad way.

The situation was first disclosed May 22 by Foreign Minister Ebner Brutus. He told a news conference the country was unable to cope with the "natural catastrophe" and asked for foreign assistance.

President Jean Claude Duvalier made a personal appeal to American Ambassador Heyward Isham.

Selling sassafrass is a tradition for 75-year-old Richard Curd. He refuses to end his business, although chopping the roots has become a bit difficult. "There's too many people counting on me every spring," he replies. The land gives Curd his livelihood. He takes frequent trips each week from his Georgetown home to collect poke greens, mullin leaves, and wahoo, as well as sarsaparilla and sassafrass roots. (Democrat-Capital Photo by Bill Zieres)

Sassafrass salesman keeps family tradition

By RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

GEORGETOWN — "Ole God, he put everything here for its own purpose," wheezed 75-year-old Richard Curd as he hitched his blue-bibbed overalls. Then he hefted his grubbing hoe and brought its blade down hard against the base of the sassafrass branch.

He carefully peeled off a sliver of sweet-smelling bark, whetted it with the tip of his tongue and brought it up to his nose, savoring the pungent flavor and scent his family has been marketing for two generations.

"Yep, even the ole rattlesnakes," he continued. "Most people's scared of them. But some folks like to eat them fixed up fine for Sunday dinner. Why, you can use just about anything, if you set your mind to it."

Curd, who has lived here 40 years, has never gotten around to rattlesnake steak. A retired construction worker, he has, however, spent a lifetime of spare time chopping and slicing wild sassafrass, gathering and crushing fuzzy mullin leaves, collecting wahoo and sarsaparilla root and gathering wild poke plant, among other assorted plants.

"You can fix it up and drink it like tea, hot in the winter and cold in the summer."

Some items, like mullin, Curd explained, are used "only for medicinal purposes and the like." Others are basic ingredients in beverages, like sarsaparilla. And then, he said, "there's some, like sassafrass, that are good for just about anything you want.

"You can fix it up and drink it like tea, hot in the winter and cold in the summer, but it'll thin your blood too, sure enough. People swear by it, you know. They mix it up with other herbs and spices and take it every spring."

Does he guarantee his product?

"Don't need to. I've been selling it for 30 years and my daddy sold it years before that. We ain't never had any complaints so far. No sir, that's not worrying me at all."

Picking up the hoe in one hand and grasping the sassafrass in the other, Curd ambled on down the gravelly remains of the abandoned Lexington Branch railroad line, just off Georgetown Road. Pointing and jabbing at the lush green foliage and trees on either side, Curd clearly was at home.

"I've been selling it for 30 years and my daddy sold it years before that."

"J'ever see wild cherry wood?" he asked without waiting for a response. "Lookie here at these dewberries. J'ever see the like? Here's some mullin and over there's some poke. Hey you know what this is? It's milkweed!"

Once back home, in downtown Georgetown, Curd dropped his load and paused a minute.

"D'you ever heard of what they call a poultice? Why, for years and years and years before they had drug stores nearby, people would chop up some wild plants like I was showing you and mix in some other stuff to make 'em. They'd work pretty good, too. Just put them over a sore or the like and it'd draw the poison right out ... a lot of folks still use them."

Despite dabbling in poultices in the past, Curd's mainstay through the years has been his sassafrass sales.

"Remember where we walked a while ago? Where the train track used to be? Why when that train was running years ago, my daddy would get on the caboose and walk down the train selling sassafrass to the people. They called him Sassafrass Sam and he really knew what he was doing. There's still plenty of folks around who remember him."

"As long as I'm alive, I'll be outdoors working my sassafrass, you might say."

Although the sassafrass is still the same, a few changes have taken place since his father's days, Curd said. For one, his current selling price of a quarter a package is higher than the dime-for-three-bunches his father charged. Also, in the last two years, a third generation of sassafrass specialists has entered the scene.

Since 1973, Curd has been forced to let his son, Allen, do most of the cutting for him. But he is still the number-one salesman.

"Oh, I can't stop doing that," he said. "There's too many people counting on me every spring. I'm getting older, but I can't really quit, you know what I mean? As long as I'm alive, I'll be outdoors working my sassafrass, you might say."

Ann Landers

Little experiment caused great harm

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy, 15. I started to smoke pot about two years ago. It was fun and I didn't see that it was doing me any harm. About 11 months ago I got into pot real heavy and couldn't seem to stop even though a lot of the so-called experts said it wasn't addictive.

I began to get scared when I couldn't remember where I put things and blanked out on addresses and telephone numbers that used to come easy.

Three months ago I decided to quit cold when it became apparent to me that I was in serious trouble at school. My grades were going to hell. I was flunking three subjects.

It's been 92 days since I've had a joint but at times I still feel high. My schoolwork has improved but it's nowhere near what it was two years ago. I'm very touchy about things that didn't used to bother me. And I still have some very crazy dreams.

I hope you will print my letter so those cats who haven't tried pot will leave it alone. The worst mistake I ever made in my life was experimenting with that lousy stuff. It messed me up plenty. I just hope to God I get back to normal soon. — Wised Up Too Late.

Dear Friend: Thanks for a letter that might prove very helpful to "those cats" who haven't tried it. According to everything I've read, your chances for getting back to normal are good. I suggest counseling in the meantime. It might help hasten the process. Good luck to you.

Dear Ann Landers: A reader wrote in and said she knew for a fact that if you talk nicely to plants and play pretty music they will flourish. Another reader wrote and asked if the opposite was true — if a person yelled at weeds would it stunt their growth?

Your answer was, "There is no evidence that yelling at weeds will do them any harm."

You ought to read up on the subject, Ann. I have and it is very interesting. Thousands of people swear they have had a lot of success talking to plants. They also claim music can make a big difference. Harsh rock and roll can wither a plant if the sound is loud and persistent. On the other hand, when Liszt and Mozart are played the plants grow very nicely, even after they have been given up for dead.

So PLEASE check your facts before you hand out advice. — Plant Lover In Miami.

Dear Lover: Thanks for an interesting letter but you didn't deal with the central issue. The question was, "Will yelling at weeds stunt their growth?" I said, "No" — and I STILL say no.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell your readers that when they have a family problem the best thing to do is sit down with a pencil and paper and write it all down. Tell it to the stationery. Stay away from the telephone and don't unload on friends.

I made the mistake of confiding in a person I would have bet my life on. She told HER best friend and now I'm in real trouble. Paper can't talk and boy, am I sorry I didn't learn that lesson long ago. Sign me — Big Mouth.

Dear Mouth: Take your lumps and chalk it up to experience. Some people NEVER learn. They make the same mistakes over and over.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism — Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Rebuilding effort underway on Egyptian temples

ASWAN, Egypt (AP) — Philae Island, located on the Nile between the old Aswan Dam and the High Dam, swarms with engineers and Nubian workers in the morning hours and then lies quiet in the heat — a curious mixture of raw French steel and granite temples inscribed 2,000 years ago.

The dangerous work of salvaging 14 temples from a watery grave is over, and the delicate and painstaking task of dismantling the monuments and rebuilding them on Agilika Island, 500 yards away, has begun.

Official estimates for the total cost of the five-year project range from $16 to $19 million, two thirds of which is paid by the U.N. Education, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) and one third by the Egyptian government.

The resident engineer of the Philae Salvage Project, Hanna Butros, admitted work was behind schedule "but we hope the company will finish it in reasonable time, maybe two years."

The company is Condotte-Mazzi-Estero of Italy, which is responsible for the dismantling, surveying, recording and marking of each piece and then their re-assembly in the new setting.

An estimated 60,000 single ton blocks, some of them injected with reinforcing material to preserve them in a new environment after 2,000 years, will be raised by derrick or crane to boats.

Every stone will be taken to a special storage area on the mainland, where the silt of centuries will be washed away and the block restored.

Agilika Island, the new home for the Philae monuments, is not ready. Its elevation must be raised and the ground leveled. Work here fell behind because of the October 1973 Middle East war.

Work on the salvage project began in 1971. A coffer dam of some 5,000 tons of steel sheet piles was built around three quarters of Philae island. Butros said it was the only dam of its kind surrounded by water in Egypt.

For 14 months, 2,000 Nubian workers, who knew the island as Geziret Anas el-Wogud, the name of a hero in one of the stories in "A Thousand and One Nights," labored to erect the steel barriers.

"Luckily," said Butros, "there were no injuries at all, even with exposives used in some places."

Heat stroke on the island, where the atmosphere shimmers like cellophane, was not a problem because the Nubians are accustomed to 100-degrees-plus temperatures.

When the coffer dam was finished in the early spring of 1973, the drying-out process began. Pontoon pumps were floated to lift the water outside the steel confines of the dam. Now 12 deep well pumps spew water 24 hours a day from the pit of Philae Island.

Drying out should be completed by summer, when the ground will be firm enough for trucks. Already wooden pickets block entrance to the Temple of Isis, the fertility goddess.

A string of rusting pontoons extends from the mainland to the site, running over the still submerged northern part of the island. Scuba divers will retrieve the ruins of two temples still under water when the major salvage work is over.

Mr. Steele lived in Sedalia since 1969. He was employed at Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. in St. Louis until his retirement.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Ruby Louis Callis, Miami, Fla.; three brothers, Elliott J. Steele, 1424 East 12th; Emmett Steele, 228 South Quincy; John Steele, Tempe, Ariz.; two sisters, Mrs. Mary Aleene Bergman, 1403 East Sixth; Mrs. Edith Simmons, 1005 East Fourth; five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Monday at the Ewing Funeral Home, with the Rev. Milton Elmore, pastor of the East Sedalia Baptist Church, officiating.

Pallbearers will be Walter Lee Long, Robert Long, Harold Bergman, James Steele, Don Meier, and Glenwood Long.

Burial will be in Crown Hill Cemetery.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 9 p.m. Sunday at the funeral home.

Trena M. Moffatt

Trena M. Moffatt, 86, 1207 East Fourth, died at 4 p.m. Friday at 1217 West Main.

She was born July 2, 1888, at Des Moines, Iowa, daughter of Abraham and Rosa Powell Whitten. She spent her early life in Iowa, where she was reared and educated. She was married in Iowa to Albert A. Moffatt, who died Sept. 11, 1972. They moved to Sedalia several years ago.

Mrs. Moffatt was a member of the Salvation Army.

Surviving are two sons, Alvie Moffatt, 1207 East Fourth; Harry Moffatt, Norfolk, Va.; one daughter, Mrs. James (Eva) Stephens, Kansas City; 36 grandchildren, 10 great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday at the McLaughlin Funeral Home with Capt. Robert Quinn of the Salvation Army officiating.

Pallbearers will be Dan Hearnes, Amos Franklin, Bill Glenn and David Simmons.

Burial will be in Crown Hill Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Sunday.

Mrs. Susan Ann Armstrong

Mrs. Susan Ann Armstrong, 82, 725 West Seventh, died at 6:10 p.m. Saturday at the Lutheran Good Sheperd Nursing Home, Concordia, Mo., where she had been a patient for two and one-half years.

She was born Dec. 24, 1892, in Columbia, Mo. daughter of Samuel and Mary Virginia Shobe Stevinson. She married Frank Armstrong Oct. 6, 1923, in Columbia. Mr. Armstrong, former Pettis County Magistrate Judge, died Nov. 23, 1973.

Mrs. Armstrong was a graduate of the old Christian College High School Academy. She also graduated in 1913 from Columbia College. She lived in Sedalia since 1923, and before her illness was a member of the First Christian Church, S.W.F. and Group 2. Mrs. Armstrong was also a member of the Sorosis-Osage Chapter of the D.A.R., and Sedalia Garden Club No. 2. She was a Red Cross nurse's aide during and after World War II.

She is survived by one son, Frank T. Armstrong, Clayton, Mo.; one daughter, Mrs. Virginia Harms, 725 West Seventh; two grandsons; two granddaughters; one great-granddaughter; and one nephew, Robert S. Mead, Weston, Mo.

The body is at the McLaughlin Funeral Home where funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Patrol car bubble.. gone in a flash

Sedalia police car No. 11 will be without its red, revolving roof bubble for a short while, according to police.

Just who absconded with the warning device, or where the theft occurred Friday night isn't known. But police reported the bubble was last seen about 9 p.m. Friday while parked at 317 West Seventh. The device is valued at $55.

Police gave no further details on the theft Saturday night.

YF16 favored over French model

Belguim buys American jets

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Belgium decided Saturday to buy the American YF16 jet fighter rather than the French Mirage, paving the way for the biggest series of sales, a multibillion dollar deal, in the history of aviation.

Belgium joins Holland, Denmark and Norway to take 306 planes, nearly $1.9 billion worth at $6.1 million each. Beginning in 1979 they replace the F104 Starfighter. Additional orders are expected later both from these four countries and from other West European allies.

The U.S. Air Force wants at least 650. With the psychological boost from the European purchase, representatives of General Dynamics Corp. are expected to push even harder for sales around the globe from Japan to Chile. They hope to sell as many as 3,000, which would be more than $18 billion worth.

In Paris, General Dynamics Board Chairman David F. Lewis, attending the international air show, said it was "a great day" not only for the company and the United States but also for the Western alliance. But French Premier Jacques Chirac, in a speech to 4,000 guests at the air show, said, "We were very disappointed by this decision and the government will now take whatever action is necessary to support the momentum of the French aeronautics industry."

In Ft. Worth, Tex., where the F16 is built, city leaders, politicians and others called the Belgian decision "great news ... tremendous ... a coup." A General Dynamics spokesman at corporate headquarters in St. Louis, Mo., said the company felt the NATO consortium "couldn't have made a better choice."

It was fierce competition in Belgium. Both President Ford and Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France saw Belgian Premier Leo Tindemans last month and talked about the deal. Earlier there had been repeated charges of bribery and undue political pressure.

Belgium has strong ties with France, sentimental as well as economic. Tindemans tried to use the prospect of a big order for the Mirage to win Giscard's support for a united European aircraft industry to compete with big American firms like General Dynamics.

Tindemans failed. In announcing the decision he told reporters:

"The Belgian government regrets that on the occasion of this replacement in our country it proved impossible to set up the basis for a European aircraft industry, which should be one of our most advanced industries in the future."

He said Belgium would buy 102 American planes to replace 116 Starfighters. The price of the other 14—about $84 million—will be put aside for a European aircraft research and development fund. There is no such fund yet, but Tindemans said he would try to get it set up.

Before the decision was made there was some last minute tension in Brussels. Representatives of the smallest party in the Belgian government threatened to force its resignation. The party, called the Rassemblement Wallon, represents part of the French speaking minority in Belgium. Early Saturday morning the party's national committee told its representatives in the cabinet to hold out for the Mirage—but apparently it stopped short of asking them to resign if they failed.

On Tuesday Tindemans will go before Parliament to explain the government's decision. A vote of confidence is expected Thursday.

The four European countries, all members of NATO, formed a consortium to buy the same plane. The idea was to get a better bargain and simplify military operations.

The British-French Jaguar and the Swedish Viggen Eurofighter were also in the competition. But the race was largely between the American and the French planes. When the U.S. Air Force announced its choice of the YF16, its chances improved considerably.

The defense ministers of the four countries agreed that it was better and cheaper.

Egyptian commitment seen as a step toward peace

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli officials said Saturday that an Egyptian commitment to a long term interim agreement with Israel "would bring us much closer to a new partial settlement."

A Foreign Ministry official said Premier Yitzhak Rabin's talks next week in Washington would be "exploratory," and Rabin probably would not bring a new Israeli peace plan with him.

"Rabin will discuss procedures for negotiations toward an interim settlement," the official said.

He said he was "hesitant to be optimistic" about a new agreement with the Egyptians. But he said that a commitment from Cairo to renew the U.N. peacekeeping mandate in Sinai for three years or more could mean a breakthrough in peace efforts.

In other Middle East developments:

—The Cairo weekly newspaper Akhbar el Yom said Israel will sign a disengagement accord with Egypt in two months, withdrawing its forces from the Gidi and Mitla passes and the Abu Rudeis oilfields in Sinai. It said final details would be worked out by President Ford and Rabin in Washington next week.

—A small bomb exploded under a truck in Nablus in the occupied west bank of Jordan, slightly damaging the truck but causing no injuries, officials said. The truck was fitted to carry passengers. In the past Arab guerrillas have bombed similar trucks in an attempt to discourage Arab laborers from working in Israel.

One reason why Israeli-Egyptian peace negotiations broke down in March was that Israel insisted that any agreement last for at least three years. At the time Egypt refused, but reports from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's meetings in Salzburg with President Ford earlier this week said Egypt was now ready to make a three-year agreement.

However, the Israeli official cautioned that there were other reasons the March peace talks, conducted by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, failed. Israel also sought military concessions and a lessening of the Arab economic boycott and hostile Arab propaganda toward Israel. Without concessions on these issues as well, Israel might still refuse to come to terms with Egypt, the official said.

Jury divided in SLA trial

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The jury is divided 10-2 in the murder trial of two Symbionese Liberation Army "soldiers," the trial judge said Saturday.

But the judge did not reveal whether the majority of the jury favors conviction or acquittal of Joseph Remiro and Russell Little.

The report of the 10-2 split of jurors came in the ninth day of deliberations.

The Little-Remiro trial went to the jury May 30 after seven weeks of testimony on the Nov. 6, 1973, assassination of Oakland School Supt. Marcus Foster in a school district parking lot and the wounding of Foster's assistant, Robert Blackburn.

Superior Court Judge Elvin Sheehy called the jury of eight women and four men back into court for a third reading of his instructions and a review of testimony of prosecution witness John Lenser.

Sheehy told the jurors that their bailiff had reported to him that they were split 10-2. The judge immediately cautioned the jury not to tell the court which way the majority stood. Jury foreman William Sprague acknowledged that the 10-2 division was correct.

Sheehy sent the jurors back into deliberations after he asked Sprague if they felt more deliberations would be fruitful. The jury foreman replied, "Yes."

Sheehy reread his instructions on conspiracy law and circumstantial evidence.

The jury also heard another reading of testimony which they first had reread Friday involving Remiro's cross-examination of Lenser, a criminal justice planning official who testified about a student identifiction program which Foster had instituted in Oakland schools to crack down on delinquency.

The day after Foster's murder, the SLA claimed responsibility for the killing, saying it was motivated by the student identification program.

It was the first public notice of the terrorist SLA, which three months later kidnaped newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst. She later said she had become a member of the group.

Neither Blackburn nor any other prosecution witness at the two-month trial could identify Little or Remiro as any of the three persons seen running from the death scene.

But the state contends the defendants took part in an SLA murder plot, which under law would make them guilty of murder.

French prostitutes stage sit-ins for recognition

PARIS (AP) — French prostitutes spread their church sit-ins to Paris and other cities Saturday, pushing demands that the world's oldest profession be formally recognized as a job like any other. One of the movement's leaders, in an effort to buttress the prostitutes' cause, declared "most of us are good mothers."

Other prostitutes in the Riviera resorts of Cannes and Nice went "on strike" over the weekend and kept off their normal sidewalk beats in solidarity with the demonstrators.

About 200 girls flocked to a modern chapel in a new office development in central Paris overnight. Another 200 occupied a church in Marseille, about 100 were in the sixth day of occuption of a major church in Lyon, where the sit-in action started, and a smaller group took over a church annex in Grenoble, leaving the church itself free for services.

In Paris, a prostitute named Valerie explained their grievances:

"Above all we want to be officially recognized so that all kinds of insults end and we can lead a normal life when work is over. And we don't want our normal (male) companion to risk arrest for pimping, and that our children—because most of us are good mothers— should no longer be taken from us under any circumstances.

"We are ready to pay reasonable income taxes and contribute for social security and, why not, to a pension fund."

A spokesman for an antiprostitution group, John Schelles, suggested that the real reason for the demonstrations was senate consideration of a new bill designed to crack down harder on pimps and others living off the earnings of prostitution.

The bill already has been passed by the lower house.

Earthquake jars California with 5.4 on Richter

FORTUNA, Calif. (AP) — Damage reports poured in Saturday as residents on the southern tip of Humboldt Bay cleaned up after the strongest earthquake to hit this Northen California coastal area in two decades.

Police said the jolt, registering 5.4 on the Richter scale, caused no injuries, but it shattered windows, shook buildings, heaved people out of bed and toppled chimneys.

"You could see some movement of buildings, they would sway perceptibly," said officer Paul Blake. "Some people were physically tossed from their beds."

Blake, who felt the quake while in his patrol car, said, "It was not a sharp jolt. It was more like a rolling." He said it was the strongest tremor to strike the area since 1954.

Pacific Gas & Electric officials said the quake did not damage the nuclear power plant at Humboldt Bay. They said it loosened a few substation fuses and some residents were briefly without power.

Police report theft of stereo equipment

A stereo tape player and speakers, valued at $299.99, and $140 in tapes were taken from a car owned by Howard Bechtel, 2109 West Third, between May 30 and June 1, according to police. Bechtel reported the theft Friday afternoon and said the car was parked in front of his house since May 30. A vent glass had been pried open to gain entry to the car.

Property valued at $88 was taken from the East Sedalia Baptist Church, 1019 East Fifth, during the night Thursday. The church's minister of music, Carl Rhoads, 1402 South Mildred, told police a cassette tape recorder, two staplers and a screwdriver were taken. Entry was gained through a basement window and two doors were pried open.

Else Harris, 110 West 32nd, reported to police Thursday that $140 worth of yard ornaments were taken from her front yard between Tuesday and Thursday.

Bogus check charges filed against man

Sedalia police arrested an 18-year-old man Friday afternoon at Consumer's Market, Thompson Hills Shopping Center, on a charge of issuing an insufficient funds check.

David Lee Hasty, address unknown, attempted to issue a check on an account at the Smithton Bank. According to police, he used the name of Steve Harris on the check. Police said an employe at Consumer's told them Hasty had been in the store Thursday night and had cashed a check he allegedly had obtained from another person.

The bank reported it carried a checking account for Steve Harris, but the account only contained $2.

Hasty was transferred Saturday from the city jail to the Pettis County jail where he remains without bond.

In other police news, Joseph Allen Glass, 30, 205 South Massachusetts, was arrested Saturday afternoon on a Toledo, Ohio, felony warrant. Glass is charged with receiving stolen property, police said. He remains in the city jail.

Local woman charged with petite larceny

Police arrested a 19-year-old girl Friday afternoon for petite larceny.

According to police, Nancy Moore, 19, 522 South Washington, allegedly talked a nine-year-old girl into stealing over $50 from the girl's mother. The girl reportedly took the money from her mother's purse.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Robert Liston said Saturday night Miss Moore allegedly used the stolen money to buy the nine-year-old girl a dress. He indicated charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor were not filed because that charge also would have to be filed against the juvenile. He also said not all of the stolen money was used and the remaining amount was returned to the girl's mother.

Question
Do insurance companies pay the face value of a life insurance policy in the case of death by suicide? Is suicide regarded as an accidental death in considering settlement on double indemnity insurance policies?

Answer
An insurance company is bound by the laws and regulations of the state in which a settlement is made for an insured who takes his own life. This may be a return of premiums if the policy has been in effect over one year in certain states or over two years in others.
In New York the insurance company must prove the insured was sane in order to limit its liability to a return of premiums.
In Missouri the company must prove the insured contemplated suicide at the time of application otherwise the face amount is payable.
Death by suicide is not an accidental death. Any policy containing a double indemnity clause is limited to an amount otherwise payable for natural causes.

Unanimous support for Bond's veto action

Readers who answered last Sunday's Democrat-Capital Survey gave unanimous support to Gov. Christopher Bond's veto of a bill to raise salaries for state legislators. A total of 28 replies were received.

The question was: "Gov. Christopher Bond has vetoed a bill to give legislators a 47 per cent pay increase, while criticizing the move as an attempt to make the Legislature a full-time job. The pay raise would have boosted salaries from $8,400 to $12,400 a year. Do you agree with the governor's veto?"

Vernon Demand, 314 East 25th, wrote, "I am a strong Democrat, but I will and must say Gov. Bond is dead right when he vetoed that attempt to steal a wad of money ... We have too much of this stuff going on now."

A Cole Camp reader who did not want to be identified wrote, "The veto shows that there is one man elected ... that still has common sense. An increase in pay of $4,000 is unheard of. Crazy."

DEMOCRAT- CAPITAL SURVEY

QUESTION — The City Council has called for a bond issue vote Aug. 5 to authorize acquisition of 100 acres for an industrial park to be financed out of sales tax revenues. Based on what you know of the proposal, do you favor it?

Mrs. V. L. Shipwright, 1001 South Limit, wrote: "The legislators constantly remind us they vote the voice of the people. I believe their ears are plugged as it seems as if the majority feel that this pay raise comes at an inopportune time. A 47 per cent increase is shocking ... The proponents of this bill say it should attract a better class of candidates — really is too bad we don't have a better class now so they could recognize our current financial problems. Hurrah for the veto!"

Another reader said, "I agree whole-heartedly with the governor's veto. With the economic situation as it is, the Legislature doesn't need such a big raise, or any raise at all. The taxpayers have to live on their same income — let the Legislature do the same. They squabble all the time among themselves and get nothing done anyway."

C. G. Satterwhite, 2109 South Harrison, wrote: "I think the governor was right in vetoing the bill as it stands, but I believe the House of Representatives is entirely too large. If the number of representatives were reduced from the present number of 163 to about 85 or 90, then the 47 per cent increase in pay would be justified. With the modern means of communication and transportation, I see no reason why each representative could not cover twice as much territory as they could years ago."

Frank D. Cook, 1203 South Massachusetts, said, "The dudes who voted to do this will likely want an added rebate — for what they haven't done. To me, a man's patriotism is at a low ebb who would do such a thing in a time of real crisis ... It takes a lot of guts, when hundreds of their constituents are out of work. A good portion of them don't earn now what they get. I commend Bond for what he did."

Another reader who asked not to be named wrote, "I think our governor is right in vetoing this bill. We are trying to get this inflation over with and all these legislators want is more money to do nothing."

AFS student

Miss Elizabeth Jean Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Zoo gets steam locomotive

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — An antique engine with "oomph and grunt" may soon become the nation's only operating European steam locomotive, officials say.

A gift to Henry-Doorly Zoo here, the 85-year-old train carried freight in Austria, the Soviet Union and Romania before being shipped to the United States, according to Zoo Director Dr. Lee Simmons.

Phased out in the 1960s, there are now "very few operable steam engines in the country," according to Union Pacific Chief Engineer Robert Brown. "People in this country have never seen a locomotive like this one," he added.

Built in Linz, Austria, and purhased in 1969 by an Austrian firm, the locomotive was donated during an Omaha visit by the firm's president, Joseph Theurer of Vienna.

The $150,000 engine will initially serve as an alternate for the zoo's newer model, a replica of a train that ran 100 years ago at Promontory, Utah.

"Steam engines are becoming a lost art. That's why our current one has been so popular. There just isn't any place you can go now and see a steam engine," Simmons commented. "I think there are a lot of people who come to the zoo simply to ride the train."

Officials still aren't sure when the Austrian train will be ready to roll. "But you can bet I'll be one of the first passengers," said Simmons.

The old engine could turn out to be a long-term attraction at the zoo. "With proper maintenance, they can be kept going practically forever," said Simmons. Currently, a crew is working to install an air brake system necessary for the zoo grounds' steep inlines.

Zoo officials are now "looking all over the country" for railroad cars with a 30-inch gauge, the width between wheels "Standard gauge" became 56½ inches around the turn of the century, Brown explained.

The locomotive could haul seven to eight such cars and transport about 200 persons an hour, Simmons said.

"There are more adults' tickets sold than kids'. The older folks get just as big a bang ot of it as the kids," said Brown, a member of the zoo's board of directors.

Brown said retired engineers have trained younger engineers to operate the engines, because "Not very many engineers know how to run the big steam locomotive."

Hardhat musicians receive praise

By JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Members of one of the world's great orchestras huddled in a musty, unheated London church last winter to undertake a major new recording of the six symphonies of Carl Nielsen.

Despite the primitive conditions, critics have hailed the recordings by the London Symphony Orcestra as "brilliant" — one more bit of proof that London is the music capital of the world.

"This country is without any question the center of music-making in the Western world," said Andre Previn, the London Symphony's permanent conductor. "But yu have no idea how difficult it is to play any musical instrument when your fingers are freezing. Our concert halls are in such demand, they're simply not available for rehearsing."

London boasts four self-governing, independent orchestras of world standing, but each is plagued by money problems and lack of facilities. Often they must rehearse in three different places a day.

Previn is heading a campaign to raise money for converting Holy Trinity Church, now unused, into the orchestras' first permanent rehearsal hall. His own orchestra is already rehearsing there, sometimes wearing hardhats because of rebuilding work.

Born in Berlin, Previn made his name in the United States as a jazz pianist and composer of film scores. He came to London in 1968.

He lives outside London with his wife, American actress Mia Farrow, and their four children.

Pianist Alfred Brendel, 44, a Mozart specialist, says "London is the music center of Europe because there are five orchestras of nearly similar quality which none of the other big cities have."

The English appetite for music is legend. London's choral traditions began in the Middle Ages. In the 1670's London offered Europe's first extensive public concerts and the 18th Century brought the English love affair with and the music of J.C. (The London) Bach and Haydn.

This year, there have been a dozen musicals in London's West End, including a revival of Leonard Bernstein's "West Side Story" and Previn's "The Good Companions," with lyrics by Johnny Mercer.

The London Symphony, founded in 1904, claims to be the most recorded London orchestra. It worked for 25 recording companies in 1974.

The London Philharmonic Orchestra, the first Western orchestra to visit China, shares its chief conductor, Bernard Haitink, with the Amsterdam Concertgebouw.

The New Philharmonia Orchestra has slumped since the death of the great Otto Klemperer but has great hopes under its new conductor, Riccardo Muti of Italy.

The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, founded in 1946, shares its German conductor, Rudolf Kempe, with Munich and Zurich. Kempe is being replaced this year by the Hungarian Antal Dorati.

The orchestra of the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, is conducted by the highly regarded Colin Davis, while Charles Mackerras directs the English National Opera Orchestra.

In addition, London boasts the BBC Symphony, which shares its conductor, Pierre Boulez, with the New York Philharmonic. Boulez is being replaced by Kempe.

Yehudi Menuhin, the American violinist-conductor, who founded his own music school here, believes the BBC is the moving force behind England's craving for music.

"A person who was sick and didn't leave his house would get a better music education in England than anywhere else in theworld," he said in an interview.

Graduates facing dim prospects

FT. LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP) — The U.S. Command and General Staff College graduated seven men without a country Friday.

They are four Vietnamese and three Cambodian officers whose governments, since they entered the advanced military training course last June, have fallen under Communist control.

Only the Vietnamese were identified. They are Col. Nguyen Van Hao, 40; Lt. Col. Phan Trong Simh, 40; Lt. Col. Huynh Vinh Lai, 42, and Lt. Col. Tran Van Thuong, 35.

The only life they have known is the military. Three of the Vietnamese officers have been fighting the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese since 1954. All would have returned to lead fellow countrymen into battle.

"It was very, very painful for all of us here," said Hao, the senior officer. "Now we find we have no opportunity to use our military knowledge. We must become civilians in a new country."

They must either find jobs or an American sponsor by June 30, or they will be sent to refugee camps.

When they first learned of the massive South Vietnamese retreat in March, the officers sought permission to return to the fighting.

"We wanted to go back, but our embassy in Washington wouldn't allow us to go home," Sinh explained. "We were directed to continue in the course. They felt we would be needed later."

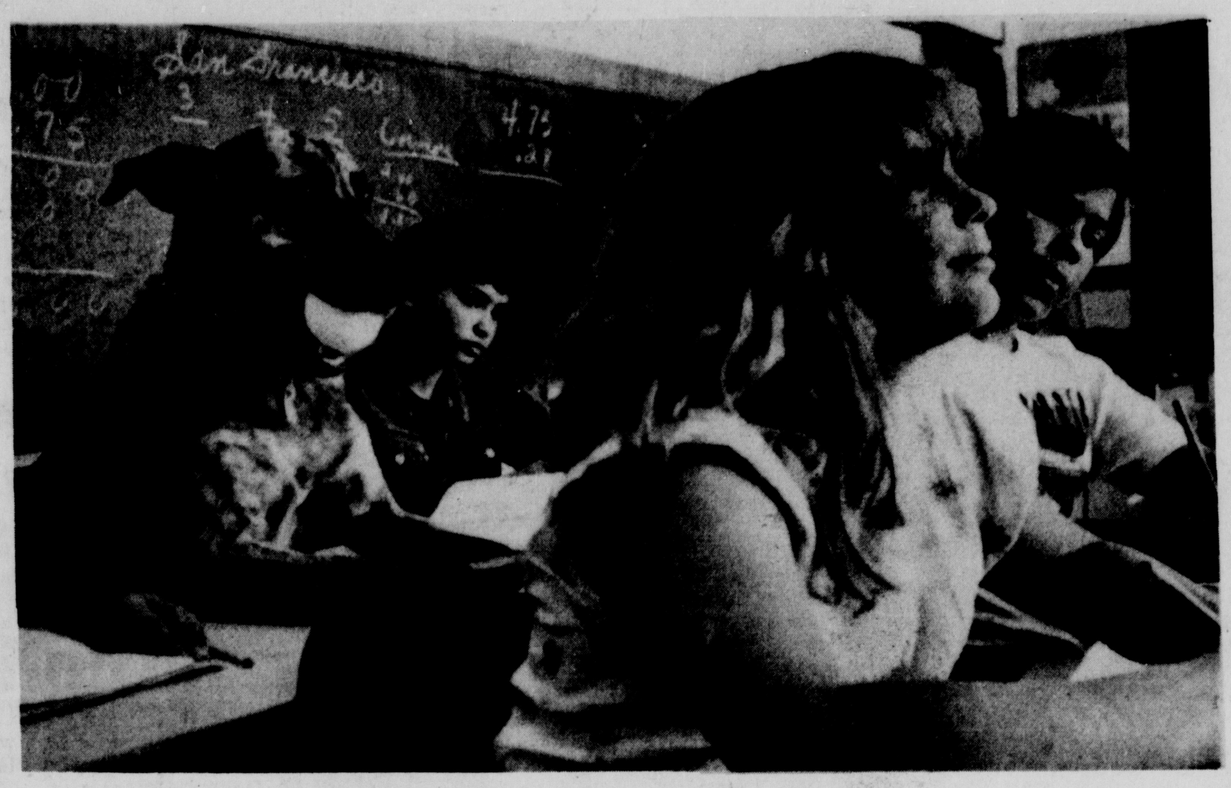

Thuong's family is still in Vietnam. The families of the other three Vietnamese officers are in refugee camps in this country.

"If I can't make it here, I will go home to become a POW and not know my fate," he said.

Col. W. P. Pipkin, staff college director of allied personnel, has been working with civic and volunteer groups in an effort to find sponsors and jobs which will allow the officers to relocate in the United States.

Classmates have conducted a fund drive to aid them, and estimate about $6,000 will be collected before June 30.

"If we don't get jobs, we cannot survive," Lai said. "We will do the best we can."

Ready and waiting

"Tiger," a four-year-old pooch, holds a ball in his mouth as he waits for his owner, Denise Paradise, 11, right foreground, a member of a Little League team, to finish classes on the last day of school at Roosevelt School in Salinas, Calif., before the start of summer vacation. School officials allowed Denise to bring her pet to school for the day.

Spending trends are stronger

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumer spending began to show signs of strengthening this past week.

Statistics issued by two hard hit industries, retail chains and auto makers, suggested American consumers are slowly regaining confidence.

Manufacturers Hanover Trust economist Irwin Kellner said new spending may have been spurred by the tax rebate checks many Americans have been receiving, although that money probably only helped sales on smaller retail items, certainly not cars.

Retail sales in May at the nation's biggest chain stores had their best monthly gains of the year. The rise was led by S.S. Kresge whose sales jumped 25 per cent from a year ago, and 41 per cent of the previous month.

Retailers hesitated to say the May figures marked the beginning of a full-fledged sales recovery from their six-month slump. Some like Kresge attributed their gains to fortuitous things like warm spring weather that stimulated sales in apparel, lawn and garden equipment.

Likewise, car makers and auto analysts viewed with caution the better-than-expected May car sales figures issued last week.

Detroit auto makers said new car sales fell 16 per cent in May and new car deliveries declined 21 per cent to the lowest levels in 14 years.

But they and others took heart from figures showing the seasonally adjusted car sales rate last month rose considerably from April levels.

While auto makers and economists seemed inclined to put a happy face on the auto sales figures, few expect better than a gradual recovery to develop in the coming months.

That the return of consumer confidence will be a slow process was also demonstrated by government figures showing consumer credit dropped a seasonally adjusted $100 millon in April following a $462 million plunge in March. Most of the decline appeared to reflect a reduction in auto loans outstanding.

While some recent economic figures of a recovery, unemployment figures remained gloomy. On Friday, the government said the unemployment rate reached 9.2 per cent in May, a post World War II high. But there was a bright spot, too, as the size of the work force gained by 680,000 persons.

On the price front, there was talk last week that domestic sugar growers, who have seen the price of their product fall to about 15 cent a pound from last November's record highs of 65.5 cents, may press Congress to reimpose price supports.

Wisconsin spots are saloons

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Taverns in Wisconsin now can call themselves saloons under a court ruling being hailed as a victory for both free speech and unpretentious drinkers.

Circuit Judge Richard Bardwell struck down on Thursday a state law prohibiting drinking establishments from billing themselves as "saloons."

His ruling also declared unconstitutional a Madison ordinance against the use of the word.

"It is time we realized that this is 1975, not 1919," Bardwell said. "There is no longer anything opprobrious or disdainful about the word saloon."

The city attorney's office in Madison fought to keep the ban, arguing that the word saloon had been barred from taverns names in the wake of repeal of prohibition in 1933.

City officials said the law was enacted to protect the image of taverns. They said that to many persons a saloon was a wide-open, swinging-door establishment.

"At the time, the word saloon apparently had a connotation which was unappealing to many people," Bardwell said. "While the word may have had a negative connotation 40 years or so ago, I take notice of the fact there no longer exists any negative connotation."

Republican state Sen. Ernest Keppler of Sheboygan, who unsuccessfully attempted to repeal the ban on the word "saloon" in 1973, praised Bardwell's decision as "elementary in the matter of free speech."

James K. Eken, son of Mr. and Mrs. Truman C. Eken, Lincoln, was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Force at his graduation from the Air Force Academy. He earned a bachelor of science degree. Eken majored in management and will be stationed at Whiteman AFB.

While at the academy, he received special recognition by being named to the Commandant's List for military excellence. Lt. Eken is a 1970 graduate of Benton County R-2 High School.

Symington to seek office of his father

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Rep. James Symington, D-Mo., met with Kansas City Democrats Friday, then told newsmen he would seek the U.S. Senate seat his father is vacating unless "something mysteriously pops up to discourage me."

He called his meetings with party leaders encouraging.

Symington has been mentioned as a possible candidate to succeed Sen. Stuart Symington, who has said he will not seek another term next year.

Three other candidates have already filed for the post — former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, former Jackson County prosecutor Joseph Teasdale and Michael J. Kennedy, former Jackson County magistrate.

Child testing specialists

Begin final stage of testing

In what will be the third stage of a program started in October, 1973, staff members of the Virginia Flower Child Development and Rehabilitation Center will administer developmental tests this summer to county children from ages nine months to five years.

Children living in the Smithton, Dresden, Green Ridge, LaMonte and Houstonia areas will be tested to determine their speech and language skills, balance, coordination and social self-help skills.

The testing schedule is as follows: Smithton School, Monday through June 12; Dresden School, June 16-19; Green Ridge School, June 23-26; LaMonte School, June 30-July 3; and Houstonia Baptist Church, July 7-10. Parents may call 826-4400 collect to set up a testing appointment for their child.

If the test results indicate a child would profit from certain therapy center programs, steps will be taken to help the child, center director Roger Garlich said.

"We certainly do not intend to leave anybody hanging," he explained. "If we can help them, we will. Either by getting them enrolled in special classes or, if that is not feasible, perhaps organizing special classes near his home and away from the center building."

In order to inform as many parents as possible, explanatory brochures have been mailed to county residents, Garlich said.

He estimated approximately 550 youths are eligible for such testing this summer. The testing will be done in a mobile van.

"We're just seeking to reach as many youngsters as possible," Garlich said. "When this phase of the program is over, we will have reached about all the youngsters we intended to at the outset."

Following the completion of the final phase of the testing program, all test findings will be evaluated collectively to obtain overall statistics regarding developmental patterns among children in the county. The evauations should be completed some time in the fall, it was reported.

Gets prison sentence

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A Kansas City man convicted of robbing a Moberly bank was sentenced Friday to 20 years in prison by U.S. District Judge H. Kenneth Wangelin.

Charles Rose, 22, was convicted last month of robbing the Moberly City Bank and Trust Co. of $14,147 in January.

Old Amsterdam being renovated

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Amsterdam, long renowned for the great merchant houses which line its main canals, has chosen an old working class neighborhood as a "pilot project" for European Architectural Heritage Year 1975.

The Jordaan, lying close to the city center, has evolved over the years from a crowded quarter famed for its neighborly atmosphere to a chic locale favored by students, advertising men, hippies and the arty set.

Formerly an area of small farms within the city wall, the neighborhood received large numbers of French and Italian immigrants in the 17th and 18th centuries and the name of the district is thought to derive from the French "jardin" (garden).

Restoration of the Jordaan had been going on for years but accelerated in 1961 when the Dutch Monuments Act set up national guidelines for classifying monuments, guaranteeing their protection and granting subsidies for their preservation.

The first restoration job in the neighborhood was started in 1943, when pro-Nazi government officials, eager to foster the concept of a common Dutch-German tradition, granted a large subsidy to rebuild a 17th-century canal house.

In 1974, officials of Amsterdam's monument service decided to take a closer look at buildings which, though not classified under Dutch law as monuments, "because of their beauty, significance for science or ethnological value," are important to the character of the neighborhood and deserve special attention.

Huib Rowaan of the city's Department of Monument Protection points out that while 844 of some 3,300 buildings in the Jordaan are legally designated as monuments, an additional 1,300 are unofficially classified as of important character.

"The owners of these houses aren't officially entitled to restoration subsidies, but we try to help them a little here, a little there," Rowaan said. "Some of the building inspectors now take these people's problems to heart and come to see if we can help them."

Architectural Heritage Year is aimed at preventing Europe's nobler buildings from crumbling into decay or falling before the bulldozer. Rowaan said the city of Amsterdam had four pilot projects on hand, of which the Jordaan is probably the most sweeping.

While "The Year" has not produced fundamental changes in Dutch policies, he added, "it may now be a little easier to get money. Also, registration and documentation of monuments have speeded up."

Encouragement was hardly needed in Holland. Hundreds of the country's 40,000 protected monuments have already been restored, and the State Monument Service has plans to spend about $30 million under established programs in 1975. However, even combined with provincial and municipal funds, the budget will still fall short of demand.

"Once, people wanted to get rid of old 'worthless' objects," said Monument Service Information Director A. P. Smaal. "In the wake of the depression years and the war, old buildings reminded them of being poor and gave them a feeling of discomfort.

"Nowadays, what they threw out in the '50s, they're tacking up on the wall. There's an element of nostalgia in it, but that's not all. Old things have more of their own atmosphere, they feel more familiar."

Smaal said the concrete, glass and steel look excited the public at first, but after 25 years people are no longer enthralled. "The intimacy is not there," he explained. "Old buildings are on a smaller, lower scale, and come across as more human."

The Monument Service is currently faced with an annual cost increase of about 17 per cent and a lack of skilled craftsmen. Holland's worsening unemployment (about five per cent of the labor force) may provide a solution to the latter.

A Dutch government decision to provide public works jobs for the unemployed could turn over 8,000 able-bodied workers to restoration projects. This would mean at least a fourfold rise in the present force, and by far the most intense activity ever.

Under the 1961 act, buildings more than 50 years old can be declared monuments. This protects them from unauthorized alteration and destruction. Restoration can be subsidized up to 30 per cent by the state, 10 per cent by the province and 30 per cent by the municipality.

Last year, subsidies and private investment accounted for a total of about $65 million spent on restoration.

Telephone workman electrocuted on job

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A Bell Telephone workman from Bonnots Mill, Mo. was electrocuted here Friday when a line he was helping string apparently touched a 72,000-volt electrical wire.

The victim was identified as 26-year-old William Eynard.

Police said Eynard and three other men were working in the northwest part of Pineville, pulling a line over a crossarm on a telephone pole.

Why custom-build?
"I'd like to say I saved 20 to 25 thousand dollars!"
Mr. & Mrs. Gary Pederson Maple Grove, Minn.

Custom-building means we erect your home on your lot . . . you handle the finishing work. Or subcontract it.

The Gary Pedersons actually did most of their finishing work themselves, contracted some of it. "I don't care if you contract the whole, complete home out, you're still going to come out ahead," claims Gary. By his estimate, he "came out ahead" about $23,500!

So, couldn't this be your way into a new home? Financing? We'll handle it for you. With no points, closing costs or hidden "surprises." "We'll custom-design your home for you too . . . no charge. We have a book for you that spells it all out . . . why not send for it? Then perhaps we'll build something good together . . . soon.

This is the home the Pedersons custom-built.

U.S. aid mission in Laos to close soon now

EDITOR'S NOTE — The American presence is gone now from South Vietnam and Cambodia. In Laos, the third of the Indochina states, the American presence is rapidly disappearing after 20 years of deep commitment and involvement. Here is a report on what is going on in Laos.

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — The American era in Laos began 20 years ago with a handful of advisers in a field tent and it is coming now to an end with students outside the once vast United States aid mission shouting for Yankees to go home.

In those 20 years the United States sent the Laotians a billion dollars in economic aid alone. More was sent in the shape of military help and technical personnel who advised Laotians on the building of roads and other projects.

The U.S. Embassy in Laos, the third of the Indochina countries, is still open but its staff dwindles daily. American embassies closed down in Cambodia and South Vietnam as those countries fell to the Communists in April. The American presence there is now gone.

As for the U.S. aid mission here, it's all over but the paperwork and the handing over of the keys.

It has been the American aid program rather than U.S. politics in Laos that has taken the brunt of recent student and Pathet Lao anger. On placards and in their speeches and private conversations, anti-American demonstrators equate the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) with the Central Intelligence Agency, with Lao generals and civilian leaders who they charge were corrupt and with a picture of Laos under the thumbs of a big power. No longer is there talk of the hospitals and classrooms built, the rice provided and the people trained.

In addition to the billion dollars in eonomic aid for Laos the United States sent in thousands of administrators and technicians to carry out the program. Some of them, whether they came under the official umbrella or privately, attained folk hero status and helped tone down the old "Ugly American" image. There were men like Tom Dooley, the doctor who brought medical care down to the villagers, and Edgar "Pop" Buell, the farmer who pulled up his Indiana roots and spent a decade in the mountains with the Meo tribesmen, getting them food, medicine and education.

USAID built 1,400 miles of roads, it fed a quarter-million refugees a year. By 1973, almost 80 per cent of the country's elementary school classrooms had been built by USAID.

Some here now say the very vastness of the USAID program was probably the cause of its undoing. Americans built up their own self-contained organization that eventually evolved into what one top U.S. official recently called "a shadow government, almost."

"We ran Laos like a colony. It wasn't just an aid program," one veteran USAID official recalled. Another said, "Before 1973, we were operationally involved in the affairs of the country because the government could not do it. They had no funds and the war sapped all their strength. Certainly, animosity was built up against us."

Asked about being "operationally involved," the official said: "The government needed a jeep, for example. But it had neither the money to buy it, a man to drive it, or gasoline to get it running. So we provided all three and naturally had a lot to say about where that jeep went and what it was used for."

USAID had a large Vientiane headquarters and 50 American-staffed provincial offices, each with their coordinators, community development advisers and specialists in agriculture, public health, refugees and other areas. Each Lao government ministry had its American counterpart in the USAID structure.

Westerners with knowledge of U.S. operations in Laos say information fed to the U.S. mission from various aid sites was made available to the CIA and the U.S. military. The country team concept — getting all American agencies in Vientiane together to hammer out strategy — did little to keep aid and intelligence apart, the experts said, and this was harped upon by the students and the Pathet Lao bent on getting rid of USAID.

Some experts say the U.S. effort in Laos and Southeast Asia was harmed from the very beginning, when Washington went all out to support the French in their war with the Viet Minh and did not discern subtle distinctions between hard-core communism and the genuine nationalism of men like Prince Souvanna Phouma, a neutralist who is premier.

In 1960, the United States backed rightist Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, forcing Souvanna Phouma to flee.

During the 1960s — the time of greatest U.S. involvement here — the Americans spent about $80 million a year equipping, training and transporting a royal Lao army.

Despite that large American aid effort, the gap between the rich in Vientiane and the poor in the countryside actually grew wider. While Vientiane became full of American goods, the yearly per capita income of the rural dweller increased only from $60 to $70 between 1965 and 1970, according to available statistics.

The Programs Evaluation Office in the mid to late 1950s was the first of a series of secret military missions the United States set up in Laos. In 1961, President John F. Kennedy sent in several hundred U.S. Special Forces experts, also known as the Green Berets, to train Meo guerrillas under Gen. Vang Pao, as a match for the build-up of Soviet-supplied Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese troops.

Adhering to the 1962 Geneva agreements on Laos, the United States withdrew the Green Berets and other military personnel but resumed arms shipments in 1964. That year, U.S. reconnaissance flights began and were soon followed by tactical air strikes and B52 bomber raids against the Ho Chi Minh trail in eastern Laos and Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese forces on the Plain of Jars.

The Americans also outfitted and paid about 17,000 mercenaries from neighboring Thailand.

The eastern panhandle was described once by Souvanna Phouma as "a barren zone" and the war there "an affair between the Americans and the North Vietnamese." The military presence of both sides was a violation of the 1962 Geneva agreements, and was never approved by Souvanna Phouma.

By 1973, the year of the cease-fire and coalition in Laos, events in Indochina began to fall in favor of the Pathet Lao. Communist victories in South Vietnam and Cambodia this spring gave the Pathet Lao the final boost of energy and confidence to virtually topple an already weak system.

The present coalition government maintains that it wishes to keep a U.S. Embassy here and hopes for continued American aid, without strings.

Both American and Lao sources say the U.S. Congress, in view of developments in all Indochina, might cut off all help to Laos in the next fiscal year.

But the effects of U.S aid are not likely to vanish with the last of the Americans. Roads, hospitals, wells and dams remain. Other projects, according to USAID experts, may fall into disrepair through lack of trained personnel and funds. The haste in the turnover of USAID operations will probably destroy others, they add.

According to original plans USAID's public health program would have taken four years to transfer to the Laos. Now it is being done with the stroke of a pen.

Much is gone forever. "Pop" Buell has left Laos. Dr. Dooley has died. Vang Pao fled to Thailand and thousands of loyal Meo tribesmen are trying to follow him.

The Pentagon still lists 275 Americans as missing in action in Laos, most of them victims of the air war over the Ho Chi Minh trail. Another 303 are listed as killed in action.

In the USAID headquarters building, cardboard cartons are being filled with files and documents of two decades for shipment to Washington.

Graphs charting the progress of this or that program still hang on the walls and computer printouts with countless statistics rest on some of the now-empty desks.

There are also some thin booklets lying around, ones that used to be handed to Americans arriving for their assignment in Laos. The introduction advises, "Remember the bamboo, it survives many things because it is adaptable and can bend with the wind."

Schools, prisons said to be alike

By C.G. McDANIEL
AP Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — American high schools are like prisons "with guards posing as teachers, and students learning how to be docile prisoners," say two California psychologists.

Craig Haney and Philip G. Zimbardo of Stanford University, writing in Psychology Today, say high school and prison "environments resemble each other to a remarkable and distressing degree."

They said they studied both prisons and high schools for their report.

Like prison guards, teachers have absolute authority over students, and "the teacher's word always counts more than the word of the student," Haney and Zimbardo said.

They said students, like prisoners, are regimented and regulated into docility with roll calls and bells and fixed hallway routes, and classes are run mechanically for fixed periods, "regardless of the natural educational process."

And they said high school students, like prisoners, must obey codes of dress and personal comportment.

"Both prisons and high schools also feel compelled to limit the length of male inmates' hair, as though long hair were some grievous threat to institutional authority," they write.

They describe high school buildings as "huge, stark and architecturally barren," resembling buildings designed for punishment and incarceration.

"Inside the average high school, the drab and depressing interiors clearly show they have been designed for efficiency, security and surveillance rather than beauty or the comfort of their inmates," they write.

They add, "The dulling uniformity of identical classrooms and endless hallways emphasize the anonymity and insensitivity of the place, and the regimentation it imposes...."

High school "values regularity, order and control over creativity, spontaneity and freedom," they say. Vandalism and destruction of school property represent attacks by students "against the most obvious symbol of their oppression," Haney and Zimbardo said.

The status of teachers, like that of prison guards, is reinforced with special lunchrooms, lounges and washrooms, which are "more comfortable, if not luxurious, than those reserved for students," they said.

They also said that high schools divide students the way prisons divide their inmates to keep them from uniting against authority.

"Many schools divide the students into separate groups based on ability or post-graduate career plans, thereby setting up social-class rivalries based on rank and status," the psychologists wrote.

The real tragedies of our school system are not the troublemakers or the dropouts but "the endless procession of faceless students who go through the system quietly and unquestioningly, unobtrusive and unnoticed," they say.

African dream of prosperity dies in urban slums

By LARRY HEINZERLING
Associated Press Writer

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — This seaside capital is an urban jungle and a dramatic example of a major crisis in black Africa — the rural exodus to the cities.

Chaotic traffic conditions, power cuts and water shortages are so serious that some industries have given up relying on public utilities and have built their own power plants and water systems.

"Lagos can't really be as bad as they say it is," insisted the wife of a businessman visiting Nigeria's capital.

A diplomat swished his cocktail, stole a swift glance at the nearest Nigerian 15 feet away and whispered, "It's worse."

A Ford Foundation study has found the city "well on the way to becoming the Calcutta of Africa."

Port facilities are as overloaded as public transportation and the telephone system in this bustling city, fast approaching a population of two million, breaks down continuously.

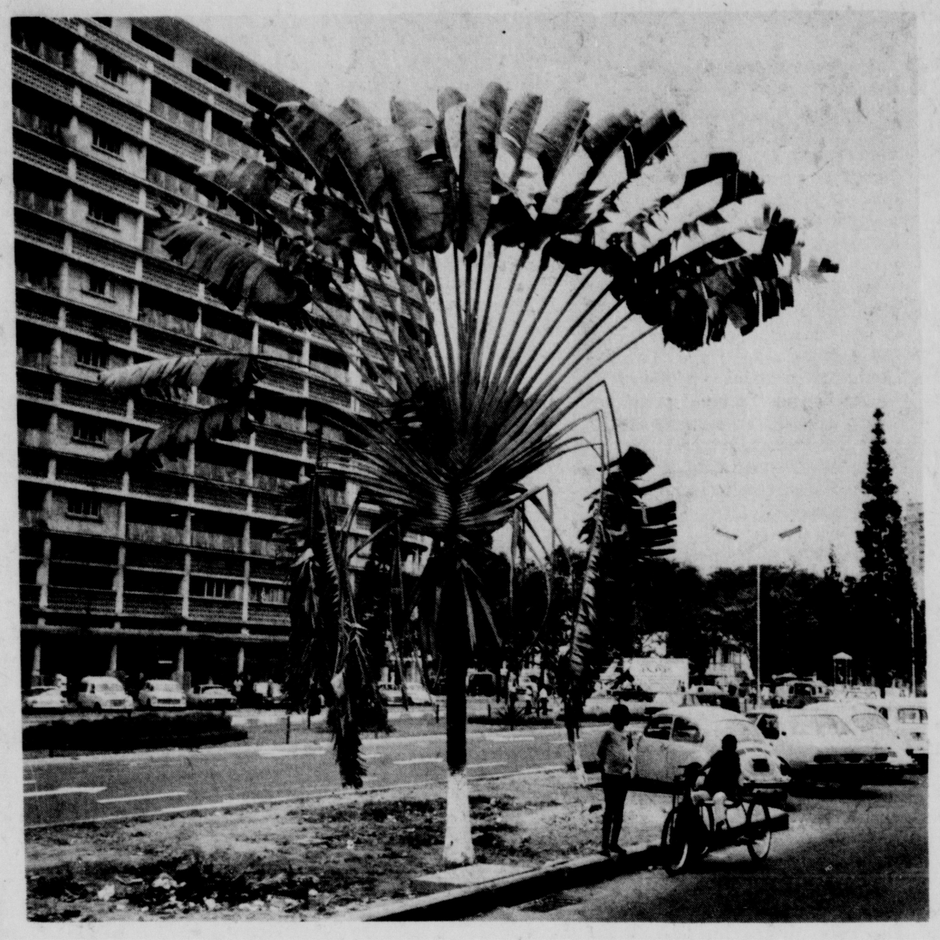

Most residents live in slums surrounding enclaves of modern homes for the wealthy and new skyscrapers that tower over polluted lagoons.

Destitute thousands ply the streets seeking nonexistent jobs with the government, the city's single largest employer, or with private companies, or as domestics in homes. Schools and hospitals are overtaxed, as are police and fire services.

Most alarming of all, the capital of Africa's most populous nation represents not an exception but the norm for many African cities.

Ironically, black Africa is overwhelmingly rural. Only 26 million — 11 per cent of the estimated 242 million people — live in towns with a population greater than 20,000.

This compares to the world's 30 per cent average, Latin America's 25 to 40 per cent and the more than 55 per cent in the United States and Europe.

Growing capital

High-rise buildings begin to jut above a tree-lined boulevard in Kinshasa, Zaire's capital. Like many African cities, Kinshasa has mushroomed with an influx from rural areas. In ten years of independence the city has grown from half a million to an estimated 1.5 million persons. (AP)

But the soaring rate of the urban population's increase in black Africa's 35 nations is by far the highest in the world, averaging 5 to 6 per cent a year.

Lagos and Kinshasa, Zaire — the only black African cities with over one million population — are growing at a staggering rate of 14 per cent a year. So are Abidjan, Ivory Coast; Dakar, Senegal; Accra, Ghana, and Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

A United Nations study describes this rapid urban growth as "exploding cities in unexploding economies."

U.N. population projections indicate the total population of black Africa will jump from its present 242 million to 303 million by 1980, 395 million by 1990 and 525 million by 2000.

If the rush to the cities continues, Africa's urban population would increase five times in the next 30 years.

Each year, thousands of Africans abandon their mud hut villages, their farms and their past. They flock to the faraway cities by car, bicycle, train and on foot. They find the thousands who came before them, many illiterate, unemployed and wretchedly poor.

In most cases, the rural exodus is sparked by the push from the squalid villages, where life for many has become intolerable.

Farmers in Senegal, Nigeria, Ghana and Cameroon earn between $60 and $150 a year. In such poverty, wealth is measured in wives or livestock, possibly a transistor radio or, in a good year, a bicycle.

Outside the major towns there is no electricity or running water. The nearest paved road may be miles away. There are no hospitals or schools.

African governments lacking fnds, technical know-how and experience seem helpless to stem the tide toward the cities. There are only 60 town planners in all of Nigeria, a nation of 60 million, according to Arthur Ling, president of the Commonwealth Town Planning Institute.

About one-quarter of the Ivory Coast's population of 4.3 million is "foreign Africans" who have emigrated from neighboring countries, mostly Upper Volta and Mali.

Most have descended upon Abidjan, the country's skyscraper capital, to share in the wealth of the so-called "Paris of Africa."

With graceful freeways and modern buildings, Abidjan is one of West Africa's most beautiful and best-planned cities. But the crunch is on.

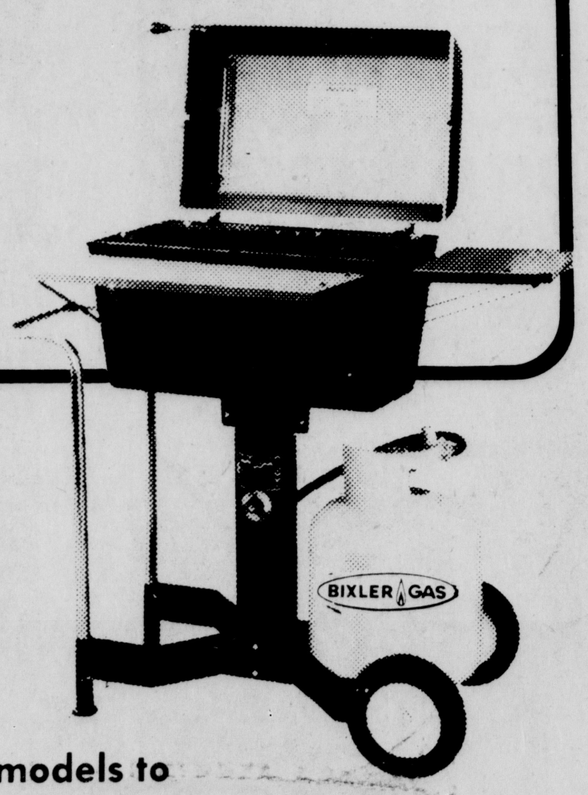

In 1945 it was a somnolent tropicaltown of 20,000. Today it is a metropolis of over 500,000 and by 1980 the population is expected to exceed one million.

Africa's political leaders are aware of their urban problems but have few solutions. Trying to improve conditions in city slums is apt to attract additional migrants from the country, they say.

Q — After attending last Monday night's City Council meeting, I am curious as to whether the mayor and council are aware that in the state of Missouri that we now have a "Sunshine" law, which as I understand it requires all meetings of public officials to be open and public except matters pertaining to personnel. At the last council meeting, or rather at the public hearing on Cablevision rates, the mayor and council recessed to the upstairs of the Municipal Building for a closed session, then upon returning downstairs, immediately decided on the $6.15 rate.

Although, in my own mind, I am certain that the mayor and council had the best interest of the city at heart, I don't think that this is right and conducive to solving the problem of voter apathy. Please inform us . . . if this closed meeting was or was not legal, and if there will be a conscious effort to not have any more of these meetings of mayor and council. — K.S.

A — Mayor Jerry Jones said the council went into executive session to discuss legal aspects of possible litigation over the Cablevision issue with City Counselor Bob Fritz. This is authorized under the Sunshine law. However, The Democrat-Capital learned that the rate itself also was discussed in some detail, which would be a clear violation of the law.

Q — We have a lot of wild dogs running on our place. They run the cattle through the fence and kill young calves. We have killed several of them, but can't kill them all. There are one or two that keep having young ones. They are hungry all the time. Is there anything we can do about them? — Mrs. D.F.

A — Because you live in the county, you should contact Sheriff Emmett Fairfax's office at 827-0052. A spokesman for the sheriff's office said Fairfax or one of his deputies will discuss the problem with you and arrange a solution. There is no county animal shelter or specific provisions for the collection of stray animals, it was noted.

Litton guest for third Keys forum

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Rep. Jerry Litton, D-Mo., will be the guest of Rep. Martha Keys, D-Kan., Sunday, June 15 at her Congressional forum in Leavenworth.

The forum and a preceding luncheon will be on the St. Mary's College campus. Mrs. Keys said an informal question and answer session will be open to the public.

It is the third in a series of meetings held by Mrs. Keys to give constituents the opportunity to discuss legislative issues with national leaders.

The forum will begin at 1:30 p.m.

At wit's end

Off the land

By ERMA BOMBECK

This year, there are 60 million Americans who are planting vegetable gardens.

Have you any idea what it means to have 60 million tillers of the soil running loose? I'll give it to you straight. It means there will have to be at least 210 million tillees to eat the stuff at harvest time, and frankly, I don't think we have the population to handle it.

At last count, there were 80 million adult non-gardeners in this country. Of this amount, 32 million are allergic to tomatoes and their faces break out after eating the first bushel. Twenty-eight million are still eating bread and butter pickles they canned in 1958, and of the remaining 20 million, 18 million had their teeth turn green during July and August.

To begin with, the harvest of a home garden never occurs when the gardener is at home. He is always on vacation. I don't know how this phenomenon occurs, but I have known tillers who have hung around all summer waiting for their labors to bear fruit. They leave a few hours for a dental appointment only to return and realize they've missed the harvest.

Another phenomenon is that you can share your garden with friends. After the first 500 pounds of bib lettuce, a gardener has no friends.

Several years ago, my husband and I visualized an orchard in our backyard. One pear tree seemed inadequate, so we planted 12 of them. One day, our daughter came running into the house feverish with excitement. "Our first pear," she exclaimed. We put the pear on the mantel and hooked up a three-colored revolving light used on the tree at Christmas and watched it glisten.

Several weeks later, when we had tired of pear delight, pear salad, pear pie, pear cake, pears over cereal, pear casserole, pear omelets, pear pizza and pear sandwiches, we started to make house calls with them.

By the fifth week of harvest, I began to feel like a Welcome Wagon lady on the moon. As I approached a house with a shopping bag of pears, I would observe cars in the driveway, doors wide open, radios blaring, draperies moving, but no visible signs of human life.

When the next year rolled around, our daughter once again announced, "Our first pear." We clapped a hand over her mouth and sent her to her room.

I know the work involved in gardening and it is gratifying that the American people are intent on solving the food problem, but the real heroes of the war against inflation have to be the non-gardeners who smile and burp, "Why, everyone can use another bushel of radishes!"

THREE EASY WAYS TO 'CHARGE-IT'

Washington fiddles while radioactive waste builds

By MARY SCHURZ
Associated Press Writer

Nuclear wastes, among the most deadly man has produced, may someday be loaded aboard rocket ships and fired right out of the solar system, or buried beneath the bed of the Pacific Ocean. Someday.

These are but two of several disposal schemes scientists are studying to safely and permanently isolate from mankind and his environment a growing inventory of highly radioactive atomic wastes. The danger will last for hundreds of thousands of years.

The radiation from the wastes, unless shielded from the human environment, can cause death, cancer or any number of other ailments resulting from the destruction or damage of human cells.

In the more than 30 years since the first atom bomb was exploded, this country has amassed nearly 80 million gallons of dangerous radioactive waste. The bulk of it is a by-product of military weapons and research programs.

The rest comes from the commercial nuclear power industry that now generates 8 per cent of the nation's electricity. There are 55 reactors in operation, and 163 are under construction or on order.

Spent fuel is piling up in water storage tanks at most of the reactors operated by utilities around the country because there are no commercial plants to recycle the spent fuel into liquid waste and into plutonimum and uranium that can be used again as fuel. Only the federal government has such reprocessing plants — one in South Carolina, the other in Washington.

Industry spokesmen blame U.S. government indecision for lack of a satisfactory system for disposing of nuclear waste.

"The regulations keep changing so that you are shooting toward a moving target," says Jerry Stanbrough, a spokesman for Commonwealth Edison, which operates nuclear reactors in the Chicago area.

The federal government is studying plans to build inteim storage facilities until a system is worked out for permanent disposal of nuclear waste.

The Atomic Energy Commission, which went out of existence last January, turning over its functions to the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) spent 20 years studying nuclear waste disposal.

The AEC long favored deep salt mines as the best place for long-range storage of the wastes. But after an unsuccessful attempt to develop a salt mine site at Lyons, Kans., the AEC commissioned Batelle Pacific Northwest Laboratory to develop new disposal methods.

Two privately-owned commercial plants have been built and a third is under construction to process spent nuclear fuel. But only one, at West Valley, N.Y., near Buffalo, has operated and it has been shut down since 1972 for remodeling and expansion.

The liquid wastes are not only highly radioactive and very hot but extremely corrsive. So they are neutralized before storage in underground or near-surface steel tanks shielded in concrete. Then they must be continually cooled and kept under constant surveillance.

On a 572-square mile arid site at Hanford, Wash., the AEC's oldest liquid wastes have begun to outlive their tanks. Several tanks developed stress cracks and some of the wastes leaked to the soil nearby so the area requires continued monitoring.

At the federal government's Savannah River complex near Aiken, S.C., nuclear materials have been produced at the rate of tons per day for the space program, for medical purposes and for weapons. The pinewooded site, opened in the '50s, has an ecological park in which black bears, alligators and wild turkeys roam. Storage tanks here also have cracked and liquid waste has seeped out. But the wastes again stayed in nearby soil and containment methods were enlarged.

No one regards the tank holding system as anything but temporary.

Commercially, there are these complications in addition to the current lack of a plant to process spent fuel for the recovery of uranium and plutonium and the creation of liquid waste:

—About five years ago, the AEC issued a regulation requiring that commercially produced liquid waste be solidified within five years after the spent fuel is reprocessed at a commercial plant. The AEC also ordered that the solidified waste be delivered to a federal repository within five more years. But no such repository now exists.

—The operators of a reprocessing plant under construction in Barnwell, S.C., say the government hasn't told them yet what form the solidified waste must take — granules, glass or ceramic.

—ERDA is reviewing plans to build a surface storage facility for interim care of nuclear wastes. The review centers on environmental impact.

—Spent fuel being stored at commercial reactors in water basin "fuel pools" is beginning to stack up and at 10 utilities the situation is reported to be "tight."

One of the utilities feeling the pinch is Niagara Mohawk Power Corp., whose plant is on Lake Ontario, near Oswego, N.Y. Its spent fuel has been stored in water tanks since the plant opened in 1969.

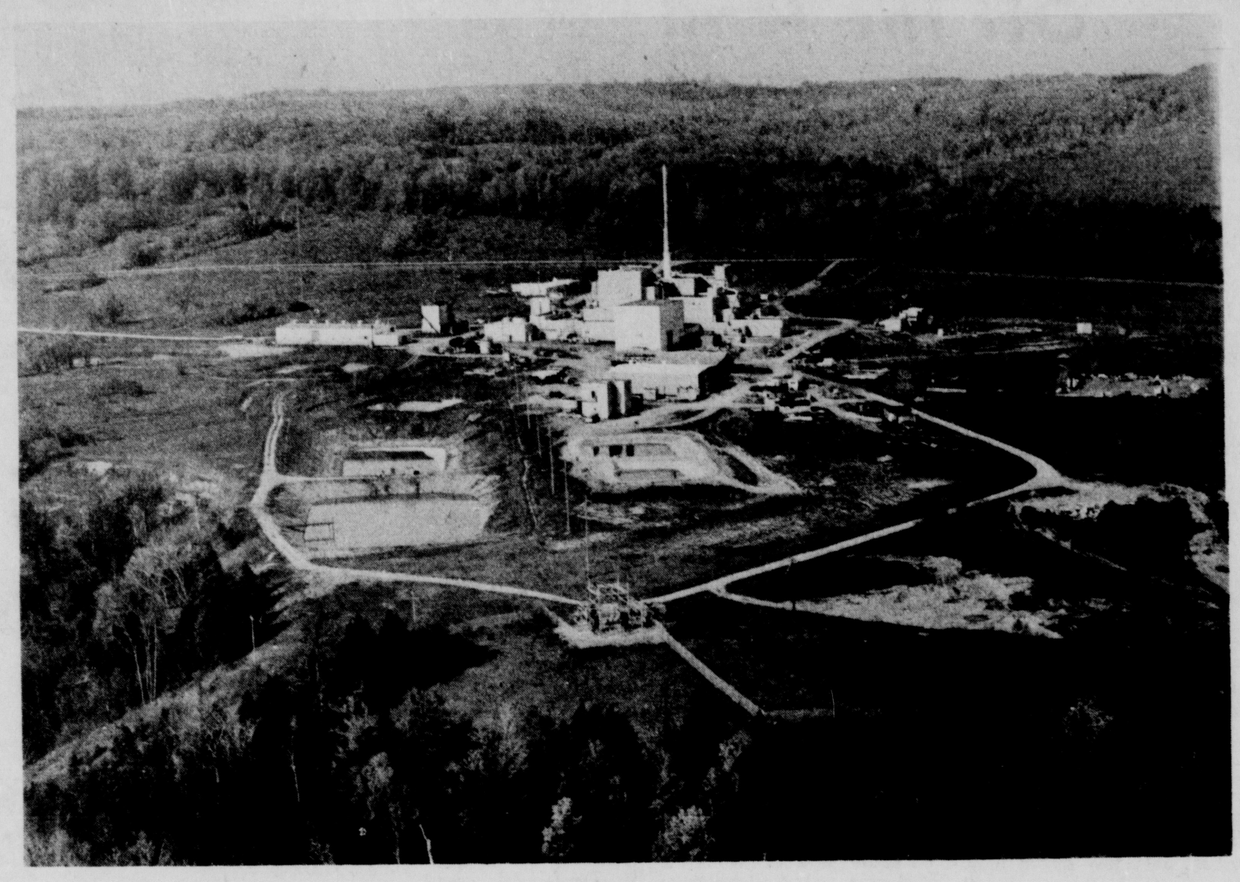

"We had planned to ship spent fuel to Barnwell about the first of May," said Dan Green, Niagara Mohawk spokesman. "But to date, Barnwell has no license to receive the spent fuel. The crux of the matter is when will it get it?"

Allied General Nuclear Services (AGNS) which is building the Barnwell, S.C. plant next door to the government's Savannah River operation, has indicated it expects to get that license by this fall.

Niagara Mohawk's moment of truth will arrive in the fall when it pulls from its reactor 200 spent fuel bundles for placement in its storage pool.

The regulation to deliver the wastes to a federal repository within 10 years may be relaxed, says ERDA Administrator Robert C. Seamans Jr.

Among the issues to be addressed are whether the wastes should be made irretrievable, thus freeing future generations from having to gard them, or whether to put them somewhere they might one day be retrieved as a valuable resource.

Spent fuel in storage

The reprocessing plant of Nuclear Fuel Services stands isolated in the remote countryside north of West Valley, N.Y. Some 600,000 gallons of commercial nuclear wastes are in storage at the facility, awaiting decisions on plant expansion and on the form processed material is to take. (AP)

Sedalians at three-day arson seminar

Sedalia fireman Ron Finnell and Jerry Iuchs, director of the Sedalia-Pettis County Civil Defense agency, attended a three-day arson investigation seminar recently in Columbia. The seminar was presented by the Missouri Chapter of the International Association of Arson Investigators and the University of Missouri Extension division.

The purpose of the study was to assist fire personnel in the proper procedures for investigating arson cases.

The two men also attended a three-day emergency medical training seminar in Columbia. They were among 150 persons who received advance courses and updated information on emergency medical care.

The Phoenix Nest

Edited by Martin Levin

According to an advertisement, the newest thing in widow design is the window without a sill. As the advertisement explains, "it has a sleek, uncluttered look that's as modern as tomorrow."

The very thought of a window without a sill strikes a blow to my heart! And I'll just bet that the architect responsible is the same man who designed the front porch off the house and the running board off the car.

No window-sills. Think about it for a minute. Perhaps a household could function without window-sills in the bathroom, the bedroom or the living room (though pray tell me where that would leave the cat and the African violets.) But the thought of no window-sill in the kitchen over the sink throws me into a panic.

Where would you ripen your tomatoes or pears or persimmons? Where could you safely drop your car keys, your glasses, your rings or your watch? Where would you prop the recipe card so it wouldn't get splattered during cooking? And what about those permission slips that must be returned to school immediately? Why, not a day passes without my saying to the children, "put it on the window-sill and I'll look at it later."

Now you could argue that the dining room table is the place for some things, like overdue library books. But it's much too big for stray buttons and dental appointment cards.

Doctors on wheels to care for workers

COBDEN, Ill. (AP) — The problem was how to take medical care to migrant laborers. The Shawnee Health Service solved it with a doctor's office on wheels.

From early June until late October, when the last of the apples are in, the agency's clinic-aboard-a-bus will provide basic medical services, free of charge, to 15,000 workers in Southern Illinois' orchard country.

Free medical care has been available to migrants in the area in past seasons, but most clinics were too far away. The mobile clinic brings health care to the fields.

The clinic is stationed at the largest migrant camp in the region, mainly because of its central location. But it can be moved, depending on demand, as the operation gets rolling.

Two doctors are at the clinic two nights a week and two former Peace Corps volunteers, Gene and Pat Schubert, staff the bus full time.

Mrs. Schubert, 26, a registered nurse, said the clinic is an experiment and a demonstration.

"The plan is that after we are done one of the local health departments would take it over," she said. In the off-season, the bus could serve rural communities without doctors and could be the forerunner of a fleet of such clinics, she added.

The clinic on wheels can provide first aid, immunization, prenatal and birth control counseling and treatment for hypertension and diabetes and other routine medical problems. More difficult cases are referred to specialists in town.

Several community groups and Southern Illinois University at Carbondale have backed the project with money and equipment. The school's student government donated $865, and a design class refurbished the 1958 vehicle, installing plumbing, wiring, furnishings, carpeting, an examining room and a waiting room.

How to become a beauty queen

By GORDON HANSON
Associated Press Writer

HAVERHILL, Iowa (AP) — Jean Bollhoefer, a 26-year-old farmer's daughter, has a few inside tips about competing in the Miss America Pageant.

Take a laxative before the bathing suit competition to flatten your tummy, grease your teeth with petroleum jelly to keep them shiny for the judges, and bring some padding, advises the outgoing Miss Iowa.

"I've never seen so much padding in my life as I did when I got to Atlantic City," she said. She admitted that she took some of her own to the pageant last September.

"It's a show for the American public, sure, but if you've got any brain at all, you can use it to your best advantage and not let them use you," she said in a recent interview.

Miss Bollhoefer insists she isn't beautiful in the traditional sense.

"Not the external part of me. You do have to be attractive, but it's the personality that's most important."

She contends other beauty contests are "stock auctions" because the girls aren't competing for scholarships.

"Many people feel the Miss America program is like any other beauty contest, but it's not," she said. "The Miss USA contest is strictly high on the swim suit, how you look. It's not an all-around competition.

"The Miss America competition stresses interviews with judges. This is why many times you can't tell how a girl is going to look on television."

Miss Bollhoefer is 5-foot-7, wears braces on her teeth an was graduated with honors from Iowa State University in 1971. She says she won't marry "until I find someone not smarter than I am."

She was runnerup in the 1972 Miss Iowa contest, was invited to the 1973 Miss America pageant to sing at parties, then won the 1974 state title and made it to Atlantic City as a contestant.

She didn't finish among the top 10 finalists but believes she's qualified to speak candidly of "tricks of the trade."

"I received a $1,000 talent award (singing) and that's only because I out-talked reporters. I'm the only girl in 54 pageants to get flowers and green bananas — I love them — from the press.

"And I was too old to be nervous" in interviews with judges. "I told them downhome, funny things about being a farmer's daughter. Happiness is a habit and it's got to be cultivated every day."

But personality does it, she said — "Like my braces. I've had a ball with them. They're a tremendous conversation piece, and I get more miles and more laughs out of them."

Illinois site said best for new airport

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "Common sense planning" indicates an airport site in Illinois would best serve the long-range needs of the St. Louis metropolitan area, seven airlines said in a letter to federal officials.

The airlines said they did not believe Lambert St. Louis International Airport could meet the area's needs for an indefinite period.

In the letter, the airlines indicated support for land-banking at a proposed site in Columbia-Waterloo, Ill., but said they could not provide financial support for acquisition of the site.

The letter represented Allegheny, American, Braniff, Delta, Eastern, Southern and Trans World Airlines. Two airlines also serving Lambert International — Ozark and Frontier — abstained.

Recipient of the letter was John Barnum, Deputy Secretary of Transportation.

Castro's sister maintains opposition to brother

Outspoken foe

Juanita Castro, the businesswoman seen here in the pharmacy and notions store of which she's co-owner in Miami's "Little Havana" suburb, is also the youngest sister of Fidel Castro and his unrelenting critic. She's been in exile in Miami since 1964 and outspokenly presses her claim that Fidel is "a monster that must be overthrown" to eradicate communism from Cuba. (AP)

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Her eyes flash and there is passion and fire in her voice when she denounces her brother and all he has wrought.

"He is a monster that must be overthrown," says Juanita Castro of Fidel. "That is the only way we can eradicate Communism from Cuba."

Juanita has been in Miami exile since 1964, five years after her brother toppled the Batista dictatorship and came to power.

She helped her brother in his struggle, but turned against him in 1960 and left Cuba.

She went to Washington last month for an anti-Castro demonstraton held because U.S. officials had announced that a consensus exists for lifting the economic embargo against Cuba.

Miss Castro laments the fact that interest in her cause has dimmed.

"The small, dedicated circle of firm anti-Communists is getting ever smaller," she says ruefully.

What kind of a woman is Juanita?

She's in her early 40s now, a hard-working businesswoman. She recently became co-owner of a small pharmacy and discount notions store on the outskirts of Miami's "Little Havana" section.

She dresses fashionably; works a full day at her store; drives a late-model car and lives with a Cuban family in an upper-middle class home. She has never married and says little of her personal life.

Her father, Angel Castro, a Spaniard, was a well-to-do landowner in Cuba's Oriente Province. He died in 1956 while Fidel was in Mexico preparing for his Cuban invasion. His wife died in 1963, at Juanita's Havana home. Juanita left soon for Mexico, blaming Fidel for hastening her mother's death. He never speaks publicly about Juanita.

Juanita has not tempered her harsh judgment of Fidel, who she says "betrayed us all, those of us who believed in a social, humanistic, democratic revolution."

When Fidel was in the Sierra Maestra mountains carrying out guerrilla warfare against the Batista army, Juanita was in this country raising money to help the rebels. She served as treasurer of the Fidelistas' 26th of July Movement in Miami in '57-'58.

Declining a post in the new government in 1959, Juanita says she worked instead at establishing hospitals and schools for the poor in the interior of the country.

But it took her only a little more than a year to become disillusioned. "You know how it is," she says. "You overhear things that aren't meant to be overheard. And my brother and the others would say one thing and do another."

What of her future if the United States and Cuba normalize relations?

"There have always been traitors to any cause," she says about those exiles wanting renewed ties with their homeland.

"I personally will never give up and neither will those of us who are dedicated against communism. We can never recognize Fidel."

Prisoners, public need more education

Education needed

Bob Hill, right, an inmate at the Renz Prison Farm, outside of Jefferson City, was on a panel Friday night at the Municipal Building to discuss education in the corrections system. Hill, also a student at Lincoln University, Jefferson City, said he realized after going to prison the value of education in his life. The panel was headed by Dr. Noel Heermance, left, Jefferson City, who said the purpose of the discussion was to explain the importance of education in the prison system. (Democrat-Capital Photo by Tom Maupin)

By GWEN KINKER
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Equipped with interest and the desire to learn, about 25 citizens met Friday night in the Municipal Building City Council chambers to discuss penal reform in Missouri.

The panel discussion, sponsored by the Missouri Association for Social Welfare (MASW), was aimed at drumming up grass roots support for more education in the penal system.

Dr. Noel Heermance, Jefferson City, corrections chairman for MASW, headed a panel of two prison inmates and one corrections administrator.

Clarence Shaw, corrections administrator of the Renz Prison Farm, a minimum security penal institution approximately two miles west of Jefferson City, said citizen involvement is the key to penal reform.

"I would like to see more and smaller institutions; community interest. There should be citizen involvement deciding how these people (prison inmates) should act and be accepted into society," Shaw said. "I don't think criminals should have to be sent to a place like Jefferson City. There should be a place where they can go within their own communities."

Shaw also pointed to the lack of sufficient teachers within state penal institutions, and the need for educational incentives. "The point is, we just can't get enough teachers in the system to teach a group of 4,300 persons. Teachers must teach as well as be guards, because there are often disciplinary problems. Then it's the guards who become teachers," Shaw said.

Shaw noted that many qualified teachers are reluctant to teach in penal institutions because of low salaries, as well as fear of prison inmates.

"You hear of stabbings," said Robert Hill, a resident at the Renz Farm, and a sociology student at Lincoln University, Jefferson City. "They occur because of the lack of incentive. There is nothing for a man who comes before a jury and is sentenced to 40 years in prison."

Hill, who was sentenced to 17 years in prison for armed robbery five years ago, sees "nonchalance" as the attitude of penal instructors. "When I entered the college program, I felt a change in me. I felt the ability to be a human being and I began to feel myself. I'm here tonight because things came through."

Hill, however, noted that only 14 inmates of the 1,000 present at the Renz Farm, are participating in "work-release" programs.

Shaw earlier explained that changes began two years ago at the Renz Farm, whereby educational and vocational programs for inmates were established. The "educational-release" program allows residents to attend college during the day. The "work-release" program allows them to work at jobs within Jefferson City and surrounding towns, Shaw said.

"But the work-release program could be much bigger if the Jefferson City population would be willing to accept them (the prison inmates.) What the people just don't realize is you don't have J. Paul Getty's in penal institutions. You have poor, uneducated people," Hill said.

Lee Jackson, 35, an inmate in the Renz Farm, agreed that work-release programs should be expanded. Jackson, who is attending a cosmetology school in Jefferson City noted, "there are so many guys who want the opportunity to work or to get an education. But they are faced with the lack of the institution to give it."

He said the opportunity to work outside of prison has helped him to socially relate to people on the outside world."

"Remember if you go to a penal institution," Jackson said, "the people there are social rejects and they may have trouble relating to you."

Discussing action needed to bring about educational rehabilitation, Heermance urged citizens to write and speak to state legislators. "If people know and care, things happen," Heermance said. "If officials know, they begin to care."

When asked what chances MASW had to reach a goal of good penal education, Heermance explained several factors pointing to quick reform. He noted citizens can overcome the "fear factor" once prison inmates are educated. "If these men aren't helped through education and have the opportunity to do something with their lives, they may revert back to violence," Heermance noted.

Heermance also pointed to the amount of money spent each year on prison upkeep. "We spend $10,000 each year on a man and still support his family through welfare. These people could be supporting themselves," he said. He explained the Friday night meeting was an effort by MASW and the Missouri State Committee for the Humanities to get citizens involved in prison reform.

A state coalition of interested citizens will be held at 10 a.m. June 14 in the Thomas Jefferson Library, Jefferson City, to further discuss the need for education in prison reform.

AUTO ASSEMBLY IN KENYA

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) -- British Leyland plans to set up a $9-million auto assembly plant in the central Kenya town of Thika, 30 miles from here.

The plant, being set up in conjunction with the local auto firm of Cooper Motors Corp. Ltd., will assemble 1,500 trucks, buses and other vehicles once it goes into production in 1976. The project is designed to cut the import of foreign-made vehicles.

Grain inspections may go to U.S. government

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz says the grain inspection scandal could lead to the federal government taking over responsibility for grain inspections.

Butz said in an interview that no decision had been reached within the administration on how to overhaul the inspection system. But he said one option under consideration would give the federal government the same inspection responsibility for grain that it now has for meat. State and federal inspectors check meat for quality and sanitation.

Present law prohibits federal inspection and grading of grain but requires federal licensing of the inspectors employed by private firms, boards of trade and others.

Grand juries in New Orleans and Houston — two of the busiest ports for U.S. farm exports — have returned nearly a score of indictments during a far-flung probe of alleged irregularities associated with export inspection and sampling. A complex investigation is continuing into reports of bribery, short-weighing of grain cargos, substandard and rubbish-laden grain and the possibility of organized crime involvement.

Butz said he still was not aware of any evidence that organized crime is mixed up in the grain troubles but repeated his previous statement that "we're looking for it."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., announcing Wednesday that he will hold a hearing on June 19 to look into the export situation, said he holds Butz responsible for the system's difficulties. Others, including Rep. Edward Mezvinsky, D-Iowa, have called for federalization of the inspection service.

The Humphrey charge that Butz should be held accountable for the grain inspection troubles was a "bid for today's headline," Butz said. Butz said investigators were looking into the irregularities long before the Minnesota Democrat "woke up" to the fact.

Although Butz said he would not rule out federalization of the export inspection system, he added that there are other options, including an improvement of the present system and possibly some kind of federal-state operation along the lines for inspection of other commodities such as meat.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT

In Combination With The Sunday Morning Capital

Sedalia, Missouri, Sunday, June 8, 1975—Section B

Together 50 years

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Malone, 822 West Sixth, will be honored with a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. June 15 at the Holiday Inn for a celebration of their golden wedding anniversary. They were married April 26, 1925, in Biloxi, Miss. The reception, to which friends and relatives are invited to attend, will be hosted by their four children, Mrs. H.S. (Shirley) Nienhaus, St. Louis; Mrs. A. W. (Marchea) Klang, Columbia; Robert A. Malone, Grants, N.M.; Ronald Malone, Yankton, S.C.; and 15 grandchildren.

Jaycee rodeo to sponsor queen

WINDSOR — The Windsor Rodeo will sponsor a rodeo queen during their 1975 rodeo June 19 to 21. The winner will be eligible to enter the United Rodeo Association rodeo finals at the end of the rodeo season.

Contestants, age 14 and older, may enter by completing a form available from Mrs. Elaine Paxton, Windsor, by Wednesday. There is no entry fee.

Judging on personality, appearance and western dress will take place at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the community room of Citizens Bank of Windsor. Judging of horsemanship and riding abilities will be held prior to the first rodeo night, June 19, but a date has not yet been set. Each contestant must furnish her own horse for this part of the judging.

For more information, contact Mrs. Paxton at 647-3360.

Barely blue

Blue is the leading color for those daring bikinis that give the wearer with a lean figure a sleek look. Blues come in ombre-stripes, solid terry, navy nylon or exotic batiks.

Married Saturday

Miss Vicki Lynn Edwards and Michael John Murphy were married at 3 p.m. Saturday at the First and Calvary Presbyterian Church, Springfield, by the Rev. Curtis March. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Edwards, Springfield, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Lucile Dillard, 905 State Fair Blvd., and Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Edwards, 201 South Gentry. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Murphy Jr., Springfield. The couple's honor attendants were Miss Terri Noennig and Robert Dyche. They will reside in Springfield.

Alexanders reach 25th anniversary

HOUSTONIA — Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Alexander will be honored for their silver wedding anniversary with a dinner, hosted by their children, June 8 at Maxine's.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander were married June 10, 1950, and have five children, Mrs. Larry McDonald, Harrisonville; Mrs. Terry Saylor, Sweet Springs; Miss Becky Alexander, Ricky Alexander, Tony Alexander, all of the home; and two grandchildren.

Former Miss Kansas to speak at luncheon

The former Miss Kansas, Mimi Wickliff, Leawood, will be the guest speaker at the 12:30 p.m. Wednesday luncheon meeting of Sedalia Christian Women's Club at Maxine's.

Also a show featuring party styles will be presented by Roth's Fashions. Cynthia Swanson, a music major at Central Missouri State University, will be the soloist.

The club has no membership or dues and all women are encouraged to attend. For reservations, call Mrs. Jim McFall, 826-3836, by 4 p.m. Monday.

The memory jar

Lately there have been many deaths
Of friends, and I recall
Nice things and special favors
Done for me by all,
I'm sure that I have thanked them
At the time, I always do
And that I valued things they did
I'm very sure they knew,
How many rides they've given me,
How many things they've done,
I think back o'er my friends now gone
And treasure every one.
I think of friends still living,
And often something brings
To me a remembrance
Of big and little things
That they have done through the years,
And forgotten, I expect,
But that's about the only thing
That ever I collect;
I keep them in my memory jar
And take them out when Something reminds me of them
And I think of their favors then.

Somehow I just don't tell them,
I remember they've been kind
And all the nice things they have done

That I keep in heart and mind,
I guess that now and then
I do a little something, too,
And then I just forget them,
Little things that I might do,
But I was pleased the other day
When a woman whom I know
Told me of something that I did
A long, long time ago.
When she was getting married
She said I helped her out
By loaning candle holder and candles
I remember nothing about.
Now her youngest is getting married
And this one is her last,
I guess that this and seeing me
Brought memories of the past.
I suppose I walked in the office
Where she worked as a young girl
And with plans for her wedding

Her mind was in a whirl.
She mentioned what she needed

And I simply offered mine
And loaned them for her big event

Which she really thought was fine.
I'm certain that she thanked me,
Yet after all these years she still Remembered that I helped her
And it gave me a little thrill,
I still do not remember
But I'm happy that she did,
She hasn't changed very much
She still looks like that kid,
I remember her planning her wedding
Though I don't recall my part,
But the smile when she told me
Will be forever in my heart.
To tell me she remembered
Was such a sweet thing to do.
I though I'll take memories from the jar
And give them to others, too.

Martin-Zurbuchen

South Carolina was the honeymoon destination of the former Miss Carrie Lynn Martin and Bruce Eugene Zurbuchen after their marriage May 25 at First Christian Church.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Russell Martin, 3201 South Kentucky, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Newby, Walnut Hills.

Candelabra with white gladioli and blue daisies decorated the altar as the Rev. Robert W. Magee performed the double ring ceremony. Miss Christy Clarey was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory organza with a stand-up collar and yoke enhanced with Cluny lace. Her sheer bishop sleeves were cuffed with lace and her empire waist fell to a chapel length train, edged in ruffled organza. Her chapel length ivory tulle veil was secured with a crown of ivory French lace and seeded pearls.

Miss Terri Martin, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Gerri Martin, the bride's sister, Kim Curry and Georgiana Goodier. They wore long light blue dotted swiss gowns trimmed with ivory lace and light blue picture hats.

The bride's brother, Rusty Martin, and Natalie Long were candlelighters. Christy Howard was the flower girl and Matthew Long was the ringbearer.

Dan Kloney was best man. Groomsmen were David Van Dyne, Jim Sanders and Charles "Chip" Thompson. Seating the guests were Greg Bechtel, Steve Moore and Steve Brixey, cousin of the bride.

A reception followed the ceremony at Walnut Hills Country Club. The bride wore a melon-colored halter dress as her going-away outfit.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal buffet at their home the evening before the wedding.

The couple is at home at Burton, S.C. The bride is a 1975 graduate of Smith-Cotton High School and the groom was graduated from S-C in 1972. He is a corporal in the U.S. Marine Corps at the marine air station in Beaufort, S.C., where he is a control tower operator.

Riney-Patterson

JEFFERSON CITY — St. Joseph's Cathedral here was the setting at 7:30 p.m. May 31 for the wedding of Miss Jill Ann Riney to Philip Rodger Patterson. The Rev. Hugh Behan officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Riney, Jefferson City. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Patterson, 2700 West Broadway, Sedalia.

John Cooley was the organist and Mrs. Chris Marcum was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore an empire gown of organza accented with Chantilly lace. The dress was designed with a high neckline and a sheer yoke outlined with lace and a ruffled flounce. Her veil was secured to a matching picture hat.

Miss Lisa Riney was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Miss Karen Riney, sister of the bride. They wore floral print organza halter gowns with cape styled jackets.

Flower girls were Stacey Lyng and Nikkie Lyng, nieces of the bride. Ringbearer was Jason Lyng, nephew of the bride.

Jerry Webb served as best man. Groomsman was Chris Markham. Ushers were Mark Patterson and Kevin Patterson, brothers of the groom, and Greg Foster.

Steven Riney and Jeff Bushman were acolytes.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. After their wedding trip to the Ozarks, the couple will reside at 2903 Maplewood Drive, Sedalia.

The bride is a 1970 graduate of Hannibal High School and a 1974 graduate of Northeast Missouri State University, Kirksville. She is a special education instructor at the Smithton R-VI Schools.

The groom is a 1970 graduate of Smith-Cotton High School and a 1972 graduate of State Fair Community College. He is assistant manager of Food-4-Less.

The groom's parents entertained the evening before the wedding at their home with a rehearsal dinner to honor the couple.

Munsterman-Franklin

STOVER — Miss Marsha Lynne Munsterman became the bride of Michael Eugene Franklin in a double ring ceremony at Christ Lutheran Church here May 23.

The Rev. Douglas Helling read the vows for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwell Munsterman, Stover, and the son of Carl Franklin, 640 East Ninth, Sedalia, and the late Mrs. Franklin.

MRS. MICHAEL EUGENE FRANKLIN
Miss Marsha Lynne Munsterman

Arrangements of carnations and daisies formed the altar setting for the ceremony. Galen Oehrke was organist and Dale Grunewald was the vocalist. Candlelighters were Rick Franklin, brother of the groom, and Myron Munsterman, brother of the bride, who also performed ushering duties.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown styled with a ruffled neckline, long sleeves with ruffled cuffs. The skirt fell into a chapel train and her illusion veil was elbow length.

Mrs. Vernon Zurmiller, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and she wore a long, blue, empire-waisted gown. The flower girl was Shandi Lewis, cousin of the groom, who also wore a blue gown.

Vernon Zurmiller served as best man and Michael Munsterman, a nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

Varney-Wharton marry

KNOB NOSTER — Repeating wedding vows May 24 at the Whiteman AFB Chapel here were Miss Laureen Diane Varney and Charles Michael Wharton.

Parents of the newlywed couple are Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Varney and Mr. and Mrs. Ermile Wharton, all of Knob Noster.

Candelabra and bouquets of yellow and white gladioli, mums and daisies decorated the altar. Mrs. Merle Matthews was the organist and Mrs. Jack Echols was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white organza gown, trimmed in lace and fashioned with sheer long sleeves, stand-up collar, empire waist and chapel train. Her long veil of illusion was edged in lace.

Mrs. Ken Hotleli was the matron of honor. Miss Teresa Varney, sister of the bride, and Miss Debe Rhodes were the bridesmaids. They wore long yellow knit gowns styled with empire waists, long sleeves and high collars, and straw picture hats.

Jay Adcox was best man. Groomsmen were Bob Harrison and Cliff Emig. Seating the guests were Dale Wharton, Jerry Wharton and Larry Wharton, brothers of the groom.

Miss Tricia Agueros was flower girl and Mark Wharton, nephew of the groom, was ringbearer. Troy Lynn Wharton, niece of the groom, and Mike Varney, brother of the bride, were candlelighters.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Charlie and Johnny's Steak House here. After a wedding trip to the Lodge of the Four Seasons in the Ozarks, the couple is at home here.

The bride, a 1973 graduate of Knob Noster High School, will complete a two-year degree in child development this fall at Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg. The groom, a 1970 Knob Noster High graduate, is employed with Corbett Builders.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Wharton the evening before the wedding.

Bawden-Opoien vows

KNOB NOSTER — In a ceremony May 24 at the First Methodist Church, Vermillian, S.D., Miss Betty Joyce Bawden exchanged wedding vows with Thomas Patrick Opoien.

The Rev. Jack Carnichael performed the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Bawden, Knob Noster, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. James Opoien, Ruthven, Iowa.

Arrangements of white and blue pompons and gladioli decorated the altar. Fayne Fossum was the organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white silk organza gown featuring a scoop neckline, empire bodice and bishop sleeves. Her A-line skirt, appliqued with Venise lace, fell to a cathedral length train and her silk illusion veil was secured with a camelot headpiece of organza and lace.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church annex.

The couple will be at home in Vermillion where the bride is a music student at the University of South Dakota. The groom will graduate from USC at the close of the summer session.

A superb new elna for every woman who wants quality in everyday sewing.

From the Swiss craftsmen of Elna comes the new Elna TSP, a worthy addition to the Elna line which has captured 41 first place awards in international competitions held in 13 countries.

In stitching performance and quality, the new Elna TSP is the equal of all Elnas. Programmed to provide a variety of the most wanted practical sewing stitches, plus reverse action stitches for sewing the new stretch fabrics, the Elna TSP is the ideal sewing machine for millions of American women.

In all, the Elna TSP brings you 14 important built-in stitches plus a bonus of no-turn buttonholing . . . a versatility that exceeds other, more expensive machines.

Each stitch is sewn exquisitely. Zigzag. Elastic blind stitch and edging stitch. Scalloped edging. Overcasting and patching. Interlock and overlock. Three step and triple zigzag. Embroidery. Jersey stitch. Tricot stitch and hemming stitch. And of course, straight sewing. All at your command with dual range electronic speed control. On a full range of fabrics from sheer to heavy. With full power even at slow speeds.

Compare the new Elna TSP with the top-of-the-line Elna Super, which offers 19 stitch possibilities plus a vast array of optional interchangeable cams for the perfectionist. You may decide that the Elna TSP is all the sewing machine you truly need, and at less cost than the Elna Super.

And you wouldn't mind the savings, would you?

United in marriage Friday at First Assembly of God Church were Miss Gayle Marie Vansell and Dolan Ray Smith.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Richard Vansell Jr., 711 West Fourth, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Smith, 1828 South Sneed.

The Rev. Floyd T. Buntenbach performed the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Arch candelabra with vases of daisies and baby's breath decorated the altar. Miss Sheri Buntenbach was the organist and Bill Rutledge was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin gown accented with embroidered eyelet lace at the bodice sleeves and dress front. It also featured a detachable chapel train. Her three-tiered chapel length veil was edged in lace.

Cousins of the bride served as matron and maid of honor, Mrs. Darrell Baker and Miss Carrie Vansell. Bridesmaids were Miss Ramona Moore and Miss Marlene Morrison, cousin of the groom. They wore long empire-waisted gowns in pastel colors, flocked with white daisies, and white picture hats.

Misses Sheri and Mary Vansell, sisters of the bride, were candlelighters. Misses LaDonna Vansell and Kenna Sands, cousin of the bride, were flower girls. Brad Vansell, the bride's cousin, was ringbearer.

Carroll Keele was best man. Groomsmen were David Moore, Brian Rutledge and William Richard Vansell III, brother of the bride. Performing ushering duties were Steve Rutledge, Steve Wilcox, Bob Wilcox and Leo Morrison, cousin of the groom.

Following a reception at the church, the couple left on a honeymoon to Bagnell Dam and the Lake of the Ozarks. The bride wore a white two-piece dress with bandana trim for traveling.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner Thursday at Flat Creek Inn.

soloist. Candlelighters were Lanny Geary and Michael Kern.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white sheer dotted swiss. Heavy white lace banded the neckline, short raglan sleeves and lifted waistline. Her princess skirt fell into a chapel train and was edged with a deep ruffle, topped with a wide band of lace. She wore a matching garden hat.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Rod Adams, and bridesmaids were Miss Julie Case and Miss Leslie Case, sisters of the groom. They wore gowns of flower garden printed voile, styled with fitted overblouses trimmed in lace. Their A-line skirts were edged with wide ruffles and they wore natural colored garden hats.

Steven Fischer served as best man and groomsmen were Dennis Sousley and Kevin DeSplinter. Ushering duties were performed by Lanny Geary and Miachel Kern.

The reception followed at the home of the groom's parents.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of Stover High School; the groom with the class of 1973 and the bride with the class of 1974.

Mr. and Mrs. Case will reside in Columbia where he is majoring in chemistry at the University of Missouri.

Stilley-Major

KANSAS CITY — Miss Barbara Ann Stilley and Roy Morris Major were married at 3 p.m. Saturday at Broadway Baptist Church here.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert James Stilley, Raytown, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Major, Hughesville.

The Rev. Paul Smith performed the double ring ceremony. Paul Paris was the organist and his wife, Karen, was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory sata peau gown designed with a fitted bodice and jewel neckline trimmed with smocking lace. The long, slim sleeves featured a ruffle edge cap. Vertical lace bands and smocking accented the A-line skirt with a wide flounce at the hem, extending to a chapel train with a long illusion veil.

Attending her sister as matron of honor was Mrs. Frederick V. Langner. Mrs. Jim Stilley, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Sally Powers were bridesmaids. They wore pink dotted swiss gowns with butterfly sleeves and flounces at the hem of their A-line skirts.

Dean Williams was best man. Groomsmen were Jim McCallister and Bob Drayer. Seating the guests were Bill Stilley, Jim Stilley, brothers of the bride, and Fred Langner, brother-in-law of the bride.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner Friday at the Independence Ramada Inn.

The couple will reside in Kansas City. The bride, a 1968 graduate of Raytown High School, has attended William Jewell College and Central Missouri State University. She is employed with suburbia Systems, Inc. The groom, a 1965 graduate of Smith-Cotton High School, was graduated in 1969 from CMSU. He is employed with Columbian Steel Tank Co.

Rayl-Singer

Wedding vows were exchanged Saturday at 8 p.m. at New Salem Baptist Church by Miss Janet Rayl and Keith Singer.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Nell Rayl, Marshall, and the late Norman W. Rayl. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Virgil K. Singer, Houstonia.

The Rev. Albert Bunch performed the double ring ceremony before an altar lit with candelabra and decorated with mums and daisies. Mrs. Ginger Coffelt was the pianist.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Leonard Hall, the bride wore a gown of Quiana trimmed in Alencon lace. Her gathered bodice and train were secured from the empire waist. Her chapel length illusion veil was trimmed in matching lace and secured with a seed pearl and lace head band. The bride and her mother fashioned her gown and veil. Her only jewelry was a diamond necklace, gift of the groom.

Miss Norma Rayl, niece of the bride, was the maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Miss Rose Ann Smith. They wore orchid crepe gowns.

Lighting the candles were Miss Sandra Singer, sister of the groom, and Miss Becky Schlomer. The bride's niece, Sherry Rayl, was the flower girl and the groom's nephew, Andy Cicle, was the ringbearer.

Randy Rife was best man and Alan Meyer was groomsman. Seating the guests were Lonnie Pauley and Jeff Rayl, nephew of the bride.

Following a reception in the church recreation room, the couple left on a honeymoon through the southern states. The bride wore a powder blue dress with matching jacket for traveling.

The newlyweds will reside in Houstonia. The bride, a 1974 graduate of Northwest High School, is a student at State Fair Community College. The groom, also a 1974 Northwest graduate, is employed at Schroeder Implement Co., Sedalia.

Carpenter-Wolfe

WARRENSBURG — Miss Joyce Carpenter became the bride of the Rev. Neil Wolfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wolfe, 1403 East Ninth, Sedalia, in a 2 p.m. ceremony May 24 at the Grover Park Baptist Church here. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Murlen Carpenter, Appleton City.

Yellow mums and white gladioli decorated the altar as the Rev. Pete Hill performed the double ring ceremony. John Clinger was the organist and Tim Waters was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a long white organza gown styled with a V-neckline, empire waist, shepherdess sleeves and flounced hem. Her elbow length illusion veil fell from a cap of white lace. Her only jewelry was a gold cross with diamond center, a gift from the groom.

The bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Marsha Carpenter was maid of honor and Mrs. Linda Clay was the bridesmaid. They wore long yellow floral crepe gowns.

Dennis Baumgarden was best man and Randy Gay was the groomsman. Seating the guests were Herb Carpenter, brother of the bride, and Dan Eatherton.

Following a reception in the church dining hall, the couple left on a honeymoon to southern Missouri and Silver Dollar City. The bride wore a floral jersey dress as her going-away outfit.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner the evening before the wedding at Lamb's Restaurant here.

The newlyweds are at home in Odessa. The bride holds a B.S. degree in elementary education from Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg, and will teach at Farmers Elementary School near Odessa this fall. The groom, a student at CMSU, is pastor of Long Branch Baptist Church, Odessa.

Sammons-Viles

KNOB NOSTER — A morning ceremony united Miss Mary Frances Sammons and Herman Eric Viles in marriage May 24 at the Boulevard Baptist Church, Albuquerque, N.M.

The Rev. W. Shope performed the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erman Sammons Jr., Albuquerque, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Grayson E. Viles II, Knob Noster.

Candelabra and arrangements of daisies and peach carnations decorated the altar. Jackie Shelton was the pianist.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a long gown of sheerganza enhanced with Chantilly lace at the pinafore bodice, bishop sleeves, flounced hemline and chapel train. Her veil was shoulder length.

Attending her sister as matron of honor was Mrs. Felix Wakefield, who wore a peach satin gown with dotted swiss overlay. Her husband, Felix Wakefield, was best man.

Following a reception at the home of the bride's parents, the couple honeymooned at Elephant Butte. The bride wore a turquoise pantsuit for traveling.

The newlyweds are at home in Knob Noster.

LaFoy-Case

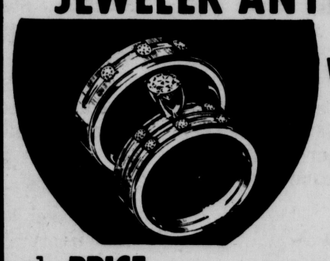

STOVER — Miss Vicki Renee LaFoy and Jeffrey Don Case exchanged wedding vows May 30 in a 7 p.m. ceremony at St. Paul's Lutheran Church here. The Rev. J.C. Schedler officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Hulse, Tulsa, Okla., and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Case, Stover.

Twin wicker baskets and twin candelabra holding flower garden bouquets formed the altar setting. Miss Debbie Palmer was the organist and Miss Susan Steinmeyer was the Outrageous unisex rules for schools

Mandatory sexually integrated physical education classes. Mandatory boy-and-girl health education classes. Mandatory coed school groups and activities. Mandatory coeducational education in vocational schools, graduate schools, and other schools. The government now requires these things at all learning institutions from kindergartens through graduate schools receiving federal funds — which means most public schools in the nation.

Did the courts order these mandatory requirements? No.

Did a specific law become enacted requiring the changes? No, at least not directly.

These radical rules came from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The department had help, since Congress gave HEW the power to create its own laws, in effect, by implementing the provisions of Title IX of a 1972 education act. That title states that no person shall, on the basis of sex, "be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination" under programs receiving federal funds.

By a fantastic interpretation of this broad provision, HEW decided that Mary suffers exclusion or a denial of benefits or discrimination if she isn't doing push-ups or rope climbs with Johnny instead of just with Sally. Either willingly or witlessly, Congress gave the HEW bureaucrats the power to run wild. Contact sports are excluded from the commingling, but other than that the unisex approach is virtually absolute.

Fortunately, Congress gave itself 45 days to veto the regulations, and it should do so as a first order of business. Congress has been acquainted with the regulations since June 1974, when HEW proposed them, so it has had ample time to reflect on how doctrinaire, unyielding and irrational the regulations are in at least some cases and age groups.

Sad to say, President Ford signed these radical regulations into effect.

If the government can decide how gym classes and health classes are conducted, it can intrude into other areas of the curriculum as well, into school administration, and into other school affairs. The omniscient and omnipotent hand of the federal government has moved deep into the school system when it decides that little girls can't have their own school groups and little boys can't have theirs, or that girls must at all ages be in the same physical education classes as boys.

If real, bonafide discrimination exists, the courts are the place to go for redress. But HEW has decreed that unisex must be pursued in all school matters at almost all times and regardless of any other consideration. This is a wretched absolutism, fostered by bureaucrats creating their own laws. Congress must overturn the edict. (St. Louis Globe Democrat)

Top military brass live in high style

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The top military brass like to believe they are serving their country at great sacrifice. The prevailing myth is that they are paid far less than they could earn in the corporate world.

This is an argument that invariably is dragged out when there is pressure to reduce military spending. We have investigated the impoverishment, therefore, of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Each draws a $36,000 annual salary which, compared to corporate wages, seems modest enough. But this is merely the tip of the pecuniary iceberg. They also collect a generous share of the $650 million in tax-free benefits that go to the military brass each year.

The taxpayers, for example, provide the Joint Chiefs with pocket money, Each one draws an annual "personal money allowance" of $4,000, plus another $600 to cover "day-to-day" expenses.

Unlike most corporate executives, the Joint Chiefs need not concern themselves with monthly housing payments. The government furnishes them with magnificent mansions suitable to their status.

For example, Gen. George S. Brown, the JCS chairman, occupies a handsome, 12-room brick home that would rent on the Washington market for about $750 a month.

Such cavernous houses, of course, require upkeep. The Pentagon has never been so short of manpower that troops could not be spared from military duties to wait on tables, mow lawns and perform other menial chores for the top brass.

Each military chief is alloted five "enlisted aides," as these personal servants are delicately called. Only Gen. David C. Jones, the Air Force chief, doesn't utilize his full quota. He now gets by with only four enlisted servants.

This doesn't count the chauffeurs, of course, who are available to drive the Joint Chiefs around in government limousines wherever they wish to go.

If the traffic is too heavy, a military chief can summon a helicopter from nearby Andrews Air Force Base to lift him over the heads of the less-blessed motorists below.

Nor does a member of the Joint Chiefs need to worry about making plane reservations when he travels. A plane from the VIP squadron is available to whisk him anywhere in the world at his command.

If he should wish to take his family along on a vacation, the Defense Department maintains several posh resorts around the world where the military brass can stay at bargain rates.

A $20 million complex is under construction in Hawaii, for example, for the "rest and relaxation" of weary servicemen. The Joint Chiefs, of course, can always reserve the best quarter at these holiday spas.

Other innumerable little benefits have become part of the lifestyle of the Joint Chiefs — such as subsidized Pentagon meals and golfing, swimming, tennis and drinking facilities at bases throughout the world.

What's more, the Joint Chiefs will go on drawing full benefits and 75 per cent of their pay after they retire. Yet they contribute not a cent to their retirement fund.

Experts have calculated for us that the taxpayers pay each of the Joint Chiefs not the paltry $36,000 that our military leaders complain about but an equivalent of about $200,000 a year.

MARKARIOS PLOT: More than four years ago, we reported that the Central Intelligence Agency had become involved in the dirty business of assassinating foreign leaders. We described six attempts to kill Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, complete with the names of the CIA agents and the Mafia figures they recruited to handle the job.

Our story was denied and denounced by CIA spokesmen. But the Rockefeller Commission has now uncovered evidence which completely confirms our story.

We have also reported that the CIA was in contact with the plotters who gunned down Dominican dictator Rafael Trujillo and attempted to murder Haitian President Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier.

Now an investigative study by one of the best reporters in the business, Larry Stern, links the CIA with an assassination attempt upon Archbishop Makarios, the president of Cyprus. Stern's report will be published soon in the prestigious Foreign Policy magazine.

As Stern recounts it, Cypriot House Speaker Glafkos Clerides confronted the U.S. embassy with the charge that Eric Neff, the former CIA chief in Cyprus, had held a secret meeting in Athens with Cypriot Nikos Sampson, whose strongarm activities have been documented.

Both Neff and Sampson were known to be opposed to Makarios. Indeed, "Makarios privately complained to the U.S. embassy at Neff's open hostility to Makarios," Stern reports.

Subsequently, Sampson overthrew Makarios and put out a premature radio bulletin that the archibishop had been killed. Sampson's strongarm men, it is believed, tried to murder Makarios, who had a narrow escape.

Neff could not be reached for comment.

Footnote: Stern reports that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger was awakened early one morning during the Cyprus crisis by Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit. The Turkish leader complained that a Greek ship was flying Turkish flags to confuse Ecevit's air force. Nancy Kissinger sleepily told her husband, according to Stern: "Why don't you tell him to shut up and sink the goddamn thing?"

Art Buchwald

Living with a libber

WASHINGTON — The Women's Lib Movement has made its impact on college and most parents are feeling it now that their daughters are home from school.

Buchwald

The big question being debated in households all over America is whether a liberated college student should be required to make her own bed and do dishes in her own home.

This is how's it's been going in our house.

"Would you mind making your bed and cleaning up your room?" asks the maker of Mom's apple pie.

"I am not a slave," replies the apple of our eye. "For centuries women have been relegated to dreary housework and we have to put a stop to it."

"That's true. But cleaning up your own room under our present form of government does not constitute slavery."

"The day of women using vacuum cleaners and dusty mops is over. We must free ourselves from the image men have of us as servants."

The maker of Mom's apple pie says, "No one could be prouder of the battle you're waging for full equality. But if you don't clean up your room then I will have to, and I don't see how that would strike a blow for women's liberation."

"Why you?" the apple of our eye says. "Don't you see, Mom, by cleaning up my room you are certifying the male image of us as weak, passive, dependent and inferior human beings. Why doesn't Dad clean up my room?"

"That's a good question, but if I were you I wouldn't ask him."

"That's just my point. For years we've been cleaning up our rooms and making our beds. It's time we put a stop to it and said to our men, 'You want a clean bedroom — clean it yourself!' "

"I'm sure in your consciousness-raising sessions this sounds very good, but there are also health problems that have to be taken into consideration. We're not asking you to clean up the house — just your own room. Doesn't the feminist movement make any allowances for that?"

"There's more to life, Mom, than making beds."

"I know that. There's also the dishes. You've been home for two weeks now and I don't think you've washed a dish."

"I refuse to be part of role-playing in this house. The role of women as the official dishwasher has to be turned around. The kitchen is a prison which we must break out of so we can use our God-given talents to do something constructive."

"Even feminists don't like to eat off dirty plates," the maker of Mom's apple pie says. "Couldn't you wash the dishes and then plan your revolution?"

"We're never going to change a male-dominated society if we keep doing dishes."

"I don't expect you to wash everyone's dishes, because I know that would be complete surrender to male supremacy. What I was hoping was that you would do your own dishes when you ate in the kitchen."

"You don't seem to understand, Mom. Every dish I wash encourages the sexism that is rampant in America today. If we don't take our stand on dishwashing, the movement will go down the drain."

"Well that takes care of the kitchen and your bedroom. You wouldn't consider going to the supermarket for me, would you?"

"Do you want to hear what Kate Millett has to say about grocery shopping?"

"I knew I shouldn't have asked."

A conservative view

Judges must be convinced of busing's failure

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — In recent weeks, three researchers in the field of school desegregation have voiced an identical conclusion: Racial-balance busing simply does not work. The practice does more harm than good, and ought to be abandoned.

Kilpatrick

This is scarcely a novel conclusion. A great many critics of the federal courts have been saying this for years. What gives weight to the most recent appraisal is that the three researchers cannot be described, by any stretch of the imagination, as bigots, yahoos, or rednecks. They are qualified scholars.

James S. Coleman, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, is principal author of the famed "Coleman Report" of 1966. Biloine Whiting Young is a former instructor at the University of Illinois who served as director of the Illinois project for gifted children. Grace Billings Bress taught at the University of Minnesota and was a Woodrow Wilson fellow at Harvard.

Mrs. Young and Mrs. Bress offered their observations last month in the Kappan, the magazine of Phi Delta Kappa professional education fraternity. They reviewed research done by others over a 20-year period, and concluded that racial-balance busing is a "dangerously simplistic" device that has created expectations it has so far been unable to satisfy.

"Further," the two educators remark, "mandatory busing has contributed to the racial and economic segregation of our cities on a scale undreamed of in 1954, to the extent that in many there are no longer enough white pupils to integrate."

In an interview published by National Observer, Coleman made the same points. He studied data for 1968-73 from the 20 largest school districts in the country, and from the 50 next largest. He also took a general look at racial trends in very small districts. He concluded that integration can work, in the sense of maintaining a stable racial balance, in a small district, but it has "a very difficult time working in a large district."

Coleman was sharply critical of the federal courts for their role in desegregation. He termed them "the worst of all possible instruments for carrying out a very sensitive activity." When judges fail to consider that their decress may cause "white flight and resegregation," their orders are "exactly the wrong thing to do."

Looking to the future, Coleman sees a "general resegreagation in all regions of the country." Especially in major cities, middle-class whites will continue to flee to the suburbs or to private schools. This is not necessarily a manifestation of race prejudice as such. "In large cities, where the system often seems out of control, there's a much greater feeling of inability to have any impact on the schools, a feeling that schools cannot maintain order, and a feeling that the schools cannot protect the child."

Coleman finds it understandable that many parents, white and black alike, don't want to send their children to schools "where 90 per cent of the time is spent not on instruction but on discipline." Failure to control "undisciplined and violent behavior on the part of some black children" serves to intensify the prejudice of whites. Educational achievement suffers, and massive busing makes bad matters worse.

If racial-balance busing is wrong socially, and wrong educationally, can it be justified constitutionally? Mrs. Bress and Mrs. Young identify what they term the "judicial essence" of the Supreme Court's 1954 decision: "Namely, that the law must be applied to all Americans in a color-blind fashion; that race is not a constitutionally valid basis for differentiating among school children. . ."

Accepting that succinct formulation, I confess my own inability to comprehend why the federal courts persist in their reckless and irresponsible course. When children are bused away from their neighborhoods, solely because of the color of their skin, court orders are not color-blind. Such orders differentiate on race, and on race alone. The Equal Protection Clause becomes a nullity, and the Constitution is turned on its head.

Professor Coleman, Mrs. Bress, and Mrs. Young, in voicing their objections, join many other respected critics in saying that busing is a mistake. When will the courts pay them heed?

Biblical treat

Although the United States leads the world in consumption, with the average American eating more than 80 doughnuts a year, the pastry is not American in origin. The Bible describes a forerunner of the doughnut in Leviticus, directing that "cakes mingled with oil . . . of fine flour. fried," be used in sacrifices. Some still regard the doughnut as a misdirected bagel.

CATV money needs are still there

The 25-cent monthly rate increase tentatively approved for Cablevision Inc. this week by the City Council would have only a negligible impact on the company's local services, Cablevision manager Lynn Harrison said Friday.

"This would be only a 4.3 per cent increase in our rates, compared to the 70.7 per cent increase in costs we have experienced in recent years," Harrison said. "That wouldn't be enough to hardly make any difference for us at all."

If the company's request of a $1 per month rate hike, from $5.90 to $6.90, were approved, steps would be taken to expedite current improvement work, possibly construct a new headquarters center and install new services, Harrison said.

"To get ourselves in shape, the best thing for us to do would be to build a whole new system," he stated. "Our home office has already got the plans drawn up. We're just waiting to earn enough money to get the project off the ground."

The complex, Harrison said, would contain updated and expanded facilities "consistent with the present state of the art."

Among the new services that would be introduced, he said, would be an emergency alert system that would be connected to the Sedalia-Pettis County Civil Defense headquarters. Under this system, Civil Defense officials would be able to immediately interrupt regular Cablevision programming on all channels with emergency messages.

Another anticipated advancement, Harrison said, would be the installation of a line connecting the local Cablevision station, Channel 2, with the broadcasting facility at State Fair Community College. Such an improvement, he explained, would permit SFCC educational and entertainment programs to be broadcast directly from the college.

Another less-definite possibility, Harrison said, might be the establishment of a Chamber of Commerce message center in conjunction with Channel 2. Under this program a special "character generator" typewriter keyboard system, connected from the Chamber office to the station, would be installed. Chamber officials would be able to type out messages that would appear simultaneously on television screens.

Regarding the improvement of existing services, Harrison said additional funds would particularly benefit the current continuing improvement program whereby all original cablevision "tap connections" installed 10 years ago are being replaced.

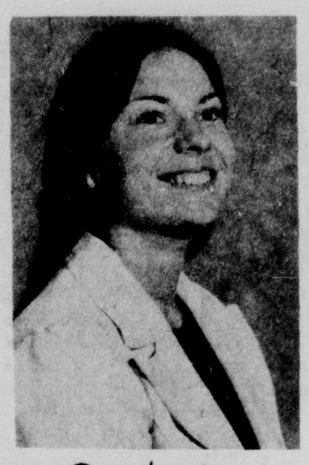

"We are and will continue to be engaged in an ongoing attempt to improve the services we currently offer," Harrison said. "The thing is, if we were granted the $1-a-month increase, we could proceed much more expediently."

In past years, Harrison said, Cablevision viewers have had their pictures impaired "simply because the state of the art wasn't as developed 10 years ago as it is now." The company, he noted, has spent $3,400 in the past two years to improve the reception of Channel 5.

Most of this money, he said, has gone toward purchasing additional antennas to bring in better signals. This problem of Channel 6 overlapping into Channel 5 has been one of the main complaints of some local Cablevision subscribers. Harrison indicated further improvements could be achieved.

In 1972, he said, the Federal Communications Commission set forth several guidelines for standards which must be met by March 1, 1977. "Since then, we have conscientiously tried to improve our services to meet these standards," Harrison said. "But in order to meet this deadline, we are going to have to expedite our maintenance schedule."

The company's local live-programming facilities have been shutdown since last fall to cut costs. If the increase were granted, Harrison said, "we would provide a public access program where local groups wishing to use our facilities would be permitted to do so."

Legislative pay raise not over with yet

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Rep. Gerry Durnell, R-Springfield, said Friday he will try to add a legislative pay raise proposal to a bill designed to cut the size of the Missouri House from 163 to 141 members.

Both measures would have to be approved by voters as a constitutional amendment if placed on the ballot by the legislature.

The bill to reduce the size of the House probably will come up for consideration in the House next week.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond already has vetoed a bill this year to boost the pay to $12,400.

(Democrat-Capital Service)

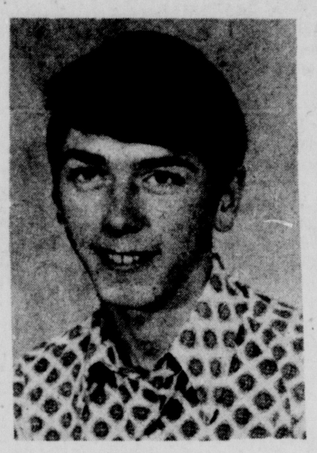

WARRENSBURG — The earliest rags of Scott Joplins and the music of Berlin and Gershwin will highlight a presentation of America's musical past when the Riverboat Ragtime Revue visits Central Missouri State University June 16.

The comedy of Mark Twain, songs and dances will combine for a nostalgic and memorable look at the great ragtme era. Actor-singer Cary Burkett, in the roll of Mark Twain, will host the show. Burkett has toured throughout the U.S. as Mark Twain.

Ragtime pianist Dick Kroeckel, known throughout the Rocky Mountain west, will also be featured, as will Ken Hazelrigg, banjoist and singer who has toured nationally with the fame Jamz Dutton Rosewood Rebellion from Chicago. Texas singer Dee Spears will complete the foursome for the two-hour performance.

There is no admission charge for the Riverboat Ragtime Revue performance, to be held at Hendricks Hall. Arrangements for the presentation were made by the University Convocation Committee.

Named to Boys State

Kent Dooley, left, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Dooley, 815 South Vermont, and Allen Eckerle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Eckerle, Otterville, will attend the American Legion Boys State of Missouri June 14-21 at Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg. Dooley will be a senior next year at Sacred Heart High School and Eckerle will be a senior at Otterville High School.

Grants given to educators,

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Some $56,000 in grants were distributed Friday to 16 Kansas and western Missouri educational institutions and other organizations by the Union Pacific Railroad Foundation.

The president of the foundation, Arthur Z. Gray, of New York, presented the checks at a luncheon here. The foundation makes the grants every year in each of the 13 states in which the railroad operates.

Grants went to Rockhurst College, Kansas City, Mo.; Donnelly College, Kansas City, Kan.; Kansas Foundation for Private Colleges, Inc.; Bethany College, Lindsborg, Kan.; Marymount College and Kansas Wesleyan, both at Salina, Kan.; the Kansas City Regional Council for Higher Education, and to the Menninger Foundation, Topeka, Kan.

Other grants went to Kansas United Fund campaigns in Abilene, Salina, Sheridan County, Hoxie, and Kansas City; plus Missouri United Fund campaigns in St. Joseph and Kansas City.

Emergency crop borrowing at $51 million

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — A federal official reported Friday that Kansas farmers and stockmen have borrowed more than $51 million in emergency crop and livestock loans to survive economic losses from low livestock prices and the 1974 summer drought.

Morgan Williams, Kansas director for the Farmer Home Administration, said 300 cattlemen received loans totaling $27.3 million guaranteed under the Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974.

He said more than 1,300 farmers borrowed a total of $23.8 million under the emergency crop program.

Some 500 applications are still being processed, Williams said.

He said the total borrowed is an all time high and indicates the severity of the economic crunch faced by the agricultural community.

Today's hand should serve as a perfect example of incorrect bidding.

North started by opening one club instead of one diamond. With two five-card suits you open the higher ranking except when your two suits are spades and clubs.

East's spade overcall was sound to say the least, and South's two diamond call eminently correct. We can't find much wrong with West's jump to three spades, although some players would have gone one higher.

North's four spade cue bid was a trifle too much for his hand, but it worked to the extent that East with his tremendous hand pulled in his horns, buried his head in the sand like the ostrich and refused to make any further bids.

South's five club call was fine. In fact, we can find nothing wrong with anything South did.

If North had simply bid five diamonds he would really have come out in good shape. After West's normal opening lead of the fourth-best spade, South would make that game contract. As it was, South had to struggle unsuccessfully at six.

If East had just been thinking about what his partner might be holding he would surely have bid six spades. This contract would have wheeled in with just normal careful play.

What do you do now?

A — Just bid four hearts. You may be missing a slam, but some slams are going to be missed.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding three hearts your partner has responded one spade. What do you do now?

Triple Crown shared by trio

Avatar captures the Belmont Stakes

At the finish

Avatar, right, with jockey Willie Shoemaker, crosses the finish line ahead of Foolish Pleasure, winner of the Kentucky Derby. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — Avatar took the lead with about an eighth of a mile to go and then held off Kentucky Derby-winner Foolish Pleasure to capture the $193,600 Belmont Stakes Saturday at Belmont Park.

Avatar's victory split the 1975 Triple Crown three ways. Master Derby, who had won the Preakness, was third in the Belmont.

Bill Shoemaker kept Avatar out of trouble and in good position down the backstretch and then asked him to move on the turn as Master Derby also began a move that took him into first place ahead of pace-setting Diabolo.

Then as Diabolo faded, Shoemaker sent Avatar into the lead and went on to post the jockey's fourth Belmont victory in nine tries.

Foolish Pleasure's unsuccessful surge gave his his second straight runnerup finish in the Triple Crown series.

Avatar's winning margin over Foolish Pleasure at the end of the 1½ miles in 2:28 1-5 was a neck. Foolish Pleasure was 3½ lengths ahead of Master Derby, four lengths in front of Diabolo.

While this Belmont was Shoemaker's fourth success, it was the first on the first try for Avatar's owner, Arthur A. Seeligson Jr., who is in the oil and investment business in San Antonio, Tex.

Avatar, a son of Graustar Brown Berry and the Derby runnerup and fifth in the Preakness, paid $28.40, $8 and $5. Foolish Pleasure, owned by John L. Greer, returned $3.20 and $2.60 and Master Derby, owned by Mrs. Robert Lehmann, paid $5.20.

Following Diabolo across the finish the 107th Belmont were Prince Thou Art, the second-betting favorite who never was a factor; Singh; Just the Time; Nalees Rialto and Syllabus.

Diabolo, ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., broke on top and held the lead around the turn and down the backstretch as Master Derby and Avatar ran almost as one behind him. Foolish Pleasure was fifth with a halfmile to go and fourth with a quarter-mile to go.

Master Derby, ridden by Darrel McHargue, closed with Diabolo midway through the turn and took the lead coming into the stretch. Avatar also made his move on the turn, as did Foolish Pleasure.

Avatar's move brought Seeligson $116,160. Foolish Pleasure's move brought Greer $42,592. But since it fell short, it brought a great deal more disappointment to Greer and Leroy Jolley, who trains the 2-year-old champion of 1974.

For Avatar, who is trained by Tommy Doyle, the Belmont was the colt's fifth victory in 12 starts this year. It boosted his lifetime earnings to $276,210, all but $4,382 coming in 1975. The victory also boosted his stud value considerably.

Shoemaker turned in the kind of ride expected of a jockey whose victories are approaching the 7,000 and who has won more than 100 $100,000 races and whose mounts have earned more than $50 million.

His other Belmont winners were with Gallant Man in 1957, Sword Dancer in 1959, Jaipur in 1962 and Damascus in 1967. This was his first Belmont appearance since he rode Damascus.

A crowd of 60,321 was on hand for The Shoe's fifth Belmont triumph.

"I didn't want to take the lead when I did," said Shoemaker, "but I didn't have a choice. Master Derby ran out of gas and left me in front. I decided I might as well go on now."

"I was a little scared when he had to go to the front so early because, as you know, the horse has a tendency to loaf," said trainer Doyle.

Vasquez, who missed a Triple Crown by a total of a length (in the Preakness) and a neck said "I had dead aim on him from the three-eighths pole on but I just couldn't catch him. No excuses. We ran our race. We didn't win."

It was the first time since 1970 that three 3-year-olds won a Triple Crown race. In 1970 Dust Commander, the sire of Master Derby, won the Kentucky Derby; Personality won the Preakness and High Echelon won the Belmont.

The race was run on a fast track under partly cloudy skies with the temperatures in the mid-70s. All nine starters carried 126 pounds.

Orioles knock Royals, 7-3

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dave Duncan's two-run double capped a five-run fifth inning and Mike Torrez allowed five Kansas City hits, leading the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-3 victory over the Royals Saturday night.

Dennis Leonard, 2-2, walked Al Bumbry and Tommy Davis tripled for a run to break a 2-2 tie and start the Baltimore burst. Lee May's single scored Davis, Ken Singleton singled and Paul Blair walked to load the bases.

After Doug Bird replaced Leonard, Brooks Robinson made it 5-2 with a sacrifice fly, then Duncan sent Singleton and Blair home with his double into the left-field corner.

The Orioles took a 2-0 lead in the first inning on run-scoring singles by Davis and Blair. The Royals tied it off Torrez, 7-3, in the second on George Brett's

Cards 5, Astros 1

HOUSTON (AP) — Ted Simmons slammed a tie-breaking two-run double in the eighth inning Saturday night and the St. Louis Cardinals handed Houston its seventh straight loss, whipping the Astros 5-1.

Willie Davis doubled and Reggie Smith walked before Simmons sent a pitch by Dave Roberts, 3-7, off the left-field wall. Luis Melendez then sent Simmons home with a single to right. St. Louis wrapped it up with a run in the ninth on a walk, a sacrifice and Ted Sizemore's single.

The Cards took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Reggie Smith walked, took second on a passed ball and came home on Ken Reitz' single. Houston tied it off Lynn McGlothen, 6-4, in the sixth when Cesar Cedeno's double to left-center field scored Greg Gross, who had walked. McGlothen finished with a six-hitter.

Braves 7, Mets 3

NEW YORK (AP) — Carl Morton stopped a personal six-game losing streak and knocked in two runs to lead the Atlanta Braves to a 7-3 decision over the New York Mets Saturday.

Morton, 6-6, who last won on April 26 when he beat the San Diego Padres, scattered nine hits in seven innings. New York left-hander John Matlack, 7-4, was the loser.

Red Sox 3, Twins 1

BOSTON (AP) — Carl Yastrzemski and Fred Lynn whacked run-scoring singles in the eighth inning, propelling the Boston Red Sox to a 3-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

Bernie Carbo opened the Red Sox eighth with a single and pinch runner Rick Miller took second on a wild pitch and third on a sacrifice. Yastrzemski then singled in the tie-breaking run before Lynn provided an insurance tally with his base hit.

Pirates 7, Giants 6

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Richie Hebner's leadoff home run tied the game and Manny Sanguillen's sacrifice fly won it as the Pittsburgh Pirates rallied for two runs in the eighth inning to beat the San Francisco Giants 7-6 Saturday.

Hebner's blast pulled the Pirates even at 6-6 after the Giants had rallied with three runs in the top tf the inning to take a 6-5 lead. Sanguillen's sacrifice fly then delivered pinch runner Mario Mendoza, on base for Bob Robertson.

Robertson had singled and Mendoza moved to third on a base hit by Rennie Stennett.

Rangers 5, Indians 4

CLEVELAND (AP) — Run-scoring singles by Mike Hargrove and Lenny Randle in the 12th inning Saturday gave the Texas Rangers a 5-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

The Indians tied the score in the bottom of the ninth on singles by Frank Robinson and Charlie Spikes and John Ellis' sacrifice fly.

Tigers 3, A's 0

OAKLAND (AP) — Lerrin LaGrow pitched a five-hitter and recorded the first shutout of his major league career as the Detroit Tigers stopped the Oakland A's 3-0 Saturday.

LaGrow, 4-4, had a no-hitter until Phil Garner singled with two out in the fifth inning. Bill North followed with another single but Bert Campaneris grounded out to end the inning.

The only other hits off the Tiger pitcher were a sixth-inning single by Billy Williams and singles by Claudell Washington in the seventh and ninth.

Reds 8, Cubs 1

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Bench, Dan Driessen and Joe Morgan slugged home runs Saturday to support Jack Billingham's five-hitter and power the Cincinnati Reds to an 8-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Bench led off the second inning against Ray Burris, 6-5, with his 12th homer of the year and Driessen followed with his first.

In the third, Bench singled for two more runs and, in the fifth, Morgan hit his seventh homer of the year.

Billingham, 6-3, lost his shutout in the sixth inning when the Cubs loaded the bases on singles by Pete LaCock, Don Kessinger and Jose Cardenal and got a run on Bill Madlock's forceout grounder.

The Reds came back with three runs in the bottom of the sixth as Chicago relievers Eddie Watt, Ken Frailing and Bob Locker each walked a man with the bases loaded.

Sedalia athlete signs intent for Lincoln U.

Leo Lewis, head football coach at Lincoln University, Jefferson City, announced Friday the Tigers have signed Sedalia Smith-Cotton's leading ground-gainer in 1974 to a letter of intent.

Marvin Spruell, who missed by only 45 yards of rushing for the coveted 1,000 mark, is the second All-Central Missouri Conference running back to be signed by Lewis.

Earlier, Lewis signed Delbert Thomas of Jefferson City Senior High School.

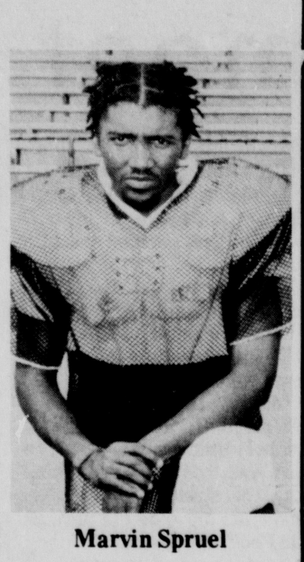

In addition to leading the Smith-Cotton Tigers in rushing as a senior last season, Spruell, son of Helen J. Spruell, 408 East Morgan, was the team's leading scorer with 50 points and eight touchdowns.

He also caught 16 passes for 214 yards, second-best on the team, and completed six of 11 halfback passes for 127 yards.

Spruell was one of the few bright spots in the Tigers' dismal 1-8-1 finish in 1974.

Spruell was named to the All-District Class 4A Football team by the Missouri Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association as a senior.

In a related announcement Friday, Lewis also said he had signed Dave Williams of Columbia Hickman to an athletic letter of intent.

Fired eight birdies

Yank wins British amateur event

HOYLAKE, England (AP) — Vinny Giles fired eight birdies and overwhelmed Mark James of England 8 and 7 for the British Amateur golf crown Saturday.

Giles, a 32-year-old lawyer from Richmond, Va., who was on a hot putting streak, opened with a birdie and led throughout the scheduled 36-hole final on Hoylake's famous seaside course.

Giles, the 1972 U.S. Amateur champion, parred the short 29th hole for the title after six days of play in which more than 200 golfers, including 37 Americans, from 10 nations sought success.

He was 2-up at the halfway mark, and the 21-year-old James was completely outclassed in the afternoon round played under sunny skies and before a huge gallery.

By the 19th hole, James was three down and never able to recover.

"Vinny never made one mistake all afternoon," James said.

Giles, who said he practiced putting in his hotel room prior to the final round, also was pleased with his game.

"I played today like I've been hoping to play all week," he said. "That birdie at the first hole was the greatest thing in the world. That sort of thing sets you up in the right frame of mind."

The first clue of things to come was the American's 20-foot birdie putt on the first hole on the 6,979-yard, par-72 course. Another birdie put him 2-up at the turn and gave him a two-under-par 34 for the front nine.

James held his own against Giles on the back nine. But after a brief rest, Giles started the afternoon round with another birdie on that No. 1 dogleg when he holed a spectacular wedge shot from 90 feet to go 3up.

From then on, it was Giles all the way. He came out of a sand trap to within three feet of the cup to stretch his lead to four at the 20th. He went ahead by five when a badly-overhit chip shot was stopped by the pin on the 22nd.

James, trying to hack out of the deep rough on the 23rd, sent the ball sailing over a fence and into a private garden. The shot also sent Giles to a six-hole lead.

They halved the next four holes, with Giles finishing the outward nine in three-under 33.

James, who relaxes by practicing yoga before each match, slumped again at the 409-yard 28th where he was in the deep rough for a bogey five. Giles went seven up on par with eight holes to play. He wrapped it up with a par on the 220-yard 29th.

Steve Garvey is the second Los Angeles Dodger to be voted the National League's most valuable player. Sandy Koufax got the award in 1963.

Sedalia team plays Boonville Sunday

Sedalia, a winner of all three of its games so far in Central Missouri Ban Johnson League play, will face Boonville in afternoon action today at Liberty Park Stadium. The game, scheduled for 2 p.m., is a match-up between two of the Western Division's annual powers.

The contest highlights a four-game Sunday slate. Other action pits Huntsville at Marshall in the afternoon, while Tipton plays host to Centralia in a twilight-night doubleheader.

Sedalia heads the Western Division with its 3-0 record; Boonville evened its mark at .500 with Thursday night's 15-10 win over New Franklin.

Tipton and Centralia are deadlocked atop the Eastern Division with their 1-0 records.

On the Ban Johnson schedule this week is another home date for the Sedalia Merchants — Thursday at 8 p.m. against New Franklin.

Trainer credits jockey

NEW YORK (AP) — Trainer Tommy Doyle credited the patience of owner Arthur Seeligson Jr. and the race track mastery of Willie Shoemaker for what he considered Avatar's vindication in winning Saturday's Belmont Stakes.

After being bumped out of the lead in the Kentucky Derby and failing because of early position problems in the Preakness, Avatar finally broke through in the Triple Crown.

"It takes time for development of a horse, and Mr. Seeligson allows time for development," Doyle said. "He has infinite patience with the horse."

Doyle was asked if he thought Avatar, who was bumped by Diabolo in the Kentucky Derby, should have won the first of the Triple Crown races. Seeligson interrupted and said, "What do you think would have happened if Foolish Pleasure had been bumped and we hadn't?"

Doyle called Avatar's Preakness performance "disappointing of course. He didn't break too alertly and the track wasn't his kind of track." After a second in the Derby, Avatar ran fifth in the Preakness.

Good showing expected for race

A purse of $2,600 will be up for grabs in Friday night's late model stock car race on the Missouri State Fairgrounds' half-mile dirt track.

The race is the third in a series of motor speed events being presented by Hassler and Associates Racing Enterprises, Inc., of Fulton.

Dale Hassler, president of the promoting body, said in a statement Saturday that he expects from 40-50 cars will be on hand for the event. Included in the anticipated entries are Larry Walters of Lowry City, Mo., who won the stock car division feature in Hassler's first promotion April and Terry Bivins, Shawnee, Kan., the winner of the Memorial Day stock car race.

Another driver entered is Losson Leonard, Jefferson City, who has taken the checker in the first four stock car features at Holts Summit's Capital Speedway.

Hassler also said an exceptionally strong field of entries have been received from the St. Louis area.

Drivers will qualify through heat races and a consolation feature for the 35-lap main event in the Early Season Championship.

Warm-ups are scheduled for 7 p.m.; the first heat race is scheduled to start at 8 p.m.

Tickets for the event are priced at $3 for adults and $1 for children under 12. The ticket office will open at 6 p.m. Friday.

Pressure mounting

No-hit pitching affecting the life of Noland Ryan

ANAHEIM (AP) — Calm and cooperative on the outside, Nolan Ryan readily admits that his no-hit pitching builds an ever-growing pressure.

"This week the pressure has been the worst of my career," said the 28-year-old right-hander of the California Angels.

It started with last Sunday's 1-0 victory over Baltimore, his fourth no-hitter, tying him with Sandy Koufax as the only men in major league history to pitch that many.

He came back on Friday night, saying he wanted another no-hitter, but Milwaukee's Hank Aaron spoiled the bid with a sixth-inning single, one of only two hits that Ryan gave up in a 6-0 victory.

"I tried to be cooperative and answer the telephone calls," Ryan said. "But all that attention made the week difficult."

If he had turned in a no-hitter against Milwaukee, he would have joined Johnny Vander Meer as the only pitchers ever to hurl two consecutive no-hitters. Vander Meer did it in 1938 with Cincinnati.

"I have to see if I can keep the publicity from bothering me," Ryan said. "I have to just go out and pitch ball games. My primary purpose is to win them."

He added, "Even this week I tried to concentrate as much as I could, although I answered the phone from the time I got up until the time I went to bed."

And that concentration came while he was besieged by interviewers, cameramen and just ordinary citizens bent on seeing a baseball hero.

Manager Dick Williams closed the Angels' clubhouse an hour before the Milwaukee game to protect his star pitcher from further pressure.

But Ryan admitted he felt that most in the crowd of 29,513 had come to see him bid for a no-hitter.

"I was definitely trying to throw one," he said, although "my primary purpose always is to win the games."

And he felt Aaron's single lifted the pressure even though it was disappointing.

"There was some relief that it was over," Ryan said later. "If I'm going to give up a hit, I might as well give it up to one of the greatest hitters in the game. I can't think of anyone more appropriate."

Aaron, in turn, predicted that Ryan eventually would notch that fifth no-hitter.

"Ryan doesn't throw quite as hard as he did in the National League," Aaron said. "He doesn't have to because he is a far better pitcher and can throw his curve now."

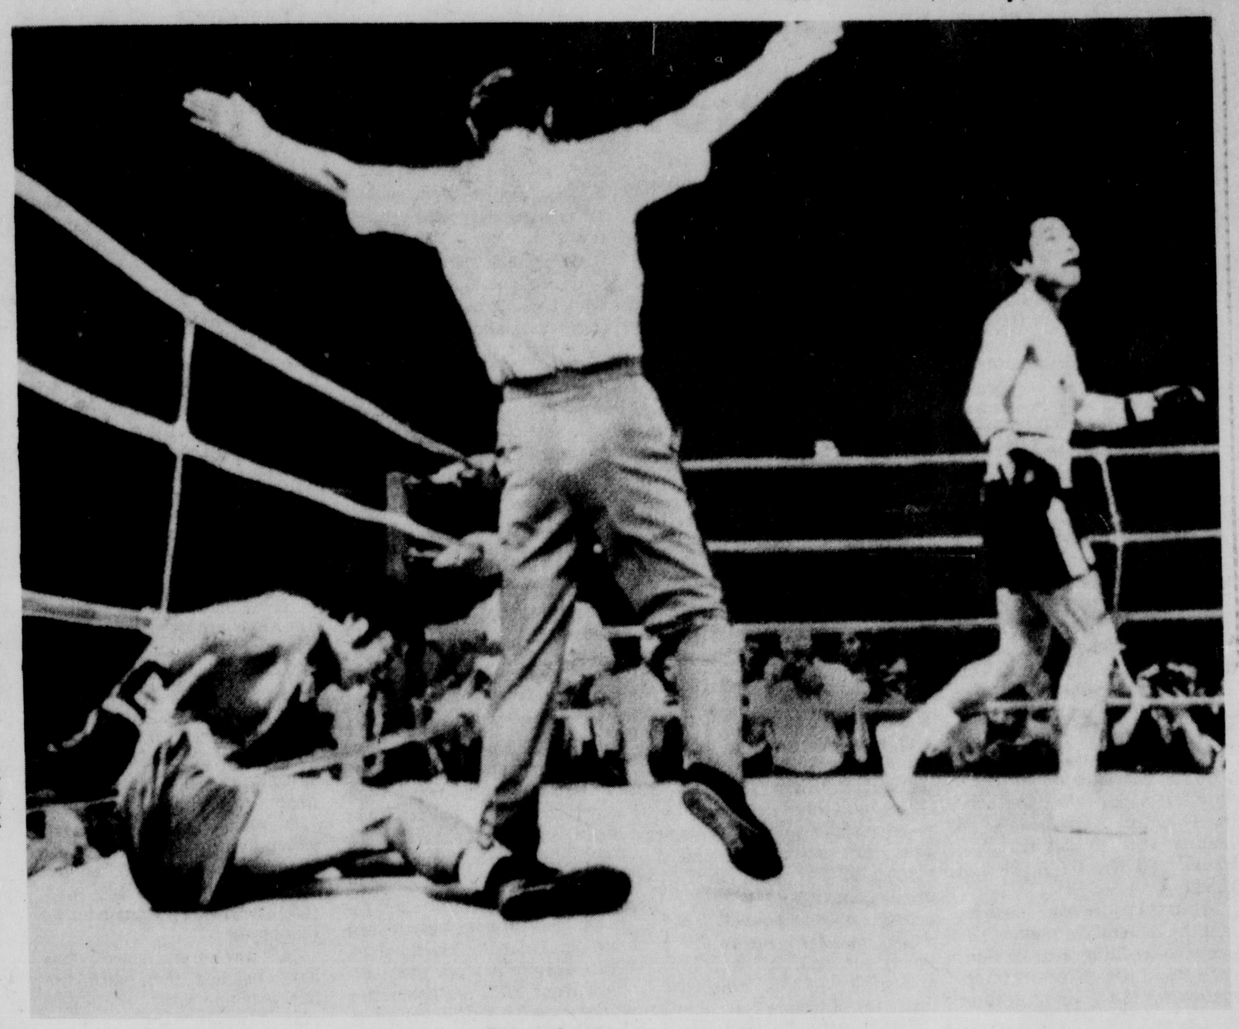

Ryan reportedly received a $125,000 salary this year and probably will go to $140,000 in 1976. Additionally, the Angels gave him a $3,000 bonus for his no-hitter against Baltimore and also rewarded catcher Ellie Rodriguez with $500. Ryan rewarded the eight teammates who played in the game with $100 each.

Aaron said the pitch he hit to spoil the bid for No. 5 was a fast ball, low and over the plate. But he commented, "The way he is pitching, he's going to pitch another no-hitter."

Told that Koufax had predicted Ryan might pitch 10 or 12 of them, Aaron said, "He knows more about pitching than I do."

Ryan now is 10-3 on the season with five shutouts. Over-all he has pitched 41 games during his career giving up four hits or less and has 23 shutouts, 21 of them with the Angels since joining them at the start of the 1972 season. He also holds baseball's season strikeout record with 383 in 1973.

The next start for the 6-foot 2, 195-pound right-hander will be Tuesday night in New York sgainst the Yankees.

First blacks win honors in NAIA tennis

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Benny Sims and Glenn Moolchan of Texas Southern are the first blacks to win the doubles championship at the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tennis tournament.

The eighth-seeded Texans defeated unseeded Alvaro Angel and Carlos Dario Behar of Presbyterian (S.C.), 7-6, 6-3, in Friday's finals. Stan Franker, of Texas Southern at the time, was the first black to crack the NAIA's singles title. He did it last year. Franker has since transferred to the University of Southern California.

Top-seeded Dave Petersen, a senior at Gustavus Adolphus, was successful Friday in his third and final attempt at the singles championship. It took him three sets, but he disposed of seventh-seeded Dan Hanson of Redlands (Calif.), 6-4, 6-7, 64.

Redlands won its third straight team championship with 31 points, immediately followed b Presbyterian with 28, Gustavus Adolphus 26 and Claremont-Mudd (Calif.) 21.

Cleveland trades Odom to Atlanta

NEW YORK (AP) — John "Blue Moon" Odom, the unhappy Cleveland pitcher who wanted to be traded, was sent by the Indians Saturday to the Atlanta Braves for right-hander Roric Harrison, The Associated Press learned.

Odom, who started out the season with the Oakland A's, was sent to Cleveland earlier this year for pitchers Dick Bosman and Jim Perry. But the right-hander was immediately unhappy with the contract offered by the Indians, demanding $8,000 more in salary.

Odom got his wish to be traded, but not to the team he wanted. The disgruntled pitcher had said that he either wanted to got back to Oakland or be sent to the Texas Rangers.

Basketball camp returns for second week

The second week of the State Fair Community College Basketball Camp opens Monday at 9:30 a.m. in the Agriculture Building on the Missouri State Fairgrounds.

In an announcement Friday, Bill Barton, the head instructor at the camp, said due to a shortage of younger boys (ages 10-13), all boys wishing to attend the camp should report to the Agriculture Building at 9 a.m. Barton said that that included the 14-17-year-olds, who were originally scheduled for afternoons only.

Registration will begin for those not already signed up for the camp at 9 a.m.

Joining Barton on the coaching staff are Bob Ogden, head coach at Longview Community College; Dale Kimberling, head coach at Skyline (Urbana, Mo.) High School; and Chuck Williams of Southwest Missouri State University.

The cost of the camp is $25.

Gary Player leading in Kemper golf tourney

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Gary Player shook off three early bogeys and passed faltering Ray Floyd with a 69 and the third-round lead Saturday in the $250,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament with a 208, eight-under-par.

Floyd slipped to 73 and a second-place tie at 209 with Bobby Nichols, another 69 shooter.

Tied for fourth place at 210 going into Sunday's final round were Jerry Heard and second-year pro Jim Masserio, who each shot 69. They were one stroke ahead of John Mahaffey, whose 71 gave him 211 and a deadlock with Dan Sikes, who shot 73.

Player, one of the game's best bunker players, called his long trap shot at the 10th hole, "the shot of the day for me." He hit a 60-yard shot from the bunker three feet from the pin on the 597-yard hole for a birdie-four.

After three pars, he birdied the par-four 14th from 20 feet and later saved par twice by getting down in two from a trap.

The little South African, who estimates he has traveled four million miles in a 20-year career of international golf, called his play "most satisfying" considering the shaky start.

He bogeyed the second and third holes, having been trapped on each, and then took three to get down from the back of the green for another bogey on the fourth hole.

He got back on track by chipping two feet from the pin for birdie on the long fifth, then birdied the last three holes of the back nine on putts of 18, 14 and 6 feet for an outgoing 35.

Floyd, the leader through each of the first two rounds, increased his margin from two shots to three with a front-nine 35 on the par-72 Quail Hollow Country Club course, a 7,160 yarder.

At that point, six men spread around the sun-drenched course were three shots behind.

Floyd then dropped to a tie at eight-under with Player and Nichols after he was trapped and bogeyed the 13th hole. Another bunker caught him on the 16th and he surrendered the lead.

Nichols, playing what he called a solid round, had nines of 34-35, highlighted by a 70-foot birdie putt on the par-four 11th. He lost his share of the lead when he three-putted No. 17 from 25 feet.

Heard, who lost a playoff last year, was the only one of the top six finishers of 1974 to survive Friday night's cut of 147, three-over-par. Rod Curl had the day's best round, 67, to move up to 213, five shots back of Player.

Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller and Tom Weiskopf, the top three money winners this year, are not competing.

Sedalians win divisions in cycle racing

HOLTS SUMMIT, Mo. — In motorcycle racing action here Friday night, four Sedalia riders won divisions in the TT and half-mile flat track events.

Bubby Buso, riding a Yamaha, won the mini class; Tom Monsees placed first in the 250 TT class on a Suzuki.

In the open TT division, Randy Turley placed first on a Yamaha, and Tim Foster won the 175 class.

Kyle Doty (Can Am) finished second to Monsees in the 250 division, while Turley (Yamaha) placed third.

Paul Kelner was second in the open division.

Bobby Eckles won the six-lap feature in the flat track 125 class on a Yamaha. Second in the 250 class went to John Montes, also on a Yamaha. Tony Moore was third in the open division on a 360 Yamaha.

Windsor rodeo opens June 19

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WINDSOR — The Eighth-annual Windsor Jaycees Rodeo opens here at the city fairgrounds June 19. The three-day event will continue through June 21.

Events in the rodeo division of the yearly celebration include bull, bareback and saddle bronc riding, as well as barrel racing, calf roping, team roping and bull-dogging.

The rodeo is approved by the United Rodeo Association and will offer a $1,000 purse and added prizes and money.

Dances will be held each night following the rodeo. The Optimist Club will hold an open-pit barbecue beginning at 11 a.m. June 21.

Many of Windsor's merchants will also participate in a rodeo days sale.

McGinnis is topic of others' talk

NEW YORK (AP) — He was nowhere in sight, but George McGinnis was the main topic of conversation Friday for two other pro basketball superstars, Rick Barry of the National Basketball Association Golden State Warriors and Artis Gilmore of the Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association.

Barry, Gilmore and goaltender Bernie Parent of the National Hockey League champion Philadelphia Flyers were in town to pick up new cars—their rewards for being named the most valuable players in their respective playoffs.

Barry, who made the same trip between leagues a couple of years ago, thinks the NBA is making too much of a fuss over McGinnis' attempted jump from the ABA Indiana Pacers to the NBA New York Knicks.

And Gilmore, whose Kentucky Colonels beat McGinnis and the Pacers for the ABA title, believes big George would be better off staying right where he was, back home in Indiana.

"I think it's a little silly on the part of the NBA to get involved," said Barry, who started his career in the older league, switched to the ABA and then returned to the NBA as pro basketball's most celebrated traveler.

"It hurts the reputation of the league. I just don't believe any one player is that important," Barry continued. "The Knicks did something they shouldn't have but all this chaos isn't necessary. Philadelphia gave them the right to deal with McGinnis once before. Why shouldn't they do it again?"

The Knicks signed McGinnis to a six-year contract worth close to $3 million last Friday but the deal was blocked by NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien because Philadelphia holds that league's rights to the 6-foot-8 star.

Gilmore understands McGinnis' desire for the increased recognition he could get in the NBA but nevertheless was surprised at the big guy's decision.

"It was his decision and he chose to make it," said Gilmore. "I think he had a better situation for himself in Indiana. He was a hometown guy who had become a star in the place where he grew up. That's a great situation. But he knows what's best for him."

Gilmore said his NBA rights belong to the Chicago Bulls but he can't imagine leaving Kentucky.

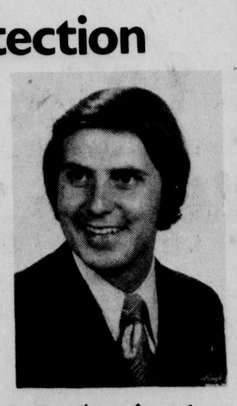

"My family and I are content there," he said. "That's what's most important for me. Sure, I have had the desire to play in the NBA, but I've never wanted to leave Kentucky."

Butz may not be at hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — A trip scheduled by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz to South America this month has snarled plans to call him before a Senate subcommittee to testify on irregularities in the grain inspection system.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., announced Wednesday that he would hold the hearing on June 19. Aides said Humphrey wanted Butz to be among the early witnesses.

But Butz had scheduled a trip to South America for June 17-25, meaning that he would have to pass up Humphrey's invitation to appear.

Humphrey aides said Friday they were trying to get the hearing changed to an earlier date, possibly June 13, so that Butz could be present.

The Butz trip, which Agriculture Department officials said had been in the works for some time, will include a conference with a U.S. agricultural attache in Caracas, Venezuela, and then a visit to Brasilia, Sao Paulo, and Rio de Janeiro in Brazil.

Meanwhile, Senate sources said the General Accounting Office, the auditing arm of Congress, has been collecting information for the grain inspection hearing. The information includes what is available from grand juries in New Orleans and Houston, and from the FBI and Agriculture Department investigators who had been probing irregularities in the inspection system for more than a year.

Those investigations have led to nearly a score of indictments, including indictments of federally licensed inspectors and grain samplers. Officials say the probe is continuing.

During his trip, Butz also plans to meet with government leaders in Venezuela and Brazil about mutual agricultural interests, the Agriculture Department said.

Venezuela, officials said, bought $323 million worth of U.S. farm products last year and sold $35 million to this country in return. Brazil's agricultural sales to the United States total more than $1 billion a year, including coffee, sugar and coac, and in 1974 and it bought $240 million of U.S. products in 1974.

Thus, with diplomatic and trade matters involved, a spokesman said it "would be impossible at this time" for Butz to postpone his South American trip to keep the June 19 hearing date with Humphrey.

Meanwhile, Senate sources said the General Accounting Office, the investigatory arm of Congress, has been collecting information for the grain inspection hearing. The information includes what is available from grand juries in New Orleans and Houston, the FBI and Agriculture Department investigators who had been probing irregularities in the inspection system for more than a year. Those investigations have led to nearly a score of indictments, including federally licensed inspectors and grain samplers, and officials say the probe is contining.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of commercial chicken hatcheries has continued to decline, dropppng to fewer than 800 on Jan. 1 from nearly 1,000 when a similar survey was made two years earlier, says the Agriculture Department.

But those which have survived are bigger and are capable of turning out record numbers of baby chicks. Last year, despite a 1 per cent cutback from 1973, the hatcheries turned out 3.6 billion chicks. A decade ago, when there were nearly 2,400 hatcheries, production was about two billion.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says farmers appear to have ample fertilizer for 1975 crops and that some price relief may be in sight.

"During the rest of 1975, the price of fertilizer, rather than its availability, is likely to cause more problems for farmers," the department's Outlook and Situation Board said Friday.

The report said that indications are that farmers have been able to obtain as much fertilizer this spring as they did a year ago but warned that "the usual difficulties with transportating fertilizer during the peak of the season are likely to cause shortages in some areas."

Although fertilizer prices are generally much higher than they were a year ago or last fall, the report said they may stabilize for the remainder of this season.

"In any even, prices may have reached their peak for this year and next," the report said.

Rare guns

A pair of 4.7 inch Armstrong cannons on the Kane County, Ill., courthouse lawn have become big shots with the National Park Service. They say that the two long-snouted guns of the Spanish-American war era are the only matching pair in the country and want to move them to Ft. Moultrie, S.C., as part of a Bicentennial restoration. Residents of Kane County are still undecided about giving up the guns, but seem to be getting a bang out of all that attention.

Former Hearnes foe to back Senate bid

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A one-time bitter foe of former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has announced his support of Hearnes' candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate.

Former State Sen. Earl R. Blackwell made the surprise announcement Friday.

"Warren Hearnes and I have had differences of opinion on some issues, but I'm giving first consideration to the qualifications he possesses compared with those of the people who seem likely to run against him," Blackwell said.

Blackwell, a Hillsboro attorney, called Hearnes a "student of politics...a watchdog of the taxpayers money...a man of integrity."

The two clashed over many issues while Hearnes was governor from 1964 to 1972, including an increase in the state income tax in 1969. Blackwell opposed the hike, which was eventually passed.

Blackwell completed 16 years as state senator last year and did not seek re-election.

Those expected to be Hearnes' most formidable opponents in the Democratic race are U.S. Reps. James W. Symington and Jerry Litton.

Rock Island is ordered to pay salaries

CHICAGO (AP) — The Rock Island railroad, under financial reorganization, will pay previously negotiated salary increases to 5,700 employes as ordered by a federal judge.

Judge Frank McGarr empowered trustee William M. Gibbons to honor the pay raises Thursday. Judge McGarr presides over the carrier's reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws.

The court was told that the salary increases amount to 10 per cent this year and 5 per cent in 1976 and 1977, totaling nearly $12 million.

"It's a large cash drain," said Nicholas G. Manos, attorney for Gibbons, "but we're extremely happy to comply with the labor agreements. We expect to be in business in 1977, and we'll be happy to renegotiate a new contract."

The trustee also was authorized to abandon eight branch lines in Iowa, Nebraska and Texas, and to purchase seven acres of property for an expansion of the Muscatine, Iowa, yards. The land will cost $450,000, to be paid in monthly installments of $22,000.

Made the trip

Skimming across the English Channel from Dover to Calais is merchant banker Richard Bickel, who embarked on the hang-glide flight to mark the awaited result of a referendum on whether Britain should remain in the Common Market. He carried 2,000 first day cover envelopes, especially marked by the French and British postal authorities. The journey took just under an hour. The flying power came from a towline attached to a boat.

Broader definition of illiteracy seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eighty-six million Americans cannot compute their car's gasoline mileage.

An estimated 52 million can't determine if they qualify for a job listed in the classified ads, 48 million can't figure out how much change they should get back from a store purchase and 39 million can't find the Social Security deduction on their paycheck stub.

Those projections, based on results of a sample survey conducted for the U.S. Office of Education, may lead to a new and broader definition of functional illiteracy in the United States.

The project is scheduled for completion in December.

Realizing that the nation had an illiteracy problem, Congress passed the Adult Education Act in 1966. Through 1973, the federal and state governments have spent a total of $472 million to try to reach the 57 million Americans 16 years and older who never finished high school.

Reporting back to Congress on Friday, the General Accounting Office said that while the program has had some beneficial results it has had "little impact on reducing illiteracy among adults."

During the first nine years of the program, about 4.6 million adults were enrolled, congressional auditors said.

"Only about 1 per cent of the adult education program's estimated target population of 57 million adults and 4 per cent of the 15 million adults with less than eight years of school have participated in any given year," their report said.

"Only 17 per cent of the program's 3.5 million enrollees at or below the eighth grade level achieved an eighth grade equivalency education in fiscal years 1965-72...," it added.

An Office of Education-funded evaluation of the program in 1973 found that, during a three-month period, one-third of enrollees had regressed or made no gains, and during a six-month period, more than 60 per cent of enrollees had dropped out.

Among those who stayed, however, the average student gained one-half grade in reading and three-tenths of a grade in math.

The GAO recommended that Congress improve the program by removing the prohibition against including adults who have high school diplomas or their equivalent, since many still are functioning below the eighth grade level.

The report also suggested that funds be allotted differently to give higher priority to helping adults achieve at least an eighth grade education.

Bill to help doctors to Bond

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri doctors may be receiving help on their malpractice insurance bills through a legislative measure that has been sent to the governor.

The proposal, passed Friday in the House, would allow doctors to set up nonprofit insurance associations to circumvent soaring rates.

In other action, the House also sent to Gov. Christopher S. Bond a bill boosting pensions for nearly 4,500 retired state workers by 25 per cent.

The malpractice measure would serve as a "stop-gap" solution until a special legislative committee and a citizens task force can recommend other changes next session.

"This is not the final answer, the final word on accomplishing the results of keeping malpractice insurance within reason," Rep. Phil Snowden, D-Gladstone, said. "It's only a start."

The malpractice associations would work well in Missouri because of the fewer malpractice cases here than in other states and the state's two-year statute of limitations, he said. But Snowden added that rates had risen up to 600 per cent

A Missouri State Medical Association spokesman has said increased malpractice costs are already being reflected in Missouri through extra medical tests doctors are ordering for their patients.

Daily hospital room rates also have gone up a few dollars because of the malpractice rates, hospital spokesmen have said.

The pension bill would enable all members of the two main state retirement systems eligible for increased benefits after they retire.

A retired state worker's monthly pension who made $8,400 a year and had been employed for 10 years would receive a monthly boost from $70 to $87.50.

The bill would set up a "special consultant" category for retired workers in order to grant them pension increases since they retired. That provision skirts a constitutional prohibition against using public funds for private purposes.

Rep. Joe Holt, D-Fulton, said the increase would end discrimination between the state Employes Retirement System and highway employes system.

A measure that would make the same change in benefit rates is in a joint House-Senate conference committee. A proposed constitutional amendment allowing benefits to be passed onto already retired state workers has been returned to the Senate after House changes.

Other bills sent to the governor include one changing the retail sales act to exempt bank credit cards from the lower rate of interest allowed under the law. The bill brings the state in compliance with a federal court decision last year saying that any bank could charge the maximum state interest on loans.

Woman sees brighter days ahead

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The right to attend the military academies would give women more opportunities and a brighter outlook, says Therese Marshik. She was denied admission to the Air Force Academy two years ago.

"I think it's a step forward for women," she said after the Senate approved an amendment requiring the three military academies to accept women. A similar measure has been passed by the House, but some differences will have to be worked out in conference committee.

Mrs. Marshik pursued her desire for a military career despite the rejection by the academy. She joined the Air Force and is an airman first class at Dover, Del., Air Force Base, monitoring the performance of persons receiving job training.

"As you can see, I'm happy at it," she said. But she added of the academy, "I would like to have given it a try."

She sees the prospective new law as a benefit to women in the future, "I think it will give them a brighter outlook. They have more opportunity."

The head of the Air Force Academy said Friday that facilities will be made available for women if the amendment becomes law.

Lt. Gen. James R. Allen commented, "If it is the will of the American people that females attend service academies, the Air Force Academy is prepared to comply. The Air Force Academy has contingency plans for including females in the cadet wing. If and when directed, the Air Force Academy will implement these plans."

The amendment requires that women be admitted to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., and the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo. If it clears conference committee and is signed by President Ford it would be effective with classes starting in July 1976.

Women are admitted to the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y., congressional sponsors pointed out. A congressional spokesman said the Coast Guard Academy was not included in the measure approved Friday because it is under the jurisdiction of the Transportation Department and could not be included in a Defense Department bill.

Defense Department officials said they felt it would be inappropriate to make any comment on the Senate action.

Commander Robert Louis at the Naval Academy said "physical change in the academy would have to be made, such as a modification in the living quarters to accomodate women."

He added that the academy "would have to review our curriculum because the law precludes women from serving aboard combat ships and aircraft. In the interest of efficiency we have to have a two-track curriculum. One for male combatants and one for female noncombatants, unless Congress resolves this dilemma.

Benefits of 'big look'

There are several versions of shape in the "big look" fashions so popular this season. The loose dress should be studied to find how loose and in what form it looks best on you. It is the "big look" that won't break the bank account — the chemise, the blouse smock and shirt to wear belted or loose. You'll find it comfortable to wear and chic at a good price.

UNTAPPED RESOURCES IN GARBAGE CANS

LONDON (AP) — The British government has started a campaign to turn garbage into a multi-million-pound asset.

The nation's garbage cans may hold one of Britain's most precious untapped resources, says a government discussion paper, "War on Waste."

The paper says that "if it were possible to separate the different components of the waste they could be worth hundreds of millions of pounds as raw materials for industry."

The government is to promote a national effort, with big publicity, to conserve and reclaim scarce resources.

Even old tin cans, 750,000 tons of which are dumped in Britain each year, will come under scrutiny.

The paper says "The Government is sponsoring research on the collection and treatment of tin cans, the British Steel Corporation is looking at ways of using them, and some firms are planning recovery plants."

The problem of "the natural look" has always been that it took too long to put together. Glamorous make-up can be applied in half the time. Now there are products that will do the natural trick in 10 minutes. With translucent powder, eye make-up and lipstick that make the face look "for real," you can cover all your faults and still look like you in no time flat.

MOVE OVER, ROLLS-ROYCE. LA GRANDE BUG IS HERE.

La Grande Bug, a limited edition luxury Volkswagen, ushers in a new era of gracious motoring.

The La Grande Bug is replete with appointments that cater to your every comfort and convenience.

Inside, you'll find plush corduroy and leatherette trim seating.

You'll love the rich carpeting, and enjoy the view at the top through a sliding sunroof.

Outside, you'll impress the world with silver-colored custom wheels, and a choice of 3 metallic paints.

Perhaps, most impressive of all, you'll enjoy a luxury feature most luxury cars can't even offer: 33 miles to the gallon on the highway and 22 miles to the gallon in the city.*

We cordially invite you to inspect La Grande Bug at your convenience.

We think you'll be pleasantly surprised to learn how little it costs to have arrived.

FIAT

Small on the outside, big on the inside, low on the price side.

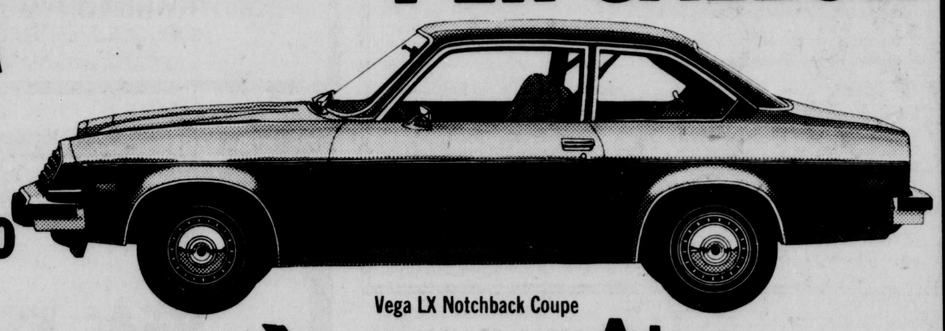

Standard equipment includes:
• 4-SPEED TRANSMISSION • FRONT DISC BRAKES • BRAKE EQUALIZATION SYSTEM • RADIAL-PLY TIRES • RECLINING BUCKET SEATS • 4-WHEEL INDEPENDENT SUSPENSION • UNITIZED BODY CONSTRUCTION • LUGGAGE RACK.

How do you make the most practical small car ever produced even more practical? Add exactly .6 of an inch to the length of a FIAT 128 Sedan and turn it into a Station Wagon — the 128 3-Door Wagon. Like our other 128s, the 3-Door Wagon features a transversely mounted four cylinder engine, front wheel drive, front disc brakes, reclining bucket seats, plus the added convenience of a rear hatch, with a full-width opening measuring over four feet diagonally. Discover the FIAT 128 Station Wagon. You'll never see anything on four wheels that makes more sense.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR CAROLINE BIRD,
author of "The Case Against College"

Is there a simple rule of thumb for deciding whether your child should go to college?—A.R., Altoona, Pa.

● A 17-year-old may not know what's best for him in the long run, but he knows whether he likes books or not. If he doesn't want to go to college, the chances are very good that he won't get anything out of it. The professors and students I interviewed said that little more than one out of four college students is turned on by his courses. Why give an inferiority complex to people who don't dig books by making them dance to an intellectual tune when their real talents lie elsewhere?

FOR ROBERT MITCHUM, star of "Farewell My Lovely"

When did you know you had become a success, and do you analyze your acting much?—L.P., Lima, Ohio

● Success? Well, if that's what it is, I guess I knew when I walked down the street and was recognized by truck drivers. As for analyzing my acting, I don't like talking about acting and I only like watching it on certain occasions. I rarely go to the movies, and no longer watch myself on the late shows because it's past my bedtime. (The only other thing I've given up is eating marshmallows.)

FOR GEORGE MEANY, President of the AFL-CIO

Has any labor group ever gone on strike to hold down prices as opposed to hiking wages?—Mrs. E. Wilerson, Greenville, N.C.

● Unions have offered to forego wage increases in favor of price reductions, but I know of no case in which management accepted. I do not believe such a proposal has ever been made a strike issue—it would be a great deal to expect union members to willingly sacrifice part of their wages for price cuts, even if it were in the public interest.

FOR FRANK GIFFORD

When you see rough play on a football field, do you think back to your own playing days and experience the pain of the player being tackled?—Elizabeth Rehm, Jamaica, N.Y.

● No. But I'm keenly aware of the positions that players get into in which they are more vulnerable to injuries. Sometimes these situations cause me to wince—both vocally and physically.

FOR DINAH SHORE

What's your favorite fan story?—N.T., Chicago, Ill.

● The day I was in an elevator and an elderly lady got in, stared at me and concentrated hard for a few seconds. Then she announced to me and the other passengers with great satisfaction: "I know you. You're WHATSERNAME."

FOR JEANE DIXON

Is it true you once predicted that neither President Nixon nor Vice President Agnew would complete his second term of office, but that neither would be assassinated or die in office?—Patricia Cates, Las Cruces, N.M.

● Yes, I did make that forecast. Also, I went on record as saying that former President Nixon would definitely not be impeached—which, of course, he was not.

FOR CINDY ADAMS, author and syndicated columnist

You travel a great deal. What's the most interesting purchase you've made on your trips?—J.S., Lima, Ohio

● Papier poudres in Hong Kong. They're small packets of papers, one side is plain and the other is powdered. The plain side wipes off the stale powder; the other side puts a fresh lot on again. This is how I keep a clean (unwithered) look. Until I found these, by the end of the day, due to endless powdering, my face looked like a Halloween mask, and I didn't dare smile in case I cracked it.

FOR PHYLLIS DILLER

Do you ever get bad-tempered?—P.L., Medford, Ore.

● I'm usually cheery at home, unless there's a crisis or I'm upset. The only thing that upsets me is when everyone talks at once and asks questions. When I'm away, I call home daily and get a full report. Even so, when I get back, there's always a delegation of family and friends awaiting me with hundreds of questions. And they're all asking at the same time. I make a dash into the kitchen and fall over the dish of Jello my grandson dropped on the floor. Otherwise, I rarely get flustered.

FOR DR. NORMAN VINCENT PEALE, pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church and author

Do you think trial marriage will make real marriage obsolete?—Mrs. Albert Cansler, Jackson, Tenn.

● In my opinion, nothing can be learned from trial marriage. I do not believe in it and strongly hold that the institution of marriage will always endure as a way of life. Perhaps I may be bold enough to suggest that the questioner read a book by my wife, Ruth S. Peale, called "The Adventure of Being a Wife." It answers this question fully.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

How come I only see Peter Sellers in TV commercials nowadays and not movies?—A.C., Galveston, Texas

Peter Sellers

● Have we got good news for you! Peter has a new film out this summer, "The Return of the Pink Panther," in which he'll recreate his original role of Inspector Clouzot. Also, you can see Peter on June 12 in a rare TV appearance on ABC's "A Salute to Sir Lew Grade" (the British showman and impresario), in which he does a comedy skit. His ambition is to costar in a Western with David Niven. He says: "I'm a serious actor who happens to shine in comedy, and I am a great social disappointment. When I see people watching me, waiting for witticisms, I know they feel cheated when nothing comes out." Sellers, a former drummer, occasionally sits in with groups in London. He relaxes with yoga, organic foods, meditation and photography. His hobby is servicing cars.

If a Supertanker Exploded...

Some Frightening Facts About What Could Happen if One Little Spark Went Astray

Denis Pitts

By Denis Pitts

Have you ever seen a can of gasoline explode? Then imagine what would happen if a lighted match was put to 100,000 tons of high-octane fuel. The devastation would possibly be worse than that caused by the atom bomb at Hiroshima in 1945.

Cargoes of 100,000 tons—usually much more—of highly volatile fuel are commonplace in the supertanker fleets that roam the seaways of the world. These giant ships are floating A-bombs. Could one be hijacked and used to threaten a city? This is the frightening possibility raised in a new book, "This City Is Ours" (Mason-Charter, $7.95), in which a group of activists holds the island of Manhattan for a ransom of $130 billion. Its author, Denis Pitts, explains:

It was 1944, and as the war crept reluctantly to an end in Europe, horror came to Cleveland, Ohio.

What was described as a "relatively small quantity" of liquefied natural gas began to seep from a newly built processing plant into the sewers of the city. The sewers were warm, and in a matter of seconds, the liquid vaporized and became dangerously volatile. Expanding quickly, it forced itself up from the sewers into houses and apartment blocks.

The resulting series of blasts killed 180 people and almost completely destroyed 80 square blocks of the city. It was estimated later that it took less than 70 tons of the liquid gas to bring this havoc on an unsuspecting urban population.

Imagine then, the effect of putting a match to 100,000 tons of this gas. Or 200,000 or even 250,000 tons. The effect, according to explosives experts I talked to, would be the equivalent of a major atomic explosion.

These are the amounts of natural gas in liquid form that are being carried all around the world at any given time of day or night by fleets of supertankers. These great floating monsters are themselves growing in size.

In ten years time—and the assumption is that the present energy crisis will be eased by then—the biggest supertankers will weigh more than one million tons.

A great deal has been written about the hazards that the supertankers have brought to our environment. We know already about the effects on marine and bird life and upon our holiday beaches of collisions, deliberate spillage and accidental oil wastage by these gargantuan floating piers.

But has enough attention been focused on the explosive force that is contained in these ships?

Now let's face it, the corporations that own these elephantine tankers are aware of the potential danger. So are their captains and crews—after all, they have to live on top of the cargo. But even in this multimillion-dollar industry there are a few operators who are known as "cowboys" in the trade because of their disregard for safety regulations.

Nor is natural gas the only cargo carried by supertankers. Apart from huge quantities of crude and refined oil, they also carry high-octane gasoline (if you have ever seen a can of gas explode, imagine 200,000 tons of it blowing), aviation kerosene and explosive chemicals like naphtha, an industrial waste product that is used in making everything from nylon shirts to fertilizer.

Naphtha has a dangerously low flash point, and when it does explode it has a nasty habit of showering tons of molten chemical for miles around. A tanker load of this chemical caught fire off Brooklyn a few months ago. The Coast Guard officer who handled the emergency described the volunteer crews who fought the fire as the "bravest men I have ever met."

Another particularly sinister cargo carried in the big ships that ply between the Middle East and North America is a black cocktail consisting of crude oil into which has been pumped a mixture of such natural gases as methane and propane. The extraction takes place at the refinery. As you might guess, this is perhaps the most lethal cargo of all. Tankermen call it "spiked oil," and there are moves to make the carrying of it internationally illegal.

Accidents have already happened. This supertanker, "Mactra," was ripped down the middle by an explosion that left a giant gash as long as a football field. Two crewmen were killed. Noël Mostert's brisk-selling book, "Supership" (Knopf $8.95), brought the problem to public attention. Denis Pitts' new book adds another dimension—the possibility of piracy and ransom.

"A supertanker moored a few hundred yards from the southern tip of Manhattan . . . would threaten such buildings as the World Trade Center. . . . The result of the wind . . . would be a shattered and blazing city. . . . The force of the explosion would suck people from their windows, drag automobiles along like toys, destroy subway systems and create a massive loss of life."

What would be the effect of a supertanker explosion? Suppose it's natural gas. When natural gas vaporizes it expands by 625 in volume. An explosion of natural gas would have the capacity —assuming the kind of cargoes we have been talking about—to create what is known as a massive wind inrush. In other words, the gas creates a vacuum that has to be filled by air. That air would race into the vacuum at speeds of up to 1,000 miles per hour.

A supertanker moored a few hundred yards from the southern tip of Manhattan, for instance, would threaten such buildings as the World Trade Center—which has been designed to withstand winds of 250 mph only—and many other high-rise buildings. The result of this wind—and the blast that would inevitably follow—would be a shattered and blazing city. In the meantime, the force of the explosion would suck people from their windows, drag automobiles along like toys, destroy subway systems and create a massive loss of life.

What is really ironic about this threat is the fact that the emptier the tanker, the bigger the risk. The tanker that is on its way to be reloaded is usually filled with nothing more than vapor. And that is much more vulnerable to a tiny spark than the ship crammed full of gas or oil or volatile chemical.

Scary? I don't mean to be. After all, the big oil-carrying lines have so many millions of dollars invested in these giant tankers that they make a point, a very major point indeed, of cramming their ships with every possible fire- and explosion-prevention device that science and engineering can think of.

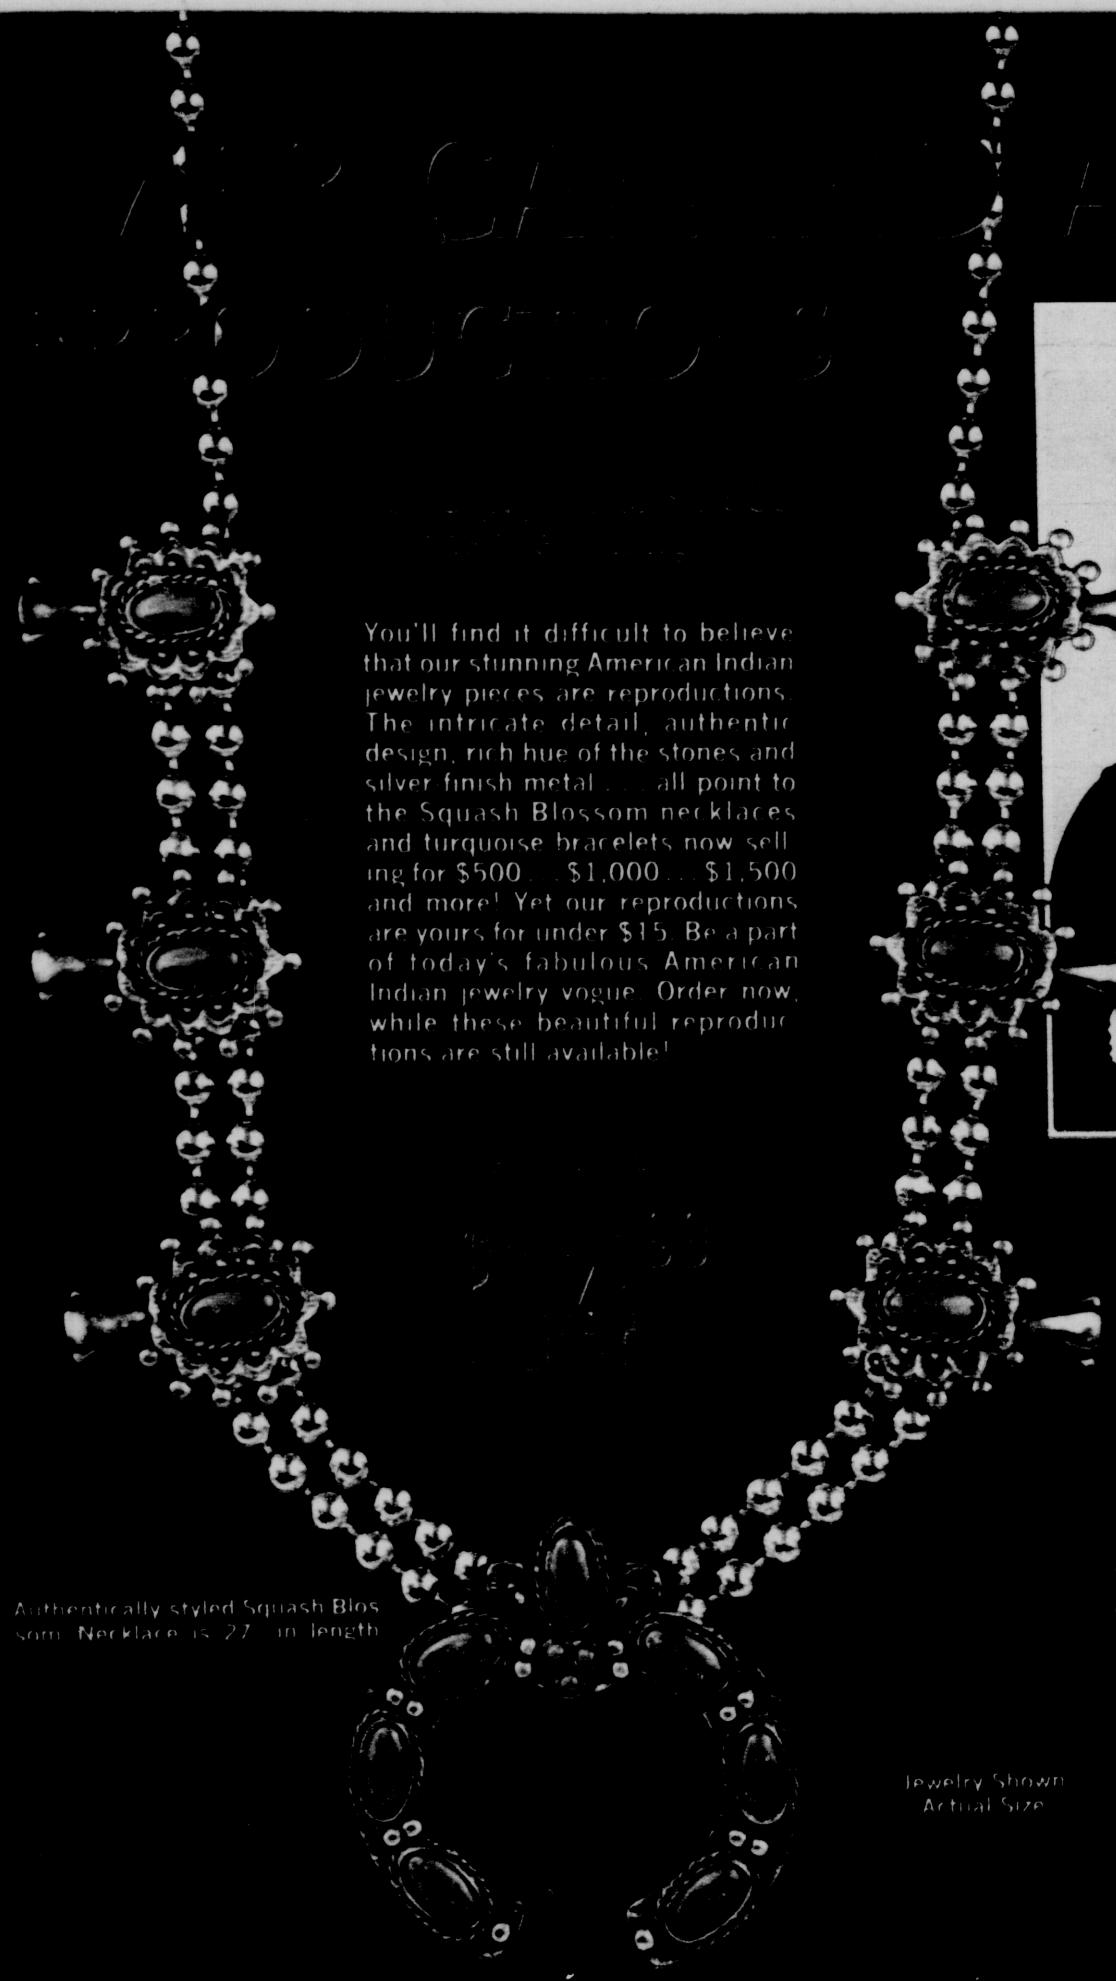

Some systems can rush a million gallons of fire-drenching foam into a cathedral-sized tank in a matter of minutes. Other systems rely on the inert—or non-

Taxpayers Making Up To $16,000 A Year Now Eligible

How to save $120 to $2400 a year by participating in the U.S. food stamp program

A mother of a typical family of four, can save $444 a year with food stamps, even if her husband makes $10,000 a year.* She can provide a nutritional and healthy diet while serving them the foods they like, such as, steaks, side dishes, beverages, desserts, and snacks.

By Elizabeth Evans

A government ruling in July of 1974 has extended food stamp coverage to 20,000,000 new Americans. But to date, more than 15,000,000 of these newly eligible citizens have not claimed their benefits. Why?

Obviously, most of these people are not aware of this new ruling. Others think that eligibility is based on gross income. But in reality, numerous deductions lowering your gross income are used to figure food stamp eligibility. And finally, thousands of people who know they are eligible are too embarassed to claim their benefits.

The embarassment surrounding food stamps and the old fashioned notion that you must be on welfare to participate are quickly becoming a thing of the past.

A December 20, 1974, Wall Street Journal article reported that more and more middle and upper middle class working families are using food stamps. Donna Marie of 4445 11th Street NW, Canton, Ohio, sums up the feelings of hundreds of thousands of working American families who now use food stamps, "I saw my neighbor eating steaks and using the money she saved to buy a few luxuries. Then I thought of all the taxes I'd paid. It struck me how silly it was not to take advantage of something I'd already paid for. I now use food stamps to serve nutritional and delicious meals for my family. To me it is no different than a tax rebate program."

No Risk Report: The problem of people not knowing if they are eligible has been eliminated with the recent publication of the public information report, 1975 Food Stamp Qualification Guide, This report is being made available on a no risk basis. By ordering the report, you can quickly determine in the privacy of your home if you qualify and for what amount. If you don't qualify, you may return the book. You'll receive a full refund—no questions asked.

Eye Opening Facts: Here are some little known facts regarding the food stamp program. Did you know that:

Workers who are layed off or on strike can collect food stamps.

- In some states, you can get your food stamps through the mail.
- Hundreds of thousands of senior citizens are eligible.
- The elderly can use food stamps to pay for home delivered meals-on-wheels and for group meals for the elderly.
- Working families with gross incomes as high as $16,000 a year can qualify for food stamps.
- Food stamps are used just like cash. There are no forms to fill out at the grocery check-out counter.
- Food stamps are accepted at almost every grocery store.
- It takes only two weeks to receive your food stamps after you qualify.
- Several people living in the same house can all separately receive food stamps.
- If you are physically unable to apply at the food stamp office, you can have someone else apply for you or have the food stamp office come to your home.
- If you move, you can continue to receive food stamps for a 60 day period from your old food stamp area.
- If you've recently moved to a new state, you can immediately apply for food stamps.
- When your income and resources are being calculated to see if you qualify, your house, lot, one car, your personal belongings and household goods, cash value of your insurance policy, income producing property, and boarders are not counted as resources.
- When calculating your income, money from a student under 18, irregular income from part time jobs totaling less than $30 a month, and money from loans is not counted as income.
- If you work and must use a day care center or a babysitter, you can deduct this expense.
- State and Federal taxes, Social Security, and union dues are deducted from your income.
- Medical fees over $10 a month and tuition and mandatory education expenses can be deducted from your income.
- Alimony or child support you pay can be deducted. So can unusual expenses due to disasters.
- Rent, mortgage and utilities are deductable by using a shelter standard formula.
- All information given when you apply for stamps must be kept strictly confidential.
- You'll be told if you qualify 30 days after you apply.
- If you are refused food stamps and feel you're being cheated, you have the right to a fair hearing appeal. Even if you've been refused long ago, you can still go back for your hearing. And if the food stamp office made a mistake, you're entitled to all the back food stamps you should have collected.

 Typical Working Families: Here's an example of a typical family that qualifies for food stamps. Mr. Seagel grosses $192 a week, $10,000 a year. Mrs. Seagel does not work and has a boy, age 5, and a girl, age 10. Mr. Seagel pays $150 per month alimony and child support to his previous wife, has a rent of $130, $8 for phone, $50 for heat and utilities, $35 a month for hospital insurance, and spends $15 a month on allergy medicine.

After making all the necessary deductions outlined in the 1975 Food Stamp Qualification Guide, it was found that the Seagels would receive $150 worth of food stamps for only $113 a month. They'd saved $37 dollars a month. A total of $444 on groceries for the year.

"A July 74 ruling extended food stamp coverage to over 20,000,000 new Americans. To date, over 15,000,000 of these newly eligible citizens have not claimed their benefits which their personal taxes have already paid for"

What will qualifying for the food stamp program mean to you? Depending on your income, you could slash your food budget by 20% to 60%. This would mean a savings of $120 to $2,400 a year. You could afford to provide your family with the most nutritional and healthful foods. The money you've saved could be placed in the bank or used to buy anything you'd like. There are no restrictions on what you do with the money you saved. But, best of all, you'd be starting your own personal tax rebate program. You will be getting back some of the thousands of dollars you've paid in taxes by taking advantage of a government program which you've already paid for.

The 1975 Food Stamp Qualification Guide is written in plain, simple language. It will show you step by step how to figure your Food Stamp income. It will make sure you're deducting all the expenses you're entitled to. It will also prevent you from adding income which should not be counted in your total. When you qualify, you'll be told exactly where to go, who to see, and what to do in order to start cashing in on your benefits. A sample form is enclosed so you will waste no time when you go to fill out the real thing. All of this is done in the privacy of your home. You'll waste no time hunting down this information, and you won't have to spend a cent on gas.

Low Priced Soft Cover Edition: As I've said, this public information report is being made available in a special low price soft cover edition. To get your report, all you need do is write the words Food Stamps on the top of a piece of paper along with your name and address.

Mail to: THE CENTER FOR PUBLIC INFORMATION, Government Programs Division, Dept. D-5, 401 Market Ave., N., Canton, Ohio 44702. Be sure to enclose $3.00 plus 50¢ postage and handling charges in cash, check, or money order. Make checks payable to Public Information. Your report will be rushed to you by return mail in a plain unmarked envelope.

If after reading your report you discover that you don't qualify, return the book within 3 weeks. You'll receive a full refund—no questions asked.

You could be one of the 15,000,000 people missing out on the benefits you have coming to you. If you do qualify, you'll receive a $120 to $2400 return on your $3.50 investment. You can find out if you qualify within 3 weeks by mailing in your report request today.

"Order in a Chaotic World"

Why Do People Collect Things?

By Kathleen Brady

"Collecting is an attempt to limit the world you deal with to objects you can arrange so that you make a world where you're in charge. You become the god of the universe."

People who collect butterflies like geography and want to see the world. Stamp enthusiasts crave knowledge of history and international politics. Those who gather beer cans (yes, beer cans, it's the latest craze) are sentimental about their buddies and want to be considered hell raisers.

Psychologists and psychiatrists, many of whom are collectors, say the objects a person prizes are clues to what he seeks from life. An outstanding example of this was Sigmund Freud himself, the father of psychoanalysis. He called his collection of antiquities "an addiction" and crowded his apartment in Vienna with such things as Etruscan mirrors, Egyptian sculptures and Greek vases. In fact, Freud once confessed, "I have read more archaeology than psychology." His passion wasn't just pleasurable; he said it helped him unlock man's conscious and subconscious minds, the structure of which goes back through time. Freud's or any collector's study of particular things is a sign of a scientific mind; for just as scientists collect, compare and order data, so a collector accumulates, evaluates and displays items.

Professionals agree that, basically, collecting implies an urge to bring order and beauty to a chaotic world—and, in doing so, to gain a sense of security.

Having a supply of something, even pebble specimens, confers a sense of power and possibly feelings of immortality. "Collecting is an attempt to limit the world you deal with to objects you can arrange so that you make a world where you're in charge. You become the god of the universe," says Dr. Elizabeth Thorne.

Collectors are often interesting, happy people because of their enthusiasm. They take pride in themselves and their achievement. Dr. Jack Granofsky observes, "The way a person treats his collection will carry through to everything else. If it's neat and well-arranged, he's orderly in other ways too." Dr. David Ingram concurs, saying, "The urge to collect implies a wish to catalog. Collectors sometimes grow uneasy if their stamps or whatever are out of place, and they apologize in order to preempt criticism. Often, collectors have parents who appreciate order."

In fact, they may be trying to please their parents or deepen a tie with them, many doctors say. A woman may recall the pride her mother had in her china, and so collects decorative plates in the subconcious hope of pleasing dear old Mom or being like her.

The need to feel self-sufficient and powerful helps explain why children often go through stages of collecting. Since kids are totally dependent on bigger people for support, they find it delightful (as well as practical space-wise) to gather tiny objects they tower over and control. Dr. Thorne recalls her childhood pastime of clipping coupons and mailing away for makeup, cereal and perfume premiums. "I couldn't wait for the mail to come and bring me the little boxes I'd ordered. I took pleasure in their being small. It was the thing that was the most fun when I was little."

Collecting is as much a part of adolescence as acne, but more fun. In the 1930's and '40's, teenagers collected movie-star photos. Today, the fad is for kooky T-shirts, but the impulse is the same. The reason is that as kids start to leave the security of home to make their own lives, acquisitions are a way to state their own individuality. Dr. Helen DeRosis observes, "Collecting is a way people get in touch with new worlds outside themselves and their homes. But adolescents are imitative. They may think they're getting away from one nest, but they are busily tucking themselves into another by collecting things that will make them part of a group of friends."

Dr. Lawrence Hatterer, author of "The Creative Personality," gives this overview: "The important thing is that there is never one single reason for anything. Some people collect just for aesthetic pleasure. They become connoisseurs. For instance, I used to paint, and when I stopped, I stayed in touch with that world by taking painters as patients. I collect their paintings as payment. Many other people collect as a way to relieve tension, just as others drink because they think it will help them."

"Whatever the interpretation," says Dr. DeRosis, "collecting is a positive experience. It helps people feel good. Because they have an interest, they're happier with the world and so they look better and are more fun to be with."

COOKBOOK

By Marilyn Hansen.
Food Editor

With good weather here, it's time to take it easy in the kitchen. This Cookbook is divided into "menus"—each specially selected for ease, creativity and nutritional value.

Take-It-Easy Menu No. 1

Morning Warm-up*
Orange Wedges Bell-Ringer Eggs*
Toast Butter or Margarine
Milk Tea Coffee

*Recipe given

MORNING WARM-UP*

1 can (24 ozs.) vegetable-juice cocktail
¾ cup unsweetened pineapple juice
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
⅛ teaspoon ground cinnamon

1. Combine ingredients in saucepan. Heat to boiling, stirring occasionally. Serve in mugs. Makes 4-5 servings

*An excellent source of vitamin A and vitamin C.

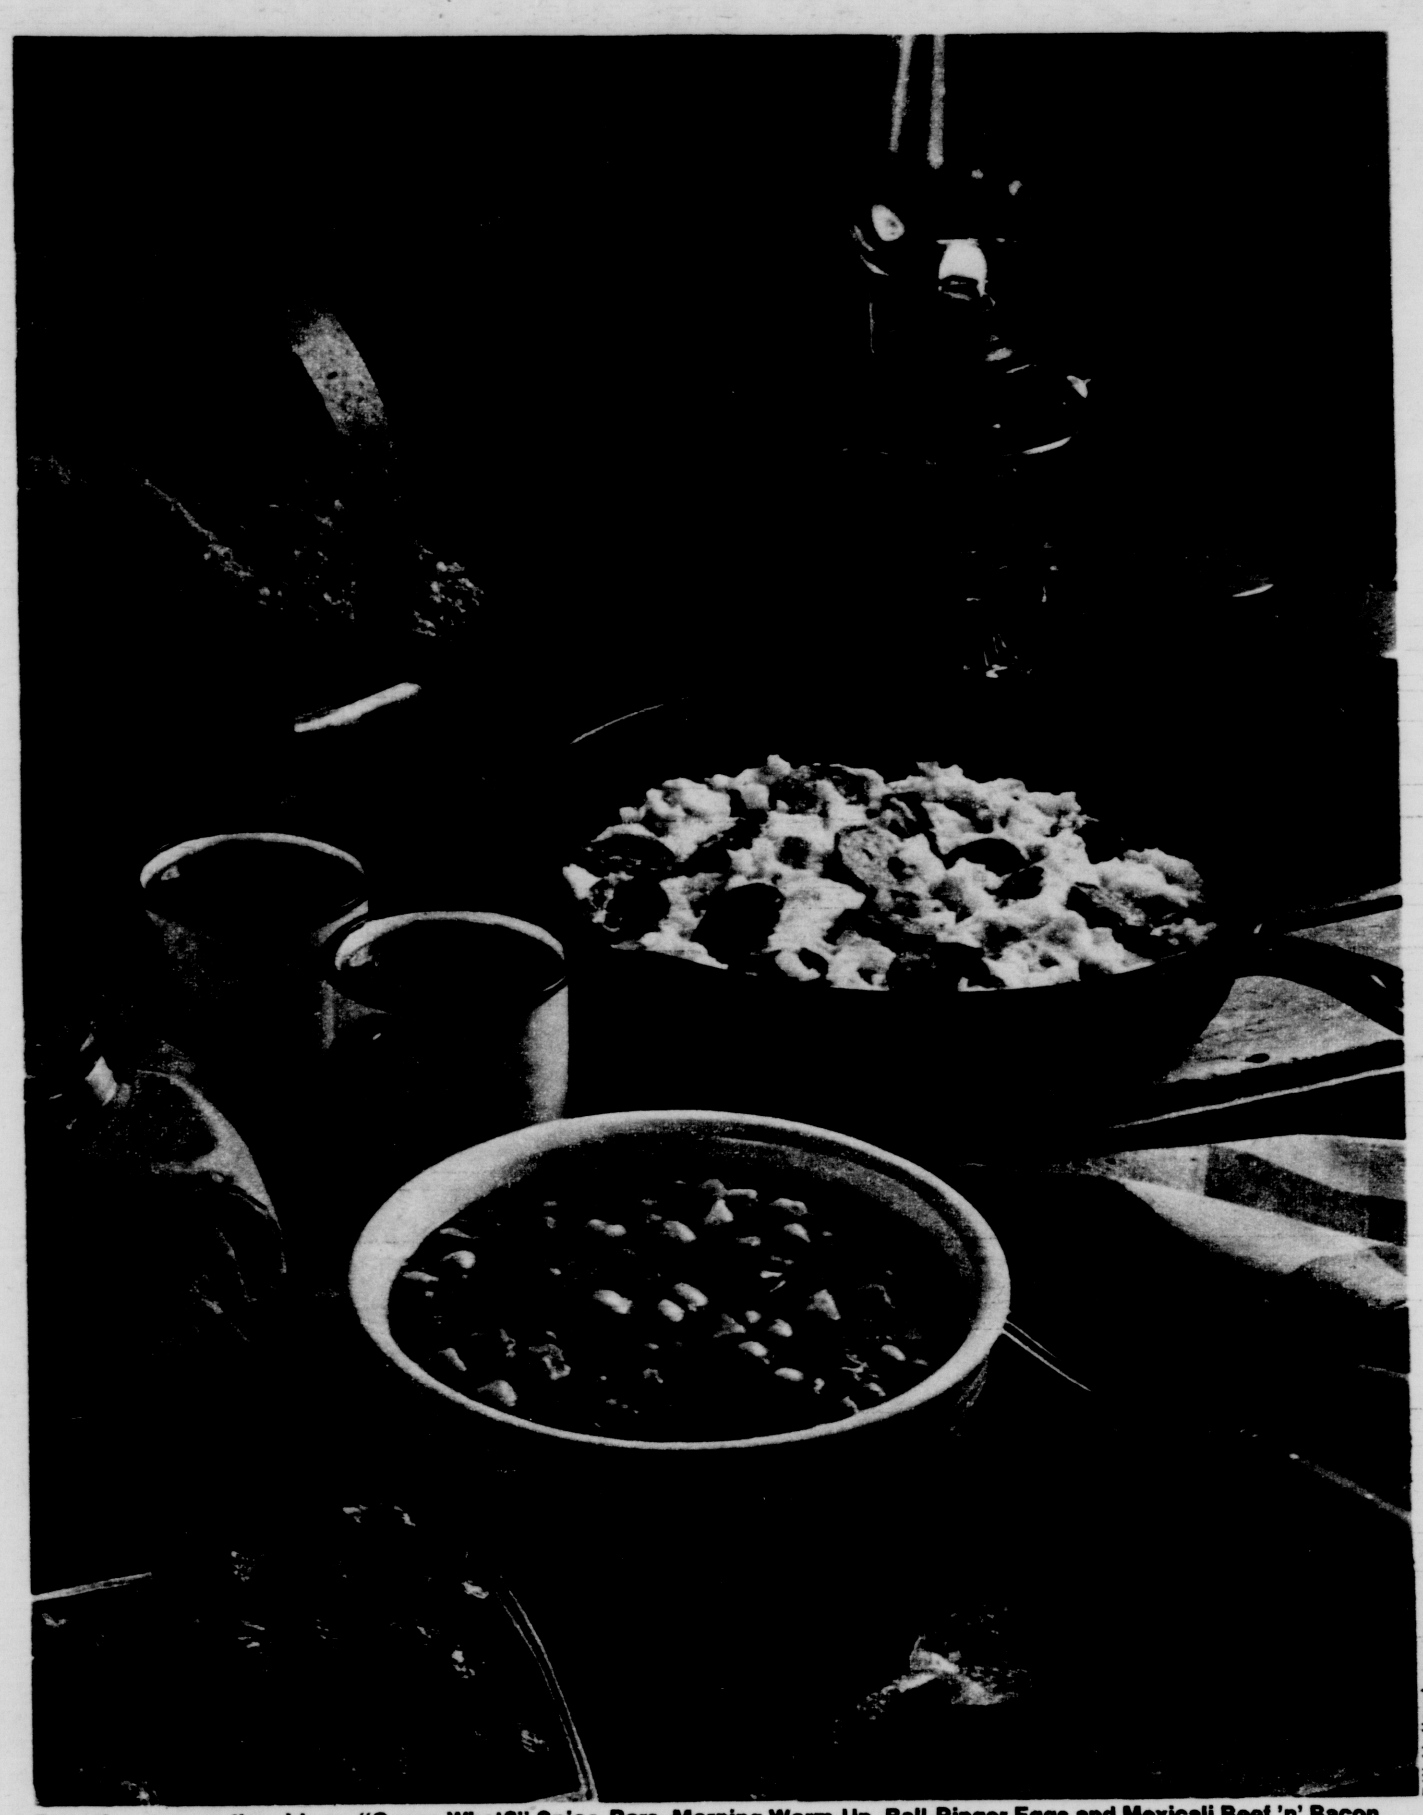

BELL-RINGER EGGS*

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup sliced pepperoni
8 eggs
1 can (10¾ ozs.) cream of potato soup, undiluted
Dash pepper

1. Melt butter in 10-inch skillet. Add green pepper and pepperoni. Sauté, stirring, about 3 minutes, until green pepper is tender.
2. Beat eggs lightly in bowl. Add soup and pepper and stir until fairly smooth.
3. Pour into skillet. Cook over low heat; do not stir. As mixture begins to set around edges, lift cooked portions gently with large turner so that uncooked portion can flow to the bottom.
4. Continue lifting cooked portions until eggs are completely set but still moist.
Makes 4-6 servings

*An excellent source of vitamin A and protein.

A Cookbook of Easy Summertime Recipes

INCREDIBLE! ALL-PURPOSE HOUSE AND GARDEN...

SUPER SPRAYER!

FANTASTIC LOW PRICE

ONLY $4.98

FEATHERWEIGHT — ONLY 8 OUNCES COMPLETE — YET PERFORMS LIKE THOSE HEAVY GALVANIZED STEEL SPRAYERS COSTING $20 TO $25!

So easy and such fun to use, a child can handle it. You'll get lots of help!

Just twist the adjustable nozzle to shoot a stream as far as 20 ft.!

Dozens of indoor uses too! Spray detergent on windows — insecticides around baseboards — dampen clothes for ironing!

Imagine a precision-made, rugged, heavy-duty sprayer so amazingly light that it weighs only 1/15 as much as any liquid you put in it! Do you wonder every gardener in our office flipped when our buyer brought it in? Until now you either had to lug around one of those big heavy "pump up" gallon sprayers, weighing about 25 pounds when full — or else you used some dinky little pushsprayer that kept you hopping back to refill every few minutes — and tired your arm, too. (Or, you could buy one of those trick hoses you have to pump with both arms, while keeping the end in a bucket. What a nuisance!)

Now Super Sprayer has set you free! Use it in the garden for insecticides, liquid fertilizers, weed killers. Use it on trees and bushes up to 20 ft. high. Use it on the patio to control flies, mosquitoes, reach hanging plants with spray to give them a humidifying treat of mist.

DOZENS OF HOUSEHOLD USES TOO!

Super Spray is a simple way to spray detergents, clean windows, and car windshields, spray disinfectants, pest-killers along baseboards, in cracks and other hard-to-reach places.

SAVE MONEY, TIME AND TROUBLE — GET SEVERAL!

At this low, low price, you can keep one Super Sprayer full of weedkiller, another for bug killer or liquid fertilizer without changing contents and have a third for general household use, all for less cost than one heavy, old-fashioned garden sprayer. 2 for only $8.98, 3 for $12.00! Money back if not delighted for any reason. But hurry, order now, and get extras for gifts!

4 slices bacon
1 cup chopped onion
2 teaspoons chili powder
2 cans (19-oz. size) chunky beef soup
1 can (about 20 ozs.) chick-peas, drained

1. In 2-qt. saucepan, cook bacon until crisp; remove and crumble. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons drippings.

2. Add onion and chili powder to drippings. Cook over medium heat, stirring, about 5 minutes, or until onion is tender.

3. Add remaining ingredients and bacon. Heat to boiling, stir occasionally.

Makes 4-6 servings

*An excellent source of protein and vitamin A; a good source of niacin, and iron.

"GUESS WHAT?" SPICE BARS*

1½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground allspice
1 can (10¾ ozs.) tomato soup, undiluted
1½ cups light- or dark-brown sugar, packed
2 eggs
½ cup vegetable oil
1 cup uncooked rolled oats
1 cup chopped peanuts or chocolate chips or raisins
6 (1.4-oz. size) chocolate bars, optional

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Grease and flour a 10x15x1-inch baking pan.

2. In large bowl, sift flour, baking powder, baking soda and spices. Add soup, sugar, eggs and oil.

3. With electric mixer, beat at medium speed for 2 minutes

TV's Jean Stapleton: "Unlike 'Archie,' My Real Husband Cooks!"

Henry Grossman/Transworld

Jean Stapleton, of CBS-TV's "All in the Family," and her husband Bill Putch are both good cooks.

Moving into our new house out West has changed our style of entertaining! Our new swimming pool is a joy. It forces me to sit down and relax, but it's also inspired some lovely Sunday afternoon poolside parties. We've even remodeled the garage into dressing rooms for our guests!

I have a lovely housekeeper who cooks most of our meals when I'm working. When I cook, I like to prepare simple make-ahead dishes. We all like tasty casseroles that can be popped into the oven on a moment's notice. Unlike "Archie," my real husband, Bill, cooks. And very well too! He specializes in Italian dishes. My favorite is his chicken tetrazzini, flavored with a hint of curry!

"My recipes come from everywhere. Even my makeup man, a gourmet cook, brings me wonderful chili!"

Bill (our family name is Putch) runs a playhouse in Pennsylvania called the Totem Pole Playhouse, and he's as good at directing, producing and designing stage sets as he is at performing in the kitchen. I should also add that he designed our house in Pennsylvania—a log cabin surrounded by orchards and mountains.

My recipes come from everywhere. Even my makeup man, a gourmet cook, brings me wonderful chili! It's fun to study cookbooks and come up with new ideas.

JEAN'S LOBSTER QUICHE

- 1 pkg. prepared pie crust mix
- 6 frozen South African rock-lobster tails (2-oz. size)
- Boiling, salted water
- 1 cup (4 ozs.) grated Swiss or Gruyère cheese
- 1 tablespoon finely minced white onion
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 4 eggs, well-beaten
- 2 cups half and half or light cream
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground white pepper
- ⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg

1. Prepare pie crust according to package directions. Roll out on lightly floured board. Make large enough to line bottom and sides of an ungreased 9-inch pie pan. Press pastry lightly against pan sides, allowing about ½-inch overhang. Flute pastry edge. Prick shell with fork. Partially bake in preheated 400° F. oven about 8 minutes.

2. Drop frozen rock-lobster tails into boiling, salted water. When water reboils, boil for 2 minutes. Drain in collander; drench immediately with cold water.

3. Remove underside membrane with scissors or poultry shears and pull out meat in one piece. Slice meat crosswise. Reserve 6 halves sliced lengthwise for garnish. Place meat in bottom of partially baked pie shell. Sprinkle cheese over meat.

4. Sauté onion in butter until golden; reserve.

5. Beat together eggs, half and half, salt, white pepper, nutmeg and cooked onion. Pour over lobster and cheese in pie shell.

6. Bake in preheated 350° F. oven 40-45 minutes, or until a knife inserted in center comes out clean. Garnish with rock-lobster slices to form a star design. Serve warm or at room temperature.

Makes 1 (9 inch) pie

BILL'S CHICKEN TETRAZZINI

- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 can (10¾ ozs.) cream of mushroom soup
- ½ can (10¾ ozs.) condensed chicken broth
- 2 teaspoons curry powder
- Dash of white pepper to taste
- 2 cups cooked broad noodles (½-inch wide)
- 2 cups cooked cubed chicken
- ½ cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley

1. Sauté onion in butter until golden.

2. Add soup, chicken broth, curry powder and white pepper. Cook over low heat, stirring.

3. Arrange layers of noodles, chicken and soup mixture in a greased baking dish, ending with layer of noodles.

4. Cover; bake in preheated 350° F. oven 30 minutes. Uncover; sprinkle cheese over the top.

5. Bake 10 minutes longer, or until cheese is melted and golden. Garnish with parsley. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings

A pound of Miracle spreads like a pound and a half.

Miracle Brand Margarine from Kraft is whipped. So, whether it's in the six-stick pound or big one-pound re-usable bowl, Miracle spreads like a pound and a half of regular margarine.

That means Miracle will spread 36 more slices of bread or muffins or sweet rolls.

A pound of Miracle Margarine spreads like a pound and a half. These days, that's a small miracle in itself.

Spread a little happiness with your own homemade jam.

THERE'S NO COOKING.

All you do is mix.
And all it takes is about 30 minutes.
And you've got 5 jars of your very own homemade jam.
Better jam. (Just ask those families who make their own!)

The recipe on the right will do it.
Or, look for other fruit jam and jelly recipes with the package,
when you buy Certo® fruit pectin.
(Or Sure-Jell®). It's the very ingredient you need to help make it jam.

It makes good time.
It makes good sense.
And it makes the kind of jam you'll be proud to put your name on.

The powder way or the liquid way

AND, IT'S EASY TO DO.

STRAWBERRY JAM RECIPE

1¾ cups crushed strawberries (about 1 qt.)
4 cups sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ bottle Certo® fruit pectin

Thoroughly mix fresh, crushed strawberries with sugar, and let stand for 10 minutes. Combine lemon juice with Certo® and add to fruit mixture. Stir the whole thing for 3 minutes. And that's it for 5 cups of jam.

Ladle your fresh homemade jam into any 5 scalded jars, (8 oz. or smaller, with screw tops). Or use plastic containers (with snap lids). Cover right away and then let stand at room temperature for 24 hours to set. Keep what you can eat in the refrigerator. And freeze the rest for sweeter days.

Special offer. For more recipes, send 50¢ (in coin) with your name, address and ZIP code to: The Wonderland of Homemade Jams and Jellies, Box 4018, Kankakee, Illinois 60901.

HE HEALS WITHOUT MEDICINE!

And chiropractors, all over America, pay him $54 a year to learn his new natural, non-drug ways to do it!

Would you like to share in these secrets—for a fraction of the price they pay?

Then read the thrilling details below...

Now, A MASTER Chiropractor—Who Trains Other Chiropractors... Who Cures Other Chiropractors... Shows YOU What He Believes You Must Do To Be Saved From Illness!

VITAL NOTE: At the very beginning, we must warn you that this man's views—though he is one of the most widely-respected chiropractors in the world—are still ultimately controversial! That he believes implicitly in a non-medical viewpoint in relation to health and disease! And that, therefore, though his views are accepted by chiropractors all over America, who pay him $54 a year to learn his discoveries—these views are not accepted, in any way, by the bulk of the medical profession!

We ask you to read every word that follows with this fact firmly in mind. And then decide for yourself whether you wish to test his natural, non-drug, let-the-body-heal-itself methods—without risking a penny!

So, Dear Friend – with this controversial background firmly in your mind, let us start by giving you this renowned chiropractor-teacher's basic philosophy, in his own words:

"The body manufactures all the ingredients we need for health, for growth, for self-repair of damaged body tissues..."

"Let the people know that the body cures itself. The power that created you is also the power that can heal you. The doctor may not know what's the matter... but the body knows—and knows what to do for it. What you have to do is just take away the obstacles to cure."

"There are positive and natural remedies and techniques for ills and ailments . . . natural, non-drug, un-harmful ways to reach equivalent or better results than with drugs."

"Trust this one thing: The body wants to be well. With half a chance the body will heal itself. In forty years of doctoring the sick, I have found that few ailments—very few—were altogether irreversible."

These, Then, Are The Health Goals Of A Man Who Has Spent Over Half A Century Searching Out Natural Ways To Heal! NOW YOU SHOULD LEARN HOW HE IS THOUGHT OF IN HIS OWN GREAT PROFESSION!

He has been recognized, by his profession, as one of its most prominent leaders, for decades! His teachings have been hailed, in print, by hundreds of chiropractors. Thousands of chiropractors have flocked to hear him during his lecture tours in 35 major cities of the United States –plus Montreal, Toronto, London, Brussels, and other world capitals.

Chiropractic doctors have repeatedly and gladly paid $60 to $120, just to attend one weekend seminar with him. Some of them, unable to attend have paid $15, simply for a 20-page copy of his lecture notes.

Four years ago, he decided that he could not reach enough of these chiropractic doctors, on a frequent enough basis, by his lectures alone. Therefore, he offered his profession a Newsletter, giving physician-subscribers his latest findings, as he discovered them. Despite the fact that this 6-page Newsletter sold for $54 a year, 1300 subscriptions poured in the very first few months!

Now You Know What This Man Has Set Out To Do, And You Know How Highly His Own Profession Values His Ability To Do It! NOW READ HOW HE INTENDS TO SHARE IT WITH YOU!

Now Marsh Morrison has decided that teaching chiropractors how to take away pain...how to start natural healing again—is just not enough! Despite the vast good that these dedicated men and women do all over America, there are still millions of people who are not reached by them! And they should have the right to benefit from these secrets too!

So—starting today, with this Charter Announcement—Marsh Morrison has agreed to give the same exact methods for which he charges chiropractors $54 a year—to YOU, for only a fraction of that price! And with a full money-back guarantee, ANYTIME AT ALL you think you're not getting MANY TIMES your money's worth from it!

Marsh Morrison calls this new monthly publication, quite simply and bluntly, THE HEALTH-FINDER! The only scientific Newsletter in America that gives you the natural, non-drug, non-medical viewpoint! And that is filled, page after page after thrilling page, with proven "let-the-body-heal-itself" secrets like these:

How to "hook up" your body so it manufactures all its own drugs! Including adrenalin, pepsin, cortisone, and dozens more!

How two easy minutes a night, before you go to bed, can "supercharge" the rate at which your body repairs its own damaged tissue!

The "deadly" mistake most people now make, that keeps their bloodstream from automatically filtering out foreign additives and poisons in their foods, and thus weakens their natural resistance to disease!

The single real cause of drooping eyelids, protruding stomach, sagging colon, hernia, hemorrhoids, chronic constipation, varicose veins and a host of other ills! And how at last to start combatting it—in minutes!

How to prevent aging lines around the mouth and throat!

How a simple change in the teeth brought about a "magic-like" reduction and even elimination of pains in the joints and bones!

How to overcome Dowager's Hump or stoop shoulders by an easy, almost always effective little daily exercise!

What Dr. Morrison believes may be a "potentially new and highly-valuable cancer aid"!

When Arthritics Were Ordered To Perform One Simple, 5-Second Gesture, Many Reported Immediate Diminution Of Pains!

Do you suffer from sciatica pain that "won't" go away? Or flat feet that no treatment "seems" to help? Or a nerve-pinching vertebra in your spine? Well, he may have the very answer you need!

His natural, non-surgical "Hair Restoring Technique"... that he has observed gets fuzz starting up in a month or six weeks!

A brightly-promising kind of hydro-therapy massage for varicose veins!

The natural diuretic so powerful (and yet so safe) that you are apt to pass in such quantity that it will seem endless...that your body may begin unloading even stored-up accumulated waste... that it is "not even unusual to hear kidney-grains or other hardened substances hit the porcelain toilet bowl as you void"!

His new hot-cold-hot techniques for impotency, that every afflicted male should try, before he writes himself off as "too old"!

The world's easiest way to relieve agonizing body tiredness! So gentle it requires almost no effort at all!

How to pump out the used-up, oxygen-exhausted blood from your body, before it can "poison" your entire system!

The hidden cause of curvature of the spine! That takes ten seconds to eliminate!

How to test yourself to see if that agonizing pain is caused by a pinched nerve! And then un-pinch it, right then and there—yourself!

How to naturally open and drain out those clogged sinuses—before they can turn your life into perpetual torture! (This is done by simple foods that liquefy mucus in the sinuses, and let them sweep themselves out!

An easy rule for avoiding dangerous sunburn, while still getting the beautiful tan you want! And it doesn't cost a penny!

How To Give Your Body A Chance To Restore Damaged Body Parts While Their Ailments Are Still Reversible!

The amazing "Mono-Diet"—Marsh Morrison's own prescription for chronic body weakness and digestive ailments!

If your frequent headaches don't respond to conventional treatment at all, try this ingenious, proven idea—that doesn't even require aspirin!

How to stop getting shorter as you grow older!

If you "freeze" during the winter, try the inexpensive little food that has a natural heating-up effect on the entire system!

How to re-mineralize bones!

How a simple switch in diet may help loss of hearing... tinnitus... roaring, whistling, hissing sounds!

World's easiest way to siphon off the accumulated nervous tensions of the working day! (Says Dr. Morrison; "It tends to relax the entire body, reducing nervous tensions as if by magic.")

"Why bee-keepers are almost universally cancer-free!"

How anyone can quickly re-implant a new intestinal flora to fight fungus infections in the body!

How to quickly strengthen the tendons of Achilles, and thereby prevent sprained and even fractured ankles!

Dr. Morrison's "recuperative power test"—that has revealed to him, in case after case, whether a person stricken by illness will live or die!

How to "iron out" flab and hanging flesh on the insides of the arms!

How to "stretch" away bursitis pains!

World's easiest way for 80% of those afflicted to relieve rectal itch!

World's easiest way to help case after case of brachial neuritis!

And Much More! All Yours To Read—Without Risking A Penny!

Once again, this practical, down-to-earth, bed-rock-fact Newsletter is as different from the usual medical letter, article or book as day is from night! First of all, there's not a single technical term anywhere in it! There's not one word of blue-sky theory! Not one mention of high-priced drugs...expensive medical equipment...or long torturous consultation!

What you get here instead—for the first time in history—is INSTANT, PRACTICAL HELP for your health, youth and appearance problems... given you by the "Dean of Chiropractors"! And designed (again, in his own words) to: "Help you walk the natural-health pathways, without recourse to doctors except in emergency, by using substances that do quite naturally what the MD's drug does artificially"!

Once again, you read the first three issues—from front to back—at OUR risk! If you cancel then, you keep the FREE "Foods As Medicines" Report for your trouble, and you get every cent of your money back!

So you have absolutely nothing to lose—ever! Here is your chance to receive the same information that chiropractors all over the world pay $54 a year for—without risking a penny!

Why not send in the No Risk Coupon—TODAY!

FREE BONUS!

Yours to keep even if you return the Marsh Morrison HEALTH-FINDER NEWSLETTER for every cent of your money back!

"I RECOMMEND THESE FOODS AS MEDICINES – FOR ALL THESE AILMENTS..."

Yes, foods which Dr. Morrison has found to have the same pharmacological action as medicines themselves, but without the dangerous side effects!

This Special Report by Marsh Morrison is—by far—the most widely used single piece of information he has ever distributed to his fellow chiropractors! Thousands of copies have been asked for from practicing chiropractors all over the world! And now it is yours, ABSOLUTELY FREE, including:

THE FOOD-MEDICINE which contains an ingredient that acts like a bronchial anti-spasmodic. That dilates the bronchial tubes in asthma attacks quite naturally, in the same manner that the MD's drug acts artificially.

THE FOOD-MEDICINE that is "vastly helpful", both in cases of constipation and diarrhea.

THE ONLY FOOD-MEDICINE known to contain salicylic acid—the active ingredient of virtually all pain-killers. Therefore, from this day on, reach for this delicious food instead of drugs, and escape their brutal side-effects!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE used lately with "good effect" in cases of glaucoma and general inter-ocular pressure!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE that detoxifys the system!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE that tends to cleanse the bile duct, and relieve associated pain!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE remarked by Dr. Morrison to be "extremely useful" in ailments of the liver!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE he calls "enormously valuable" for those with cardiac dysfunctions, especial coronary artery disease!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE useful for thyroid cases and those with deficient energy!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE he calls "Nature's own natural antibiotic"! "Even when applied to open wounds", he says, "the possibility of blood poisoning is avoided."

THE FOOD-MEDICINE he uses to clear the kidney of gravel.

THE FOOD-MEDICINE he marks off as useful in internal sores, pin ulcers, bleeding of the gums.

THE FOOD MEDICINE he uses to stimulate hair growth!

THE FOOD MEDICINE he says "will re-mineralize the long bones of older people, and thus provide needed protection against fractures for them"!

AND DOZENS MORE! All yours FREE in this Special Report, never before released to the lay public! Why not send for it today!

As with all methods of self-treatment, if the guidance suggested in the HEALTH-FINDER NEWSLETTER does not bring you the relief you desire after a reasonable period of time, we suggest that you then consult your doctor.

WHAT CHIROPRACTORS SAY ABOUT MARSH MORRISON

D.C., Ph.C., F.I.C.C.

Below are typical comments from some of the hundreds of chiropractors who have paid $60 to $120 for the privilege of attending just one Marsh Morrison seminar.

"To say your work is marvelous is really an understatement. I have been in practice 20 years and wish this knowledge had been available to me sooner." –Dr. H. J. Bates, Enid, Oklahoma

"In forty-seven years as a chiropractor I consider Dr. Morrison's the most practical and more effective than all others combined." –Dr. Elmer B. Shipley, Terre Haute, Indiana

"The quintessence of Chiropractic knowledge. For years I've searched for more ways of helping more sick people get well faster. This weekend my dream and desire has become an actuality." –Frederick Doughty–Beck, D.C., New Orleans, La.

"I most appreciated the techniques demonstrated. I, myself, received immediate relief of chronic symptoms." –Dr. Jeanne Gale, D.C., Phoenix, Arizona

"Have had 20 years in Physical Medicine before going into chiropractic. Now 15 years in chiropractic. But this is absolutely the greatest." –V. J. Psarlea, D.C., Vancouver, Wash.

"After having used Dr. Morrison's technique for over 6 months, I can, and do, strongly recommend it to every doctor in our profession." –Dr. Arnold C. Sikes, Concord, N.C.

"The techniques are very simple, but effective... nothing short of magic." –Dr. Kern Chester, Paragould, Ark.

"Dr. Morrison's techniques are both immediately effective, almost like magic. I am a far better chiropractor than before..." –Dr. John Herman, Chicago, Ill.

½ cup barbecue sauce or ketchup
¼ cup parsley flakes

1. In 6-8-qt. kettle, heat butter until melted. Add bologna, carrots, zucchini and garlic powder. Sauté, stirring, until bologna browns, about 5 minutes. 2. Stir in soup, water and milk. Add remaining ingredients. Heat to boiling, stirring; reduce heat. Cover; simmer about 20 minutes, or until macaroni is tender. Stir frequently.

Makes about 5 qts.

OLD-FASHIONED OATMEAL COOKIES*

1 cup raisins
1 cup water
¾ cup shortening
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
2½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon baking powder
2 cups rolled oats
1 cup chopped walnuts

1. Simmer raisins and water in small saucepan about 15 minutes, until raisins are plump. Drain raisins, reserve liquid. Add enough water to reserved liquid to measure ½ cup. 2. Preheat oven to 400°F. In large bowl, with electric mixer at medium speed, combine shortening, sugar, eggs and vanilla. Blend in reserved raisin liquid. Clean beaters and side of bowl. 3. At very low speed add flour, baking soda, salt, cinnamon, cloves and baking powder. 4. Stir in raisins, oats, walnuts. 5. Drop dough by level tablespoonsful, 2 inches apart, onto ungreased baking sheet. Bake 8-10 minutes, or until brown. 6. Remove cookies from baking sheet immediately; cool completely. Store in airtight container. Makes 6 dozen

To make Mincemeat Drops: Omit raisins and decrease water to ½ cup. Stir in 1½ cups prepared mincemeat in Step 4.

*A good source of iron and B vitamins.

RAVIOLI SUPPER SKILLET*

2 cans (15-oz. size) beef ravioli in meat sauce
1 cup sliced hard salami, quartered
1 can (1 lb.) green beans, drained
2 tablespoons ketchup
Grated Parmesan cheese

1. In skillet, combine ravioli, salami, beans and ketchup; cover. Heat, stirring occasionally. Serve with cheese.

Makes about 6 cups

Editor's note: This is easy enough for children to make themselves with a little adult help.

*An excellent source of protein and vitamin A.

RAISIN BREAD PUDDING*

½ cup raisins
¼ cup sherry
6 slices enriched white bread
3 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
3 cups milk, scalded
½ cup sugar
4 eggs, lightly beaten
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
1 cup light cream or half and half, optional

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Lightly grease a 9x9x2-inch baking dish. 2. Soak raisins in sherry. Toast bread and spread with butter. Cut into triangles. 3. Layer bread, buttered side up, in baking pan. Sprinkle with cinnamon and raisins. 4. Pour milk and sugar into eggs, beating rapidly. Stir in any remaining sherry and vanilla; pour over bread. Bake about 40 minutes, or until the tip of a knife comes out clean. Serve warm or cold with a little cream poured over each serving if desired.

Makes 6-8 servings

*A good source of protein, calcium and vitamin A.

KNOX BLOX™

New finger-size gelatine snacks.

Knox has a nifty new snack idea that's a knock-out with kids. It's firmed up, finger-sized, fruity gelatine squares. They're firm enough to never melt or get mushy even at room temperature. But still have enough wiggle to tempt any tot. And a snap to make. Just add Knox® Unflavored Gelatine to any flavored gelatine and your Knox Blox will stay firm until the last block is all gobbled up. Now, isn't that a better idea than candy?

4 envelopes Knox Unflavored Gelatine
3 packages (3 oz. ea.) flavored gelatine
4 cups boiling water

In large bowl, combine Knox Unflavored Gelatine and flavored gelatine; add boiling water and stir until gelatine dissolves. Pour into large shallow baking pan (for example, 13" x 9") and chill until firm. Cut into squares to serve. Makes about 100 one inch squares.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

What Your Reading Habits Reveal About You

True or False: Some people use reading not as a means of enjoyment or enlightenment, but simply as a narcotic. (See number 4)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you don't find reading a chore and a bore, the odds are that you're well adjusted and have a minimum of personality hangups.

2. Your reading habits provide a clue to your social and economic status.

3. A good reading ability—the enjoyment of books, magazines and newspapers, and a quick comprehension—provides an index to your personality type.

4. Some people use reading not as a means of enjoyment or enlightenment, but simply as a narcotic.

5. What we read has a marked influence on how we live.

ANSWERS

1. True. University studies indicate that the able reader is better adjusted, has fewer emotional conflicts and "has more successfully accepted his role in society." It's also observed that the person who gets the most out of the printed page is also likely to get the most out of life. In both cases, the focus and comprehension of our mental faculties is a key factor.

2. True—according to a survey of American reading habits, which showed that the most common kind of reading done on a typical day is newspaper reading, and that "those who read two or more newspapers tend to have a higher socioeconomic status than those who read only one, and that persons who read newspapers at work have a higher status than those who read newspapers at home." It was also found that: Higher status is associated with persons who read editorials and letters to the editor, the sports section, and motion-picture, book or other reviews.

3. True—as shown by a study of more than 100 men and women at the University of Illinois, in which each subject was given a standard reading-ability test, followed by a personality test. Findings showed that "the quiet, thoughtful, feminine, agreeable woman is the better reader. Using different variables as a basis of description, it is also the quiet, thoughtful, cultured man who is the better reader among men."

4. True. Reading, as one authority observes, is a basic tool in living a good life. But instead of using it as such, some people use it as an opiate. They don't read because of interest in a given subject or for entertainment or for mental stimulation. On the contrary, they use reading as a means of deadening their thoughts—as a drug to quiet their nerves, to escape boredom, to "read themselves to sleep" or to take their minds off their problems. Just as some people can't stand being alone, these people can't stand being without "something to read." But just what it is makes little difference to them, for they retain very little of it.

5. True. Studies of the effects of reading show that it is largely responsible for influencing the attitudes and outlooks of people from all walks of life, "giving them a design for living more purposefully, or a way of experiencing life more understandingly." In one study, college students were asked to tell specifically how books or articles affected their attitude, ideas or behavior. Only a minimal percentage reported that their reading had little or no influence on their personal lives. The extent of the influence was affected by each person's intelligence, vocabulary and comprehension. And it's observed that "To read without reflecting is like eating without digesting."

If you have tried diet after diet without success . . . If you have been accused of "cheating" by doctor after doctor . . . If you're tired of starving yourself for the sake of a few pounds . . .

"I promise that once you learn this secret you can lose up to 12 pounds in one week alone. What's more, you'll never be overweight again – even if ordinary diets have always failed you!"

Harry Needelman, M.D.

Here is the most important diet discovery in 64 years. Read how this eminent diet doctor learned the secret of activating NAD, your body's Natural Appetite Depressant! See the actual unretouched photos of just a few of Dr. Needelman's 20,000 success stories!

I am Dr. Harry Needelman — the one doctor who has delved deeper into the mind and body of the overweight person than any other doctor on earth! I have spent the last 22 years successfully treating more than 20,000 obese patients — most of whom had never before been able to lose weight and keep it off!

NOW I'D LIKE TO SHARE MY INCREDIBLE DIETING SECRET WITH YOU!

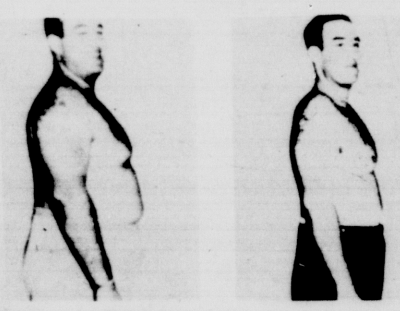

And incredible it is — because it requires no starvation . . . no deprivation . . . and no exercise! Yet your surplus weight will disappear like magic . . . and never return!

How can I make such a fantastic claim?

I can, because I am the one diet doctor who has bothered to thoroughly investigate why most diets fail. I am the one doctor who has not laid the blame to lack of will-power or insufficient exercise. I am the one doctor who finally realized that hunger is the culprit that stands in the way of the conscientious dieter.

Shirley Goldberg went from 186½ lbs. to 143½ lbs. in 6 months!

Merta Pinelas went from 165¾ lbs. to 126¼ lbs. in 8 weeks!

And learning this, I am the one doctor who has finally discovered what hunger really is!

NOW I CAN REVEAL THE SENSATIONAL SECRET OF HOW TO COMBAT HUNGER — NATURALLY AND HARMLESSLY!

What took me so long to release this remarkable knowledge?

Frankly, I was so busy with my patients I had no time to put any of my findings on paper. Now, after more than 20,000 success stories, I've finally taken the time to put my years of studies and results into a book that will revolutionize the entire dieting field!

I will now show you how hunger works like a time clock in your body . . . a time clock that can be triggered or shut off by the chemical compositions of certain foods. And I will reveal for the first time exactly what foods can turn off this time clock. I promise that once you learn this secret you can lose up to 12 pounds in one week alone. What's more, you'll never be overweight again — even if ordinary diets have always failed you!

As a "resistant-obese" person, you are especially important to me because you've already suffered years of ridicule and abuse from intolerant and ignorant friends and doctors. Now you needn't suffer any longer — from their lack of understanding, or from your stubborn weight!

You can see what's possible for you from these photos of the amazing results some of my most "resistant-obese" patients have achieved:

THIS IS NOT A FAD DIET!

I call it the HAPPY DIET — for you will happily lose pound after pound while you fully enjoy mealtime and snacktime pleasures!

What other diet do you know that tells you to have a big roast beef sandwich as a snack if you wish? Or a good sized baked potato as part of dinner? Or a milk shake as often as every hour of the day?

With my sensational diet regimen, you can satisfy your hunger and your palate with such satisfying treats as these — and still lose weight!

Yes . . . I want you to eat generously of all the foods you enjoy: bread, certain fruits and vegetables, salads, meat, chicken, fish, Jello, coffee, tea, milk . . . plus all the Scotch, bourbon, rye, gin, vodka and brandy you desire!

I also want you to enjoy snacks in between meals if you wish!

If you get hungry, don't resort to something like a diet beverage . . . have a milk shake! Don't nibble on a piece of celery . . . have a huge turkey sandwich! Don't open a can of dietetic fruit . . . have half a grapefruit, or half a canteloupe, or a generous slice of fresh pineapple, etc. Enjoy every delicious mouthful and watch the pounds melt off!

And wait until you see the additional benefits of my fantastic diet!

- Your complexion will become clearer.
- Your skin will become moist and firm — no sagging anywhere!
- You will become more mentally alert.
- Problems of constipation will disappear.
- Menstrual cramps will virtually disappear.
- You will not develop the ugly stretch marks that usually follow other rapid weight loss diets.

IN GENERAL, YOU WILL LOOK AND FEEL BETTER THAN YOU EVER HAVE BEFORE!

I unconditionally guarantee that this diet will not make you nervous, irritable or depressed. That it is medically safe for patients with diabetes, high blood pressure and heart conditions. And that even children can use this diet without being deprived of all the important nutrients necessary for their healthy growth.

Because mine is the first new idea and the first successful diet regimen to be published in 64 years, I have also prepared a special 50-page section for DOCTORS! Now, for the first time, many doctors will understand the simple physiology of hunger. Now, for the first time, doctors will learn that there are people who can honestly adhere to most diets and fail. Now, for the first time, doctors will learn how to help the "resistant-obese" patient (those who cannot lose weight on ordinary diets) without nagging and without scolding.

In fact, my findings are so powerful, my book will soon become the bible of the diet doctor and the overweight patient alike!

I want to educate both you and your doctor about hunger, eating and what different foods do to your system. I want you both to use my book as the one real, knowledgeable and workable source on weight loss. And I want you to fully experience its many benefits.

NOW THERE IS NO EXCUSE FOR ANYONE TO EVER BE OVERWEIGHT AGAIN!

I have provided the answer to maintaining your proper weight level without ever going hungry . . . without depriving yourself of many foods you love . . . without strenuous exercise . . . without any of the unpleasantries usually associated with dieting! I can truly be called a dieting miracle-worker . . . for I have worked miracles on thousands of patients who never dreamed they would ever be thin again!

WHY NOT LET MY MIRACLES WORK FOR YOU?

You have absolutely nothing to lose but those unwanted pounds! And you will enjoy yourself completely while losing!

Send for your book today on a 30-day no-risk trial basis!

This book will not be available anywhere except through this offer. Order it now and start following my proven theories immediately. If, after 30 days, you are not thoroughly convinced that this book has become your salvation, simply return it for a full refund.

Why carry around those excess pounds a minute longer? Order your copy of my fantastic diet book today. And while you're at it, why not order one for your doctor? It will be the best gift you could possibly give yourself!

Sports Mini-Profile

MIKE SCHMIDT:

He Became No. 1 When He Stopped Trying Harder!

By learning to relax and do what comes naturally, Mike Schmidt has been transformed into the best slugger Philadelphia has had in over 40 years. Schmidt led the major leagues with 36 homers last season, was No. 1 in the National League in slugging percentage and No. 2 in the runs-batted-in category. His batting has helped the Phillies mold a new image as a contender for top honors. . . . Schmidt's turnabout came after he had a dismal first year, batting a measly .196 and striking out 136 times. "I was pressing too hard," he says.

"I was so anxious to achieve stardom that every time I went up to bat it was like a life-or-death thing with me. And when I got off to a bad start, I kept pressing even harder, so things just got worse."

. . . Schmidt developed a new attitude when he played winter baseball in Puerto Rico. Bobby Wine, manager of his Puerto Rican team, taught him to pick out the good pitch and swing naturally at it. "I knew he had the ability," says Wine, "if he only went about it the right way." . . . Success as an athlete came early to Schmidt. "I had a God-given gift of being able to pick up a bat, golf club or racquet and do the right thing with it," he says. As a youngster in Dayton, Ohio, he was a standout in all sports. At Ohio University, the redheaded Schmidt played shortstop on a team that reached the College World Series. He set a conference record for home runs and was picked in the second round of the free-player draft by the Phillies in 1971. . . . Most home-run hitters are outfielders, and the 6-2, 200-pound Schmidt is built like an outfielder or first baseman. But his sure hands and his ability to rifle the ball to first have made him invaluable as a third baseman. He is the first third-sacker to lead the National League in homers in 16 years and the first Philly in over 40 years to win a major-league home-run title.

The Doctor Lets You In

Some Do's and Don'ts About Hospital Visits

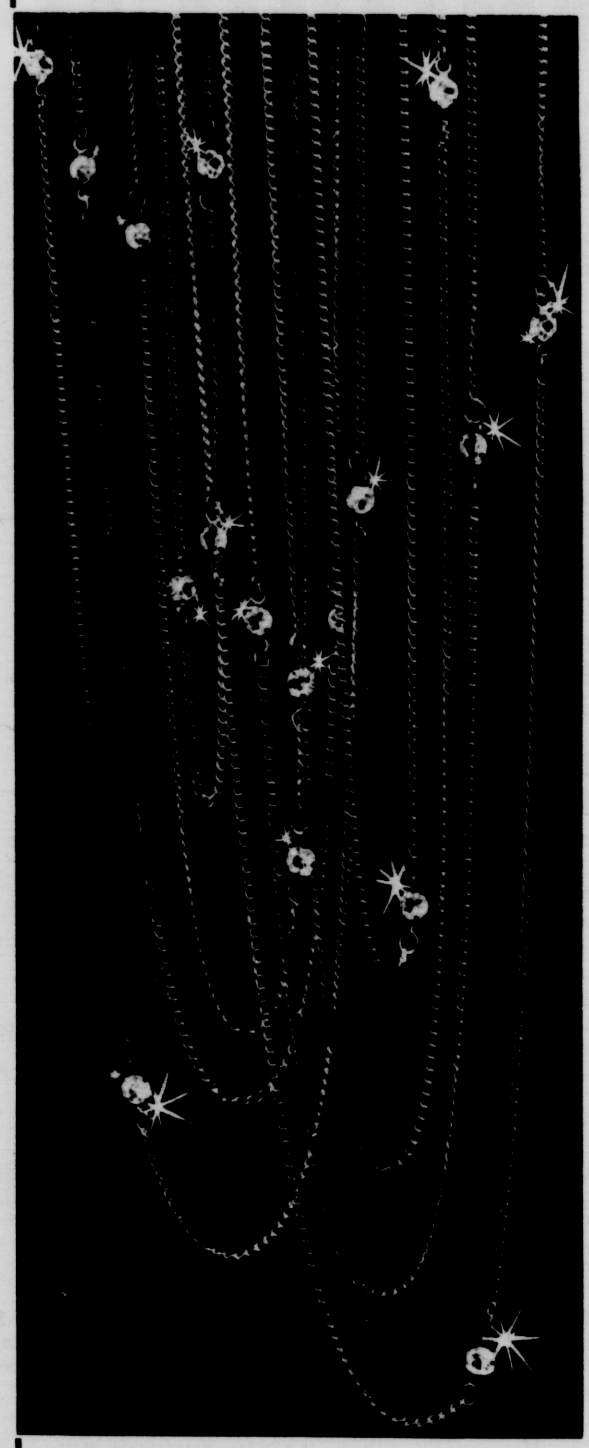

Often, people visit sick friends or relatives in the hospital because they feel they should. Instead, they ought to try to find out if the sick person really wants visitors. Here are some points about visiting the sick at home or in the hospital: When it is a short confinement, the patient often welcomes rest and quietude rather than visitors. A sick person who is expecting visitors is put under some stress—even to having to dress properly to receive them. . . . Think twice about visiting someone—especially a woman—who has just undergone plastic surgery or a dental operation. She may have black eyes from the surgery. In her own view she feels "I am a mess" and may not appreciate being seen that way. . . . A sick person usually has various anxieties: Is the doctor telling him the truth? Is the family holding something back? Will he be able to take care of himself when he is released from the hospital? Don't add to his anxieties. Other don'ts: Don't stay too long. A 10 to 15 minute visit is usually enough. Don't try to settle family problems. Don't bring goodies—salt in cakes, sugar in cookies or alcohol are what he may have to do without. Don't tell him about people who are sick. Don't talk too much. And, above all, don't go if you have a cold!

—By Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

Now You Don't Have to Be a Millionaire to Own This Simulated Diamond Ring

AMAZING OFFER
to readers of Family Weekly

FULL ONE CARAT ZOLATRON SIMULATED DIAMOND RING 5.99

Did you know that only a diamond expert can tell the difference between a Zolatron and a costly diamond?

We got hold of a fabulous full carat diamond ring costing $1000.00 and we made a copy of it. A copy so clever . . . so realistic . . . and so precise that only a diamond expert could ever tell it apart from the original $1000.00 ring. We made it from luxurious silver electroplated and burnished by jewelry craftsmen. Then we mounted it with an imported full carat ZOLATRON – the famous simulated diamond that lasts a lifetime. Now we offer it for only $5.99. Imagine it – about a half percent of the original!

PLEASE DON'T JUDGE IT BY ITS LOW $5.99 PRICE!

Now don't think that because it's so low-priced, this must be a cheap, inferior imitation. Far from it! We proudly offer you a superior, quality-made jewel. We simply refuse to use the cheap, soft plastic "diamonds" found in low-cost rings. Instead we use ZOLATRONS exclusively—because they are amongst the world's most dazzling, convincing simulations. These hard, dense stones are diamond-cut and hand set into heavy duty rings of exquisite beauty. Like precious diamonds, ZOLATRONS look, glow and feel like diamonds. And like diamonds, they sure do impress people! But let's face it: ZOLATRONS are different from regular diamonds. However, the most thrilling difference is that you get one for only a few dollars—not thousands!

PROVE IT YOURSELF WITH DARING SULPHURIC ACID TEST

Now you can prove the similarity of ZOLATRONS and DIAMONDS with this daring experiment. Take a loose Diamond, a Zolatron and a Plastic Stone (used in cheap jewelry) and drop them into foaming sulphuric acid. Next day carefully remove them from the acid. Note how both the diamond and the Zolatron come out unharmed. But the plastic stone has disintegrated into a mushy mass. Hard, dense Zolatrons easily pass this corrosive acid test. Just like diamonds they don't break down. CAUTION: Sulphuric Acid is a dangerous substance. Avoid getting onto skin or clothing.

WEAR ZOLATRONS WITH CONFIDENCE!

Yes, wear this magnificent man-made stone with pride and assurance—just like a diamond costing thousands. Keep the secret to yourself. After all, it takes a real diamond expert to detect it from a natural diamond.

THE GIFT OF A LIFETIME FOR SOMEONE SPECIAL!

ZOLATRONS make thrilling, lifetime gifts for special occasions . . . engagements . . . a wonderful surprise for Someone Special. He or she will never know it isn't a diamond worth a fortune — unless you tell. You don't have to go broke for a man-made stone either. A magnificent ZOLATRON Ring can now be yours for only a few dollars — rushed by return mail to your home. By choosing man-made ZOLATRONS instead of regular diamonds, you save plenty for a down payment on a car, real estate or a terrific vacation.

Many millionaires and movie stars secretly wear simulated diamonds. Think of this: the "genuine" diamonds your neighbors show off at parties, may not be so "genuine" after all. We know of rich folks that wear simulations and stash their costly jewels in bank vaults. Be it as it may, you don't have to be a millionaire to own a man-made ZOLATRON Ring.

Supertanker

combustible—gases produced by the ship's exhaust system.

Another factor that eases the mind is that these really huge ships are precluded from entering any major port in the United States because this country has no major deep-water facilities to cope with them. (The people of Staten Island—the least-known borough of New York City—are by no means happy, however. Storage facilities for 900,000 tons of liquefied natural gas are being built on that island—and far too near to houses and apartment blocks for their inhabitants' comfort.)

But then consider what I think is the real danger. It was brought home to me quite dramatically.

Last summer, in Manhattan, I sat down to write a novel about a group of activist American Indians who took over a supertanker and held the island of Manhattan for ransom. It was a novel, nothing more—a fantasy with a hero (the mayor), a heroine (Manhattan herself) and a splendid collection of villains.

Of course it could not really happen, I thought. And then I bought some charts and started doing some reading. What I found was that it was indeed possible to bring a huge supertanker into the Hudson and create exactly the situation I had envisaged.

A very unhappy thought.

But the plot was based on the knowledge that in a few years time, such will be the high level of automation and computerization that these huge ships will have minimal crews—possibly as few as eight or ten men. At the moment, few of them sail with less than 26 men on board, and each of these men is generally highly skilled. It is only the "cowboys" who worry me.

What is important is that those people who transport great, almost unbelievable, quantities of fuel and dangerous chemicals should be constantly reminded that they have a massive responsibility to the rest of us; and that these huge loads must be treated as the potent hazard they are.

The Cleveland explosions brought about a major examination of all the potential dangers. Perhaps the time has come for a new reassessment by public authorities and the transporters themselves.

It would be far better to do it now than after an explosion that would almost certainly be far more catastrophic than that of 1944. It is, after all, our lives that are involved. FW

THE EYES HAVE IT
Neither wind, nor rain . . .

Anyone who wears eyeglasses and has gotten caught in the rain knows that after a while you can't see a thing. Walking into a warm room after being outside in the cold also causes visual problems. To remedy this dilemma, a French manufacturer followed the idea of automobile windshield wipers and designed battery-operated windshield-wiper-fitted spectacles. (Prescription glasses can also be fitted.) The spectacles are lightweight and all you have to do to set the wipers in motion is press a button on the side. But a few queries remain: Wouldn't they become hypnotic after a time? And if they're as unreliable as car wipers, wouldn't a tissue do just as well?

Women are setting a new trend—as runaways: "In no other year have women outnumbered men as the runaway spouse," said Ed Goldfader, president of Tracers Company of America. "Two years ago, for example, runaway husbands outnumbered runaway wives by a margin of two to one. Generally speaking, the average husband leaves home because of professional frustrations and financial pressures. The wife often leaves to get attention; she is anxious to elevate herself from the role of cook, laundress and housekeeper," Goldfader concluded after numerous interviews with wives who had decided to go it alone. The most publicized incident of a female runaway was the case of Angelina Alioto, wife of San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, who last year vanished in the midst of her husband's reelection campaign. After 17 days, Mrs. Alioto returned and publicly explained that she had run away because she felt neglected. There are other reasons for the rising number of female runaways, which reveal the tremendous change in social mores in recent years. As Americans have become more educated, more affluent and more sophisticated, large numbers of men and women have come to believe that marriage is not the only option open to them (as the drop in marriages and subsequent rise in the divorce rate attest).

JOE DIMAGGIO
"I don't like comparisons, but . . ."

The Oakland A's, whom Joe DiMaggio coached for three years, have won the World Series three years in a row, but Joltin' Joe maintains that they're still not on a par with the old Yankees: "You get in trouble when you start comparing eras, but would you prefer having Gene Tenace at first base over Lou Gehrig? Would you use Ray Fosse behind the plate over Bill Dickey or Yogi Berra?" But the ex-center fielder of the Yankees admits that a player like Reggie Jackson or Sal Bando would have been an asset to any Yankee team and goes on to say, "In fact, the A's have many of the same qualities that the Yanks did—they wait for the other team to make an error and really capitalize on those mistakes." Joe retired from play 25 years ago; but at age 60, his popularity hasn't diminished one bit. He travels all over the world instructing youngsters, demonstrating that he hasn't forgotten how to use a bat. With all the TV commercials he does, he is quick to add: "More people see me today than at the height of my baseball career."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

FACING IT

Our bathroom mirror has a bubble
That causes me no end of trouble.
I move my face the slightest bit—
The bubble makes a mess of it.
My nose is shifted to my cheek
Or else becomes a monstrous beak;
One eye (it's hard to think it's mine)
Is up or down or out of line;
My lips grow thick and then grow thin;
I look as if I've lost my chin.
That bubble shifts and longs and shorts me,
It unexpectedly distorts me. . . .
Bad as I look, at least I'm glad
I really don't look quite that bad.

Walking along a dimly lighted street, a man was surprised by a stranger who slipped out of the shadows and stopped him. "Would you be so kind," said the stranger, "as to help a poor, unfortunate fellow who is out of work and very hungry? All I have in the world is this gun." —Lucille S. Harper

The best way to find a lost earring is to throw away its mate.
—Lillian Koslover

A government official had to decide whether an elderly woman's farm was located in the United States or Canada. When he announced to her that her property was just inside the U.S., she seemed very much relieved and said, "I'm glad to know that. They say Canadian winters are terribly severe."

Our four-year-old son had done the same forbidden thing time after time, ignoring warning after warning. Finally his dad punished him, then asked him why he had been so stubborn. Between sobs, Bruce answered, "Well, I just did what I did to see if you love me more than you do."

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION.

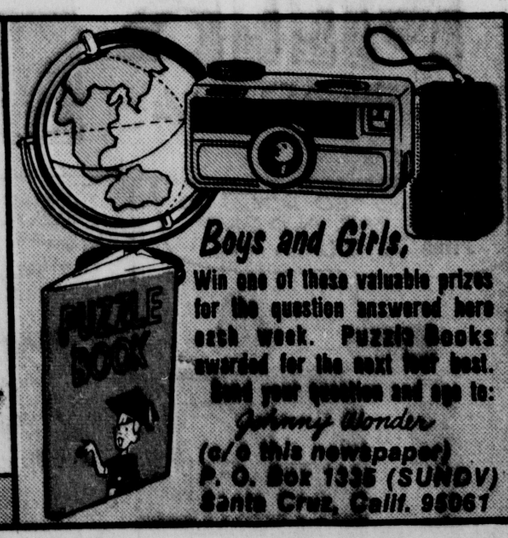

RICK TUTTLE OF WARNER ROBINS, GA, ASKS: "HOW DOES GLUE HOLD WOOD TOGETHER?"

WHEN WE SMEAR GLUE ON TWO PIECES OF WOOD AND PRESS THEM TOGETHER, THE GLUE IS FORCED INTO THE HOLLOW AIR SPACES OF THE WOOD. WHEN THE GLUE DRIES AND HARDENS, IT FIRMLY ANCHORS THE PIECES OF WOOD TOGETHER. GLUE ALSO ACTS IN OTHER WAYS TO HOLD THE WOOD TOGETHER. LIKE EVERYTHING ELSE, GLUE IS MADE UP OF TINY MOLECULES. THE GLUE MOLECULES WORK LIKE TINY MAGNETS. THEY PULL HARD ON EACH OTHER AS WELL AS ON THE WOOD MOLECULES. THIS ATTRACTION, CALLED COHESION AND ADHESION, BECOMES VERY STRONG WHEN THE GLUE DRIES, AND SO IT MAKES THINGS STICK TIGHT. © 1975 by NEA, Inc., 6/8

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — When a favorite pattern begins to wear out you can easily cut another out of newspaper. Place the newspaper under the material to be cut out and be sure to catch it with the fabric when pinning the pattern on. Simply cut through both fabric and paper. Presto! A new pattern.—L.I.

DEAR POLLY — Use newspapers to clean windows instead of paper towels. They do just as good a job and the cost is zero. — LINDA.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, % this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — When making lunches and you are including a drink in a paper carton, place it in the freezer the night before. Then, place in a plastic bag before putting into a lunchbox. By lunchtime the drink will thaw to a COLD liquid drink.—YVETTE.

DEAR POLLY — To save on my heating bill I always leave the oven door open after it is turned off and let the heat go out into the kitchen. — JOYCE.

DEAR POLLY — Putting notes you want the children to see on the TV is fine, but ours go directly to the refrigerator for snacks. I find such notes are always seen when stuck to the "fridge" doors with little magnets. — IONE.

DEAR POLLY — When sewing ladies' pull-on slacks use small bits of color-fast bias tape, seam binding or braid to mark the backs of the garments. — HELEN.

DEAR POLLY — Cheerleaders and others who have sweater letters or emblems will find they are much easier to remove when the sweater is washed if they are put on with snaps. — V.A.

DEAR POLLY — When I bake bread or buns I remove the bottom rack from the oven and use it as a cooling rack. Works great! — MRS. F.J.S.

DEAR POLLY — I have knit many doll ski outfits following directions I clipped from a small magazine. After repeated use, the directions became worn. I place the page in a plastic sandwich bag and can now read both sides without any more wear and tear. — BESSIE.

DEAR POLLY — When I wear plastic gloves for tinting my hair I find they come off much faster and easier if I run cold water over them rather than hot. The cold water makes them stiff. If soft, they cling to the hands.—DOROTHY.
